CHAPTER XVII.

Through the creamy lace curtains that draped the open windows, the afternoon sun shone into the library, making warm lanes of yellow light across the rich mosaic of many-coloured woods that formed the polished floor.

On one side of the table sat Mr. Palma, who had returned an hour before from Washington, and was resting comfortably in his favourite chair, with his head thrown back and a cigar between his lips. Opposite the lawyer was his cousin and protege, occupied in peeling a juicy peach with one of the massive silver fruit knives.

"I have never doubted the success of the case; it was a foregone conclusion when you assumed charge of it. Certainly, considering the strength of the defence, it is a brilliant triumph for you, and compensates for the toil you have spent upon it. I have never seen you labour more indefatigably."

"Yes, for forty-eight hours I did not close my eyes, and of course the result gratifies me, for the counsel for the defence was the most stubborn contestant I have dealt with for a long time. The Government influence was immense. Where have Mrs. Palma and Olga gone?"

"To Manhattanville, I believe."

"How long since Regina left the house?"

"Only a few moments before you arrived. It seems to me singularly imprudent to allow her to wander about the City, as she does."

"Explain yourself."

"I offered to accompany her as escort, but she rather curtly declined my attendance."

"And in your estimation that constitutes 'imprudence'?"

"I certainly consider it very imprudent for any young girl to stroll round alone in New York on Sunday afternoon; especially one so very attractive, so conspicuously beautiful as Regina."

"During my absence has any one been kidnapped or garrotted in broad daylight?"

"I do not study the police records."

"Do you imagine that she perambulates about the sacred precincts of 'Five Points,' or the purlieus of Chatham Street?"

"I imagine nothing, Sir; but I know that she frequents a distant portion of this city, where I should think young ladies of her social status would find no attraction."

"You have followed her then?" Mr. Palma raised himself, and struck the ashes from his cigar.

"I have not, but others certainly have, and commented upon the fact."

"Will you oblige me with the remarks, and the name of the author?"

"No—Cousin Erle,—certainly not the last. But I will tell you that a couple of young gentlemen met her on Eighth Avenue, and were so impressed by her face that they turned and followed her; saw her finally enter one of a row of poor tenement buildings in——Street. Soon after she came out and retraced her steps. They watched her till she entered your house, and next day one of them asked me if she were a sewing girl. No ward of mine should have such latitude."

"Not Elliott Roscoe—but I happen to be her guardian. She visits by my permission the house you so vaguely designate, and the first time she entered it I accompanied her and pointed out the location, and the line of street cars that would carry her almost to the square. At present the house is occupied by Mrs. Mason, the widow of a minister who was related to Mr. Hargrove, Regina's former guardian, and the references furnished me by the lady give satisfactory assurance that the acquaintance is unobjectionable."

"I presume you are the best judge of the grave responsibility of your position," replied the young gentleman, stiffly.

"Certainly, I think so, Sir; and as you may possibly have observed I am not particularly grateful for volunteer suggestions relative to my duty. Has it ever occurred to you that the green goggles you wear at present may accidentally lend an unhealthy tinge to your vision.

A wave of vivid scarlet flowed to the edge of Mr. Roscoe's fair harvest-hued hair, as he answered angrily:

"You are the only person who could with impunity make such an insinuation."

"In insinuations I never indulge, and impunity I neither arrogate, nor permit in others. Keep cool Elliott, or else change your profession. A man who cannot hold his temper in leash, and who flies emotional signals from every feature in his face, has slender chances of success in an avocation which demands that body and soul, heart and mind, abjure even secret signal service, and deal only in cipher."

Walking to the window, where he stood with his countenance averted, Mr. Roscoe said, hesitatingly:

"I would rather my weakness had been discovered by the whole world, than that you should know it; you who never having indulged such emotions, regard them as the height of folly. I am aware that at this moment you think me an idiot."

"Not necessarily. A known weakness thoroughly conquered, sometimes becomes an element of additional strength in human character."

"Be kind enough to hand me the cigars. This is defective; will not smoke."

He leisurely lighted one and resumed: "The last time we dined at Judge Van Zandt's—certainly not more than three months ago—you were all devotion to his second daughter, Clara of the ruby lips, and cedre hair."

"Clara Van Randt—no, thank you! I would not give Regina's pure face and violet eyes for all the other feminine flesh in New York!"

Had his attention been fixed just then upon Mr. Palma, he might have detected the sudden flash in his black eyes, and the nervous clenching of his right hand that rested on the arm of the chair; but the younger man was absorbed by his own emotions, and very soon his cousin rose.

"In future we will not discuss this folly. At present, please recollect that my ward's face has not yet been offered in the matrimonial market; consequently your bid is premature."

The happiest hours Regina had known during her residence in New York, had been spent in the room where she now sat.

A U. S. Consul Shot.

PARIS, June 16.—A baloon ascension drew a large throng in the Place Quincanc, Bordeaux, yesterday. Among the number were George W. Roosevelt, U.S. Consul, and his wife. Suddenly a French soldier aimed a pistol at the American and fired. The bullet passed through Roosevelt's hat, contused his head, and knocked him over. # "MAY DEW"

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubbornly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

THE HALLELUJAH WEDDING.

Two Officers of the Saved Army Married in the Opera House.

An event to which the members of the Saved Army have been looking forward for some time took place on Tuesday evening. It was the "hallelujah" wedding—the uniting in the bonds of matrimony two officers of the Saved Army—which took place in the Opera house.

It would appear that the officers of the Army took a deep interest in the ceremony, as the following were among those on the platform :—General Lindsay, Capt. Munt, Capt. Willis, Lieut. J. Harry Wyatt, Lieut. Geo. Billings, Sergts. Ed. Webb and S. Terrill, Lieuts. Nellie Willis, Annie White, Louise Pearce, Rush, Sarah Hays and Ada Brown, and Messrs. Geo. B. Sproule and W. G. Phillips, delegates.

One novel feature about the wedding was that 25 cents admission was charged all whose desire to witness the ceremony was greater than their fondness for the quarter. There was not a very large attendance present, the number present being about two hundred.

A usual Saved Army service was held before the wedding. After the opening exercises Capt. Munt delivered an address, and a short time was spent in a prayer meeting.

At a quarter after nine o'clock the officers on the stage moved their chairs back and formed a semi-circle. Then the Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A., the officiating clergyman, came on the platform, accompanied by the Rev. W. Bennett and the Rev. J. W. Butcher. A short pause followed—an anxious moment—and then the bride and groom appeared on the platform. They were both dressed in the army uniform. Lieut. Wm. H. Pengelly, the groom, is stationed at Campbellford, and the bride, Lieut. Hattie Abercrombie, has been stationed here for some weeks. They are both from Cobourg and joined the Army at about the same time. The bridesmaid was Corp. Clara Sherwood, and Lieut. Pengelly was supported by Sergt. Ed. Webb. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Torrance, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Butcher, who led in prayer.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a little diversion was caused by the groomsman stepping quickly forward and kissing the bride before the husband did so, an act that appeared to meet with the hearty approval of the audience, as they applauded him loudly.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett then addressed the newly-wedded pair on their duties and responsibilities, which he said they would learn from the Word of God.

The Rev. Mr. Torrance led in prayer. The hymn, "Will You Meet Me at the Fountain?" was sung, followed by the doxology, the Rev. Mr. Bennett pronounced the benediction and the "hallelujah" wedding was over.

Potash.

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with blood or skin diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Shaker Blood Syrup is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merits.

I have cured permanently blood taint in the third generation by the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, after I had most signally failed with mercury and potash.
DR. SMITH, Bangor Pa.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of blood poison by the use of your specific after all other treatment had failed.
J. E. KENNEDY, Druggist, Cobourg, Ont.

For years I was afflicted with dry tetter of the most obstinate type. Was treated by many of the best physicians; took quantities of mercury, potash, and arsenic, which, instead of curing the tetter, crippled me up with mineral poison and rheumatism. The tetter continued to grow worse, and the itching almost made me crazy. In this condition I was induced to take Shaker Blood Syrup, and the result was as astonishing as it was gratifying. In a few months the tetter was entirely well, the mercurial poisoning all out of my system, and I was a well man—and due only to Shaker Blood Syrup. All like sufferers should take it.
C. H. SARGENT, Haverill, Mass.

RIOTING AT MALONE.

Italians on the Central Ontario Strike and Raise Trouble.

The Belleville Ontario says that a serious riot occurred on the Central Ontario Railway near Malone on Monday which at first threatened serious results. About forty Italians have been at work for some time in the gravel pit near the place which is about eight miles from Marmora, and for the last few weeks showed signs of dissatisfaction. Some complained of the low wages they were receiving while others appeared to be anxious to leave their employer to accept a portion in the northwest on the Canada Pacific. As time wore on the navvies became boisterous and refused to work under the foreman. On Monday morning they struck in a body for higher wages and attacked the section men working along the line near the gravel pit. A desperate struggle ensued, the Italians fighting with their shovels and crowbars in their endeavor to drive the other men from their work.

The managers of the road at Trenton were notified of the riot and Mr. D. S. McMullen on behalf of the company sent a despatch to Sheriff Hope at Belleville.

The Sheriff consulted his solicitor and advised the Messrs. McMullens to get two Magistrates to read the Riot Act. Later on the Sheriff received a second despatch calling on him to interfere.

To this the Sheriff replied that if two Magistrates would take the necessary steps he would go out with a posse of police and quiet the riot. He claimed that he would be powerless to act without a warrant.

The proprietors of the railway acting under the advice of their solicitor, Mr. W. H. Ostrom accepted the last message from the Sheriff and immediately proceeded to swear in a large body of men in Trenton to the scene of the riot. The special train with these men on board in charge of Bailiff Cruikshank left early on Tuesday afternoon for Malone, where they succeeded in quieting the riot after considerable trouble. Before they arrived, however, a desperate struggle ensued and many of the men in both gangs were injured.

THE COE LAND GRAB.

Monopolising Land, Minerals and Timber in the County of Peterborough.

Seriously, however, we want no better evidence of the corrupt nature of the transaction than Mr. Coe has been given us. He has, as he confesses, by the connivance of the Ontario Government, secured a monopoly of minerals as well as vast timber reserve, and has, by shutting out all others from obtaining and working mineral deposits, confirmed the railway monopoly which he and his associates had already carefully arranged for.

Are the settlers in North Hastings and Peterborough prepared to submit to this state of affairs? Are the people of Ontario content to allow a greedy and notoriously unscrupulous monopoly to fasten itself upon, and, like a horse-leech, drain the life blood of, so large a portion of our back country? Are they willing that our provincial rules shall sanction and aid in such jobbery? We shall see.—Belleville Intelligencer.

ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary services in connection with the Bible Christian Church were held on Sunday and Monday last. On Sunday the Rev. R. Allen, pastor, occupied the pulpit at the morning, and the Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas at the evening service, both of whom delivered good discourses. The attendance was large. On Monday afternoon the anniversary tea was held. The pastor presided, and addresses were also given by the Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas and by the Rev. J. W. Butcher. The singing by the children was very pleasant. A sumptuous tea was served, and the whole anniversary was very pleasant and successful.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR.—I wish to correct a misstatement in your local news of the 16th June, as to my return home from St. Chatharine's minus one finger. I have not lost a finger, but only received a slight cut and intend returning to the same respected firm at St. Catharines after spending a few holidays at home.

A PROTEST.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—What does the genial hand of the F.F. Gazette mean? His policy carried to its logical conclusion would send him out of the country. He is not a native Canadian by a long shot; and his residence in Canada does not seem to have shaken off East London intolerance and lack of patriotism imbibed in his early days. Now, I am a native of Canada, and my father knows no other land as a residence, but when Canada becomes a foreign country to British emigrants it will also be a foreign country to ANTI-TRAITOR.

THE TORONTO CRICKET CLUB.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—As usually happens on the day preceding a cricket match with the Toronto Club, the secretary received a letter stating that they could not get a team to come. This is the third time the Toronto club have treated the Peterborough team in this way. Some 4 or 5 years ago the Peterborough Club had arranged a week of cricket, and the Toronto Club had arranged to play 2 days in the middle of the week. The first two days matches of the week were played, and at six o'clock the night previous to the days arranged for Toronto they received a telegram from the Toronto Club, saying that as the Governor General was at Oshawa or Bowmanville, a number of the team had gone down to this place, so they could not get a team to come down. This broke up the whole week. Of course it often happens that a team cannot be got to play a match when arranged for, but when it is repeated so often, with such little apparent excuse, it amounts almost to an insult. We would like to play with the best team in the country, but if we have to be treated in this manner the sooner we try some other club the better. In the interests of cricket we hoped for better things from a club of the standing that the Toronto Club is supposed to have.

Yours, etc.,
CRICKET.

A LIBEL.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The Times of this week contains a local item which is evidently aimed at me, and as several of my friends have taken it to refer to me, I wish to contradict through your columns the statements it contains. First, I am not a botch carpenter, as I have worked at that trade nine years, and contractors in Peterborough have accepted my work and paid me the highest wages during the two years I have been in this town. If I could not do better work at my trade than the Times people do on their paper, I would have stopped it and gone breaking stones in the streets long ago. As to my statement that I had been left £15,000 by my grandmother, who died on January 3rd last, I believe it to be strictly true, although, owing to three letters having gone astray, I did not learn of her death until about two weeks ago. The two letters which I have received leave no doubt that the money has been left to me by my aged relative. I do not know why the Times made such a scurrilous and libellous attack upon me. If the Times will have patience for a short time it will find out even to its satisfaction that I have told no untruths, and as to the advice it gratuitously gives, I believe that the girls of Peterborough are well able to take care of themselves, and that, if they did need advice the Times would be the last place they would go for it. Thanking you for the space accorded me in a personal matter, I am

Yours truly,
DANIEL LAING.

Peterborough, June 18, 1884.

UNLICENSED REFORMERS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Last winter came a cry from Toronto that startled the Province. What righteous (?) indignation was manifested by Government and party as it became known that certain individuals were charged with (the presumption) to think that bribery could accomplish certain results. No one advocated a full and impartial investigation more strongly than the REVIEW, believing "right must prevail." We will not stir up that muddy piece of business, but is it not the old cry "our craft is in danger"? Can wrong be wrong in Toronto and right in Peterborough? I am informed there are five places in the East Riding where liquors are sold with impunity by parties not having the necessary license, to say nothing of the amount sold on Sundays. Can the inspector say, he knows nothing of this? In Allandale no license was granted, yet barrels of beer etc., are taken publicly, and the house kept open as usual, and on Monday the 16th inst. a brewery van was driven up to the above mentioned house and after receiving one or more empty barrels the team started off on their own account, not asking permission of their driver. For a while it seemed as if a new process for watering the streets was about to be instituted, for the barrels, both full and empty ones, appeared to enjoy the frolic, and took a lively part in the commotion.

Let those, whom it may concern, be consistent and as they are so determined to put down wrong in the one case do something to rectify the wrong now mentioned, or else acknowledge fairly and openly that, "circumstances alter cases."

The question might be asked, how many of those now selling without license belong to the indignant party.

Yours, etc.,
June 18. X.

PICNIC FARE.

THE Reform leaders, for want of a policy, are still trusting to the effect of picnics upon their despondent followers. And as in some badly organized parties of this kind in social circles, the substantials are omitted while there is a superabundance of whipped cream and such condiments as mustard, pepper and vinegar, so in these political picnics, there is a marked absence of policy and statesmanship, with a nauseous overdose of abuse and slander.

The affair at Bowmanville on Tuesday was no exception to this general rule. There was a large party of picnickers, but they were treated to very poor fare from an intellectual or political point of view. Messrs Anglin Pardee, Patterson and other speakers gave their hearers no new ideas, but dealt almost wholly in stale slanders.

From Mr. Edward Blake, the titular leader of the Reform party, of course even more was expected, and therefore his failure was more conspicuous. His speech was not that of a statesman or even of a first class politician, but rather the effort of an able though unscrupulous advocate relying upon a brief prepared by a dishonest attorney. It was simply a rehash of abuse of the conservative administration of Canada, much of it off refuted slander that even Mr. Blake has not the effrontery to reproduce in his place in the House. For instance he attacked the veto power, and this is how he put it, to take the report of the Globe, which cannot be supposed to do him an injustice :—

"If the Local Legislatures had the right to legislate upon local matters without the impertinent interference of the Ottawa authorities, they were able to judge what was fair and reasonable without the aid of thirteen little gods sitting in the Privy Council Chamber. If the principle of Dominion interference was to be admitted there was not security for Provincial rights."

Now Mr. Blake in the course of his erratic career has been one of the "thirteen little gods," or was it fourteen or fifteen, for it is hard to keep track of his movements. When thus in power, he yielded to no one in the extent of his interference—"impertinent" interference, if he likes—with the legislation of the Provinces, either personally or as a member of the Privy Council. Some acts were disallowed by him and his colleagues, and as to others he suggested amendments or the excision of clauses. In this he was acting within his rights as laid down by our constitution, and Conservatives did not raise a howl against him of usurping authority. Our constitutional safeguard is that the cabinet is responsible to the country for its use of this among other powers, and both the House and the country not having confidence in the administration of Mr. Blake and his colleagues, in this and other matters, dismissed them from office. The Macdonald administration on the other hand, is not only acting constitutionally, but is exercising its powers judiciously in the opinion of a great majority of the representatives of the people of Canada, including a majority of the Ontario members, who are quite able to look after the interests of our Province. Mr. Blake's advice may be very valuable in his own opinion, but the people of Ontario, as of the other Provinces, have relieved him from the office of giving it in such matters.

As another instance of Mr. Blake's misrepresentation in this speech we find that he declared that the terms made with the C.P.R. meant a mortgage of $331,000 on each riding. Mr. Blake very well knows that there is a mortgage, but that it is upon the property of the C.P.R. which will become vested in Canada in case of default. He therefore told a deliberate falsehood to deceive his hearers, and raise an unfounded prejudice against his political opponents, and against our great national road, which is rapidly linking province to province.

Mr. Blake amid such slanders, found no time to give his views upon the new "independence" plank of his protege and personal nominee, Sir Richard Cartwright. It was not in his brief.

THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT.

A clever writer—Mr. Auberon Herbert—has been caustically criticising Mr. Gladstone's foreign policy in the London Times. He declares humourously that when the present Liberal Government ceases to exist the cause of its decease will be an "inveterate, persistent, deep-seated, I had almost said malignant, form of political shabbiness." He proceeds then to review their policy from the year 1881 downwards, and points to the disease from which he asserts they are suffering in every act of their policy ; in the Irish land question ; their use of Parnell ; their treatment of the Boers, etc., and lastly and chiefly in their solution, or rather want of solution of the Egyptian problem. "Our Government," Mr. Herbert goes on to say, "is quite unique as a Government. There never has been, and I do not think there ever will be, a Government to be compared to it. In dealing with other men, you may agree or disagree with them, but you know fairly well how you stand towards each other. There is a sort of common agreement that certain things imply and involve other things, and that a thing is not itself and its opposite at the same moment. But between the Government and the rest of the nation these useful and common-place agreements of civilized life are altogether wanting. Dealing with the Government is like dealing with a savage tribe who at any unexpected moment will declare that two and two make five. Quo nodo teneam ? But there is neither nodus nor nexus. They shatter a country morally and materially, till it lies in ruins at their feet ; and then declare that their only object is to get out of it as quickly as they can. 'Why, then, in the name of omnipotent folly, did you go there?' is the question that rises to the lips of every sane man, and the only answer we can extract is, 'because in our arithmetic, two and two make five.'"

NIAGARA CENTRAL RAILWAY.

ST. CATHARINES, June 16.—The public meeting called to discuss the proposed bonus to the St. Catharines and Niagara Central railway, held in the Village hall, Merritton, Saturday evening was very well attended. Mr. R. Lesson, reeve, occupied the chair. Speeches were made by Dr. Oille, Messrs. Noah Phelps, John McLean, James Keating, Richard Boyle, and L. A. Smyth, and against by Messrs. James Lagan and S. Pettigrew.

The following resolution was carried :—Moved by Noah Phelps, seconded by A. O'Conner, "That having heard the explanations made, this meeting would ask the Village Council to submit a by-law granting the bonus asked for by the St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway Company, provided the manufacturers pay two-thirds of the bonus."

The bonus required from Merritton by the railway company is $900 a year for twenty years to pay interest upon $15,000 of the company's bonds to be applied on the road to Merritton. One mill on the present assesment yields $350, and it is necessary that the mills and factories now paying nothing at all or very little tax, shall be assessed in various sums according to their size to rise $550 necessary to complete the $900.

Mr. Phelps, speaking for the Lincoln paper mills and the N. & O. J. Phelps' establishment, said they agreed with the arrangement, viz., $120 for one and $80 for the other.

Mr. McLean, said his firm would consent for their amount, $30, although not publicly at the meeting. Several of the other factories have signified their consent to the arrangement likewise. The figures for Merritton are on the same scale as those for Thorold.

The Middleton Bank Failure.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—It is stated the Committee of creditors of Middleton & Co. have obtained evidence showing the failure was one of the most disgraceful on record. Properly left for safe keeping, good margins on stocks, charity funds, all the deposits, and in fact everything, has been swept away and used by the firm until it is doubtful whether it will pay one mill on the dollar. It has been openly charged that the Middletons have stolen a large amount of securities. The largest deposit lost was that of the Hutchinson estate, exceeding $115,000, and the next highest was that of a well-known official, amounting to $61,000. A number of civil suits have been instituted, and some of the sufferers were before the grand jury yesterday endeavouring to secure the indictments of the Middletons. Ugly developments are promised.

Canada.

Said Mr. John Reade, in his admirable paper, "The Making of Canada," read before the Royal Society of Canada, at Ottawa, lately : "In extent, Canada is the fourth of the great powers of the world. In population, Canada is in advance of about a dozen independent kingdoms and republics. In public works, shipping, commerce, manufactures, industries, Canada is great, and growing daily greater. It ought to be a pride to take part in any way in the making of such a nation, in the development of its resources, in fostering its literature, science and art. We have great scientific names. We have an academy which has done some creditable work, and, objections notwithstanding, our literature is not devoid of promise. In 1800, when the United States was at our age as a federation and in our stage of growth in population, it had done less in literature than we have done."

Telephone and Telegraph.

"Singular as it may seem," observes the Boston Transcript, "the telephone has been the best friend of the telegraph. Just as the elevated railroads in New York increased street travel, and made the horse railroads more profitable, just as electric light educated the eye to light and largely increased the consumption of gas, and just as the use of the telegraph increased the postal revenues, so the telephone has educated the whole country to a more liberal use of all methods for quick communication, and largely increased the telegraph revenues."

Eno's Extradition.

QUEBEC, June 16.—Judge Caron of the Superior Court decided this afternoon against the application to transfer Jno. C. Eno to the jurisdiction of the Montreal courts for trial with a view to extradition, and dismissed the petition of High Constable Bissonnette, upon whose conduct he passed some severe strictures.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

AN IMPRACTICABLE POLICY.

Notwithstanding the terrible threat of impending woe we resolutely adhere to the opinion that national independence for Canada is not only undesirable, but impracticable.—Ottawa Free Press (Reform).

AN ABLE CRITIC.

One of the most amusing things in the journalism of the day is found in the fact that the London, Ontario, Advertiser, edited by that light and graceful writer, Hon. David Mills, pokes elephantine fun at the "heavy and ponderous style" of the London, England, Times.—Hamilton Spectator.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.

Certain Grit journals are shrieking themselves hoarse over the fact that the Mail received, and published the substance of the circular recently sent out regarding the coming fourth of July celebration. The editor is accused by one paper of having broken open the desk of the gentleman whose name it bears, at Port Hope. Another says it was stolen from the Parliament buildings here. It may interest these people to know that the circular came in the ordinary way, by post, and ostensibly from the signer of it. The Hamilton Spectator also received one. The design probably was to entice the editors of the two papers to the meeting, and to murder them there by forcing them to listen to the proceedings.—Toronto Mail.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

Hon. G. W. Ross rejoices that Mr. Mowat "remains" to battle for the rights of the Province. But he has not remained. Instead of standing by the flag, as he proposed to do, and organizing a force to "take" the territory, he has done precisely what Sir John Macdonald persuaded him to do ten years ago—he has gone to England to argue the case before the highest tribunal. Mr. Ross calls this carrying on the "battle." For no one knows better than he that it is a surrender, an entire change of front on the Boundary question.—Guelph Herald.

FOULING THEIR NEST.

The "Farmer's Convention," which the Free Press and its friends originated and encouraged, put a sudden stopage to the progress made. On hearing that the convention, which the Grit papers of Manitoba and the Eastern Provinces falsely alleged to represent the farmers of Manitoba, had passed a resolution against further immigration and were talking of secession, Lady Cathcart instantly cabled to the office of the C. P. R. in Montreal that she would be unable to make any advances on the land grant of the Southwestern. Mr. Van Horne was subsequently obliged to cancel the order for steel rails, having no money to pay for them. All negotiation since with Lady Cathcart and other capitalists have been unsuccessful.—Winnipeg Times.

ALLANDALE.

From our Own Correspondent.

PERSONAL.—T. Nixon, Esq., Winnipeg, father of Mrs. Dr. Harrison, Keene, occupied the pulpit in Keene Methodist Church on the 15th inst. He delivered an eloquent and instructive address from John iii, 1 and 2.

LOST AND FOUND.—Robert Nelson, a son of Widow Nelson, Otonabee, had been working with his uncle in Emily, and on Friday morning last, after harnessing the team, &c., he disappeared in a most mysterious manner, and grave doubts were entertained for his safety, as an active search failed to find him. However, he turned up again, and their anxiety was relieved.

RUMORED ATTACK.—Dame Rumor says that an attack is to be made on this village during the week by a detachment of the Saved Army from Peterborough. They will find this locality a fine field wherein to marshal their hosts and lead on to victory. Large congregations can be gathered and a commodious hall is on hand for their reception. They are announced to fire the first gun on Wednesday evening.

TEMPERANCE.—The Temple is still moving onwards, and, although it has been in existence but a month, has now 62 members.

OH ! how tired and weak I feel-I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning ? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

Another Victory.

A Startling important discovery was made when, after long and patient experiments, the combination of Nerviline was reached. A grand victory indeed, for the suffering have an ever ready, prompt, efficient, and cheap remedy at hand. Do you know that for 10 cents you can buy a trial bottle of Polson's Nerviline and test its great power over pain of every description ? Polson's Nerviline cures chills, pain in the stomach, side and back, rheumatism ; in fact all pain. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says :—"I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value, we had plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away. I was as bad with bilious fever and indigestion as I think one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be." Free trial bottles at John McKee's drug store.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth ? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the perscription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle."

Truth Bible Competition

NO. ELEVEN.

THE FINAL ONE!

Closing September 15th.

A NEW PLAN.

For Persons Residing Anywhere in the World Outside the City of Toronto.

The Largest List, and Most Valuable Ever Offered by any Publisher.

RESIDENTS OF TORONTO INADMISSABLE.

A SMALL FARM FREE.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER!

Four Pianos, Three Organs, Silver Tea Sets, Sewing Machines, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and Innumerable other Valuable Rewards.

DON'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no change, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1—Where is the first reference in the Bible to the day being divided into hours?

2—What is the superficial area in cubits or square feet of the largest bedstead mentioned in the Bible?

3—What evidence have we that in Bible times women were often employed in the manufacture of bread and sweetmeats?

Everyone competing must send two dollars with their answers, for one year's subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves, they will find that they have made the best investment of two dollars they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for twelve months in any case for your two dollars, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided your answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The further you live from Toronto the better you can compete for these last or consolation rewards. Bear in mind that it is the last correct answer received at the office of Truth that gets number one in these consolation rewards. The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers two dollars for one year's subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaing a valuable reward in addition to Truth, which alone is good value for the two dollars. It consists of 28 pages of choice and pure reading matter for the home circle—something to interest every member of the family. Mr. Wilson, we are sure, could not afford to give these valuable rewards unless he was sure of your patronage in years to come, and we are almost certain you will become life subscribers to Truth if you take it for one year, it is such a splendid weekly (not monthly) magazine.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopædia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the last, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exceeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. Two dollars only required. Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

WORK on the Canada Pacific Railway is in such a forward state of completion that the authorities anticipate giving the members of Parliament an all-rail trip over the Rockies at the end of next session.

GREAT NEGLIGENCE.—There is great neglect with most people to maintain a regular action of the bowels, which causes much disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation.

UNKNOWN TO SCIENCE.—That preparation is undiscovered which can surpass Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a cure for cholera morbus, dysentery and Summer complaints.

IT IS SO PLEASANT.—It is so certain and easy in its action. It invigorates the nerve, brain, and muscle. Zopessa does these things simply by giving active digestion, and regulating the stomach and liver. Ask J. D. Tully.

Why go on day after day suffering with splitting headache when a bottle of Dr. Austin's Phosphatine will cure you? If you do not believe it ask your druggist for a circular, and read what those who have used it say about it. Price $1.

ENJOY THE DAY.—Life is short, don't mope in the morning nor lag at noon. Keep your Liver healthy, your digestion good with Zopessa, and you can meet work with a smile, and your head never aches, your appetite is good, you digestion strong.

THE SADDEST OF SAD SIGHTS.—The grey hairs of age being brought with sorrow to the grave, is now, becoming rarer every year as the use of Clingalese Hair Restorer becomes more general. By its use the scanty locks of age become thick and luxuriant as ever. Sold by J. D. Tully.

The Quickest thing on Record

Is Fluid Lightning for neuralga, headache, toothache, etc. It does not blister or discolor the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or carrying your head in a poultice for two weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from John McKee's druggist.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

An Old Soldier's EXPERIENCE.

"Calvert, Texas,
May 3, 1882.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

"MAY DEW"

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubboraly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The County Council.

The members of the County Council were engaged to-day in Committee work.

To Bible Students.

We direct special attention to the advertisement of Truth Bible Competition given in another column. It is well worth the notice of our readers.

Concert.

The Old Folks Concert under the auspices of the George Street Methodist Church Ladies Aid Society, combined with a Strawberry Festival, will be one of the rare treats of the season. Do not forget it. Its success in Toronto was very great.

Fair, VanEvery & Co.

Dress and Mantle making department in full activity—all orders executed on shortest notice, in most elegant styles—a full range of Henrietta Cloths, Ottoman Cords, Nun's Veilings, Broche Organdies in most beautiful designs and colouring.

Trophies for Oarsmen.

Two sporting gentlemen in town have ordered two cups to be contested for by members of the Boating Club in double sculls. The cups will be handsome ones. The first match for it will probably take place at the regatta on Friday night.

Music in the Park.

The City Band gave a free concert in the Court House Park on Wednesday evening. An electric light had been put in the park, and it furnished good light for the musicians, as well as lighting up the park and making it look fine. The musical programme was a good one.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh winds from south-east and south, fair weather, with local showers or thunderstorms, slightly lower temperature.

The Grand Junction Suit.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, County Solicitor, explained to a committee of the County Council this morning that the suit of the Midland Railway against the County of Peterborough, which was set down for hearing at the June sitting in Toronto, had by arrangement been postponed until the full assizes at Toronto.

To the Public.

I wish to state that I am not an authorized agent for the baby jumper, and the reason I am not, is that I found that I could buy them to better advantage than Gardner was offering them at, viz: $15 per dozen. When I advertised the jumper at $1.65, I had what I considered a legitimate profit, which a person is entitled to. However, I am prepared to meet and beat the lowest price they come to. C. B. ROUTLEY, George street.

Evening Concert.

There was a good attendance at the concert held in St. John's Church school house on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society. The programme presented was a very good one, and the performers acquitted themselves creditably. The piano solos and some of the vocal pieces were rendered in fine style, while others who had not previously appeared in public acquitted themselves fairly and seemed to please the audience. Mr. John Belcher occupied the chair. The piano used was from Heintzmann & Co., and was loaned by Mr. Hartley.

Bear in Mind the Fact.

The public are requested to remember—make make a note of it in your diary—that three excursions will positively be run by the Fire Brigade and Band on Dominion Day, to Faucher's new summer resort, at Hale's Bridge. Those who attend will be served with hot water, kettles, etc., and dinners will be furnished at the hotel. Hold yourself disengaged for this date, and take your wife, sisters, cousins and aunts, to the most enjoyable pic-nic and excursion of the season. The trip will be beneficial to your health.

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

THURSDAY, June 19.—John Miller was charged by Constable Pidgeon with having been drunk in a public place. He expressed sorrow. "Where do you come from?" asked the Magistrate. "I belong to Scotland," the prisoner answered. I am sure Scotland must be proud of you," remarked the Magistrate, "the education you receive in Scotland should have taught you better things than this." However, the prisoner urged the first offence plea, and was allowed to go.

To the Ladies.

Don't fail to visit the "Golden Lion" for superb millinery, every table filled with most exquisite designs in Hats, Bonnets, Ostrich Feathers, Ribbons, etc., in every shade and pattern.

The Juniors of the Norwood Club have sent an invitation to the Cretes to play a match in Norwood on Tuesday next. The Cretes will decide at a meeting on Friday night whether they will accept it.

Recovered.

We are sure that all who know Mrs. Charles Robinson will be glad to know that she is able to be out again after a very protracted and dangerous illness, under the usually successful treatment of Dr. George Burnham.

Postponed.

The cricket match which was to have taken place to-morrow between the Peterborough and Toronto Clubs has been postponed, as the Toronto players are unable to get a team for that day. The match will take place at a later date.

Relics of the Past.

While a trench was being dug on George street, in front of Mr. H. Best's, for a water service pipe, an old sidewalk was struck, buried about five feet in the ground. It was a plank walk, laid on two round poles, and must have been there many years.

The case occupied that afternoon and all day on Wednesday. About thirty witnesses were examined. Mr. C. A. Weller, appeared for Mr. Edwards, and Mr. Hector Cameron, Q.C., for the Railway. The decision was reserved.

MANAGEMENT OF A LAWN.

It must be recollected that in the keeping of a lawn in good condition it is of the utmost importance to remember that grasses and clovers require for their well doing a highly nourishing soil. It matters not how good the soil may be in the first instance, if we cut and carry we labor constantly to impoverish the top crust. In every barrowful of grass removed there will be a certain quantity of alkalies, phosphates, and other constituents of vegetation abstracted from the soil. To be always taking off and putting nothing on must result in the starvation of the grass, and we shall find that as the grasses and clovers disappear through the exhaustion of the soil, daisies, plantains, knot-grass, self-heal, and other weeds will take their place. The simple remedy for this state of things is manuring, and the best mode of manuring is to scatter over the turf a succession of thin dressings of guano and fine mould mixed together. This should be done in autumn and spring, at times when there is not much traffic on the grass and there is a likelihood of rain to follow. If appearances are of no consequence in the later autumn or in the early spring months, a good coat of half rotten manure may be spread over the turf, but this process cannot be recommended for general adoption. In place of guano, nitrate of soda or nitrate of potash may be employed, being first mixed with fine earth or sand, and then scattered at a rate of one pound of nitrate to every square yard. A cheap and most serviceable dressing for old lawns may be occasionally obtained in districts where building works are in progress, the rubbish should be screened, to separate from it the dust of old mortar, plaster and broken brick to the size of walnuts at the utmost. This may be spread thinly two or three times in autumn and spring and will greatly benefit the texture and density of the turf. The mowing machine has no doubt already been set to work on many lawns. If the grass be kept rather low now the cutting will be more lightly and neatly performed through the remainder of the season. The edges to beds, and indeed any narrow strips of turf used as boundary lines, require to be heavily beaten down or rolled before being cut at the sides with the edging iron, otherwise the walk or border will become gradually widened, but not improved, at the expense of the turf, and turf edges should never be cut down without the use of a line, properly pegged into position, as by no other means can the work be done regularly or neatly. For the rest of the season the weekly use of edging shears is necessary for keeping grass edges neat.—Land and Water.

Cricket in England.

The week composed of the last few days of May and the beginning of June was a highly important one to cricketers in England. Some of the most interesting matches of the season were played off or were in process of completion at the date of despatch of the British mails Amongst them were the Gentlemen of England vs. the Australians; the Australians vs. Derbyshire; North vs. South; Cambridge University vs. Gentlemen of England; Nottinghamshire vs. Surrey; Yorkshire vs. Kent; Sussex vs. Hampshire; Marylebone Club and Ground vs. Leicestershire; and Philadelphians vs. Dublin University.

Of these naturally the greatest interest attaches to the first mentioned. The telegraph has already told us its results, viz., a victory for the English by four wickets. The defeated team, however, soon had their turn of fortune and at Derby, as was generally expected, gained a very easy victory over the Derbyshire county eleven, whom they defeated by an innings and 40 runs. The scores in this match were:—Australians, 273; Derbyshire, 106 and 127. The former made some high scores—only two players making less than double figures. Palmer, the bowler, added 57, not out, to the total. North and south ended in a victory for the latter by 66 runs. Nothing sensational happened and Dr. Grace did not particularly distinguish himself. Yorkshire defeated Kent by eight wickets, and Sussex Hampshire by the same number. Leicestershire proved herself superior to the eleven of the M.C.C. pitted against them by four wickets.

Pencil Points.

—One tramp in the cells last night.

—A fall of hail in town on Thursday afternoon.

—There was a blank in the Police Court this afternoon.

—The Saved Army Picnic at Idyl Wild took place to-day.

—The Field Battery will have a drill in uniform at the drill shed to-night.

—The Boating Club regatta takes place on the Little Lake at 6.30 o'clock this evening.

—The medical practitioners have been furnished with blanks with which to give notice to the medical health officer of cases of contagious diseases.

—On this day Her Majesty Queen Victoria has reigned over the United Kingdom for forty-seven years, a length of time which has been exceeded by three of the Kings of England only, viz.: Henry III., who reigned 56 years; Edward III., whose reign reached 50 years; and George III., whose reign lasted for nearly 60 years. Her Majesty is also the oldest reigning European monarch with three exceptions—the Emperor of Germany, who is 87 years of age; the King of the Netherlands, 67; and the King of Denmark, 66.

Dwelling and Stables Burned.

The dwelling house on Hunter street, occupied by Mr. L. F. Carpenter and owned by Dr. O'Sullivan, and the stable connected with it, was burned early this morning. The stable and sheds of a house on Brock street, belonging to the Hatten estate, were also burned. The fire was discovered at about four o'clock and the fire alarm sounded. The hose was attached to a waterworks hydrant, but as the house was out of the district covered by the hydrants, it was changed and put on the fire engine. Mr. Mehar's horse was in the Hatten estate stable, and Mr. W. J. Green, in his efforts to rescue it and the harness, was burned slightly about the back of his neck and ears. However, he saved the horse, although Mr. Mehar's harness and other articles were burned. Mr. Carpenter's furniture was about all got out of the house. His horse was at some other stable that night, and he lost a little in the stable. He says that he had 10,000 apple seedlings for grafting in the cellar, packed in sand, and 4,000 apple scions, besides tools, which (he states) were burned and were worth $500; no insurance. Dr. O'Sullivan's buildings were a total loss and were not insured. There was $100 insurance on the Hatten estate stable and sheds. The fire originated in a stable occupied by Mr. Carpenter, and is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

A CHALLENGE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—On behalf of the "Peterborough" Baseball Club I challenge the "Stars" to a game on Friday, June 27th. If this is not accepted the "Peterboroughs" will claim the championship of the town.

Yours, etc.,
WM. McDOWELL.
Secy P. B. C.

Peterborough, June 26th, 1884.

MILL REFUSE.

To the Editor of the Review:

DEAR SIR,—Will you allow me space in your columns to make a suggestion respecting the duties of the Board of Health. It is in regard to a matter that has been allowed to go on unheeded until at last it has gained such proportions, (as any one that gave it a thought could foresee), that it has depreciated the value of property in the immediate vicinity, and for some distance away, and is impairing the health of our whole town, and this merely to gratify the selfish ends of a few, not more than three or four individuals, I refer to the sawdust nuisance. It is constantly remarked by strangers that a to wnwith the go-ahead propensities of Peterborough should allow the finest natural feature about it to be thus poluted. Our fine river and lake, which a few years ago was teeming with fish, is now converted into a stench pool and fever bed. Some may doubt that such a state of things exists, but to satisfy themselves they have only to take a walk on an evening any where in the vicinity of the river or lake, and he will find such a sickening smell of gas from rotting sawdust and mill refuse, that he will seek some other walk. Instead of having some pleasant place to resort to beside the water we are repelled away. If the Board of Health will see that this abominable nuisance is done away with, and kept so, I am sure they will be performing a most important duty and will receive the thanks of the citizens of Peterborough for generations to come.

Yours truly,
OTONABEE.

Peterborough, June 18th, 1884.

GARDEN AND FARM WORK FOR JULY.

Advance.
Keep a record.
Tar sheep's noses.
Take your holiday.
Work for success.
Weed out poor hens.
Drink little ice-water.
Observe rigid cleanliness.
Insure the farm buildings.
Hot weather favors vermin.
A pig loves a run in the clover.
Late cabbages require rich soil.
Buckwheat mellows cloddy lands.
Give a frequent change of pasture.
Unclean stables breed bad disorders.
A hundred-day pig may be very profitable.
Pure drinking water is of the first value.
Muzzle the horse when the corn gets large.
Harvest the wheat in the "doughy" state.
Timber cut in mid-summer is most durable.
Improve the live stock through better males.
Protect the work horses from flies with sheets.
Ripe, woody, late cut grass does not make good hay.
Sheep need shade and shelter, as well as food and water.
Top-dress newly mown meadows with fine manure.
Cultivating the corn prepares the soil for future crops.
Poor layers and bad mothers should go to the block.
Salt the stock once a week; not necessarily on Sunday.
Dry earth makes a good bedding for cattle in mid-summer.
Cut millet or Hungarian grass before the seed gets ripe.
Give work horses frequent and small drinks of cold, pure water.
Flat turnips sown now, will yield excellent food for sheep in late autumn.
Sow buckwheat for second crop, or to fill out where another has failed.
Place a wet cloth in the crown of the straw hat; it may prevent sun-stroke.
Superphosphate is a most acceptable fertilizer for ruta bagas sown this month.
Manure begins to draw interest as soon as spread, payable at the next harvest.
Select a portion of the cornfield for seed, and give it extra attention. Breed up the corn.
Repeated sowings of fodder-corn make a continuous supply of green feed at the close of the growing season.
The root crop has superseded the summer fallow in the rotation, and the use of the land is no longer lost for a whole year.
Horses as well as boys enjoy an evening bath. They are profited by it if lasting only a few minutes, and they are subsequently well dried. —American Agriculturalist.

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75c. we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility disordered blood, weak constitution, headache or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor and McDonald.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

THE VERDICT OF HALF THE WORLD.—The entire western Hemisphere pronounce Murray & Lanman's Florida Water the most delicious perfume for the boudoir, the ball room and the bath, that chemistry has yet succeeded in extracting from living flowers.

"LOTS OF MONEY."

MR. Pardee in addressing the picnickers at Bowmanville, informed them that "the people of this country owe a debt of gratitude to Messrs. McKim, Balfour, Dowling and Cascaden, who had done more to put down bribery and corruption than all the Election Courts held since confederation." Why did not Mr. Pardee in quoting his London friend add the information that the bribery and corruption was to be put down by means of "lots of money"? As is natural with his kind, Mr. Pardee does not like the law courts, and more than once has helped by iniquitous legislation to prevent the court from punishing bribery and corruption.

CONDEMNATION.

WE are told that Mr. Blake and his lieutenants have been emphatically condemning the administration of the Dominion. We may remark that the same gentlemen have been heard to utter condemnation before now, and that having once deluded the people of Canada into giving them a trial on the strength of such mere protests, it was found that they were so far from affording any improvement that they had speedily to be dismissed again from the position to which they had attained by false pretences. Abuse may raise a cheer at pic-nics, but the people of Canada require, not condemnation of others, but some definite and improved policy of their own from aspirants for power.

THE NEW LOAN.

THE people of Canada must be gratified to learn that the new loan placed upon the London market by Sir L. Tilley has been taken up readily at a higher rate than we have ever obtained before. This, and the fact that bids were made for three million dollars more than we required, proved how thoroughly the credit of Canada has been established under the present administration, affording a strong contrast to the regime of Messrs. Mackenzie, Blake and Cartwright, with their reign of deficits.

Of course the Globe does not participate in the general satisfaction. Forgetful of the history of its own friends, it complains that the operation was not even more successful. It asks "Why have not Canadian three and a half per cents sold for as much as United States three per cents?" One reason is that they have not in the United States a Globe to cry down the country and its credit, in season and out of season, but especially when a loan is to be raised. They have not a Mr. Blake or a Sir Richard Cartwright to choose the eve of a loan for fulminations against the country, the people, their chosen representatives, and their deliberately adopted policy. Our neighbours are not lacking in bitter political strife, but those who are out of power do not persistently try to ruin the country if they are not allowed to rule it.

A Changed Globe.

The Globe used to teach its readers to believe that Confederation was a success; now, under the new regime, Confederation is pronounced a failure. The Globe used to tell its readers that the men who attached the Senate were "constitution mongers" and "lilliputian statesmen," to-day the cry of the Globe is, "The Senate must go," and its members are almost daily insulted in the organ's columns. The Globe used to be par excellence a British connection champion; to-day it says it agrees with Sir Richard Cartwright that the time has come when Canadians should begin to prepare for independence. On other questions the Globe of to-day is endeavouring to undo the work accomplished by the Globe of the past. Well may staunch old Reformers ask, "Whither would the Globe lead us?"—Ottawa Citizen.

BELLEVILLE.

ATTEMPTED INCENDIARISM.—An attempt was made on Tuesday morning to fire the Albion hotel, Front street, by placing pieces of sliver-pine in the cellar against a pile of wood and setting fire to it. The dampness of the wood alone prevented an extensive fire. A heavy smoke arose, which caused the discovery of the incendiary's attempt.

DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A BARE (BEAR) HUNT.—A few evenings since some of Messrs. Rathbun's men, who are camped near the Three Islands above Lakefield, saw a large bear with a cub, which information was conveyed to some of our village sports, and a campaign against Bruin was planned by a well-known official, whose forte is fish, but who can take a turn with the rifle when occasion requires. Next came a sporting landlord, who agreed to provide the eatables and drinkables for the occasion, while another official provided the dogs. Several others went to make up the party, who wended their way the next morning to where the bears had been seen, each anxious to be in at the death. Arrived at the spot, the man with the dogs, assisted by the landlord, was detailed to rout the game out of the swamp, while others were stationed at different points to welcome Bruin when he emerged from his or her hiding place, the leader of the party taking a post near the lake, as, with a keen eye to business, he could look for fish and flesh at the same time. It was a sweltering hot day, away up in the nineties. Our two friends in the swamp found it like an oven, and the flies were in clouds. Two hours later they returned, torn, ragged, tired and hot, to find that the eatables and drinkables had vanished, and the rest of the party enjoying a nap in the shade on the river banks. To say they were disgusted is no name to express their feelings, in fact so bad did the landlord feel we could not express himself in English but gave vent to his wrath in his native tongue. The disgust of the party was however to receive a finishing stroke on the homeward tramp by leaving the supposed bears was a thoroughbred Berkshire owned by a well known stock raiser on whose property they had been trespassing. The party have all turned jews since.

CRICKET.—Campbellford defeated Lakefield at a game of Cricket here on Tuesday by one run.

A SERIES OF RUNAWAYS.

There has been a number of runaways lately, Mr. J. R. Rodger's horse ran away and demolished his buggy. Mr. A. Fairbairn's team and Mr. W. McKibbon horses also bolted. Henry Bickel's horse ran off at Selwyn, and his cousin, J. R. Bickel, who was in the buggy with him was pretty badly hurt.

LEGAL.

Mr. John Crickmore, barrister, etc., formerly of Toronto, has removed to our village, where he will carry on the practice of his profession. He has purchased the residence of Mr. Robert A. Strickland.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE BUCKHORN ROAD.—It is rumored that our southern neighbors have extended their small-souled generosity to us by appropriating the sum of twenty dollars towards repairing the above-mentioned road. We have enough mud to wade through during the wet season, so do not throw any more clay (such as would cover $20) upon the road to make it worse. The Smith Council is requested to consider the good will of the Harvey people as being to their interests, leaving out of question the danger of acting too scrupulously.

CROPS.—Nature has favored us again, during the last week we were visited by dull cold days and frosty nights. Still the crops have weathered it well, and now with bright warm days, everything is growing steadily and rapidly. The fruits were mostly damaged.

THE CHEESE FACTORY.—Business in our factory is progressing well under the able management of Mr. Moore and our industrious cheesemaker Mr. Thompson. Double the amount of cheese is now made than at first and we feel confident that success lies within our reach. Let "Never say fail" be our motto in this, as in other transactions.

PASTORAL CHANGES.—We regret to learn that our worthy pastor Mr. Charles Deeprose, is about taking his departure from our midst. In acknowledgement of his services rendered to us, we state we lose in him a genial friend and a zealous pastor. Wishing him God's blessing on his labors, in the new field appointed for him, we at the same time welcome our new minister with a cordial greeting.

ONLY A DELUSION.—A short time ago as one of our residents was returning home from the Post Office he was led to give himself and others of his neighbors a great deal of unnecessary alarm. He was walking along the road engaging his mind, no doubt, either with memories of the past or presentiments of the future; when his attention was arrested by a noise in the bushes, and looking in that direction, he beheld a large black object moving lazily along; followed by two smaller objects. With the quick discernment which is supposed to be due, only to a backwoodsman, he concluded it was a bear with cubs. He hastened back to the nearest neighbor's house, aroused the inmates, and requested them to assist him in killing old mother Bruin. A regular panic prevailed. One seized the axe another procured a gun, and the third laid hold on a large club. They hastened to spot, each one eager to assert his dislike on the mother and her family. Arriving on the place, what was their dismay when they found a black cow grazing quietly on the spot where our friends imagination was confirmed. If the people of Smith will persist in bringing their cattle here, let them be advised to keep the darkies at home.

A Hard Working Mill.

—The Au Sable Salt and Lumber Company's mill at Au Sable is doing a better business this year than ever before, notwithstanding the record it has made in former years as the John C. Graw mill. Its average cut per week is 1,000,000 feet, and one day last week it astonished everybody by cutting 250,000 feet. The mill has an ample stock of logs and will make, if its customary good luck abides with it, a notable successful season in 1884.

FOR constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh, and for consumption induced by the scrofulous taint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

CHAPTER XVII—CONTINUED.

In an old-fashioned maplewood rocking chair, sat Mrs. Mason, with her wasted and almost transparent hands resting on her open Bible. Her face which in early years had boasted of unusual comeliness, bore traces of severe sorrows meekly borne.

On the Bible lay her spectacles, and upon the third finger of her left hand was a gold ring, worn so thin that it was a mere glittering thread.

Near her sat Regina, playing with a large white and yellow cat that now and then sprang to catch a spray of lemon-scented geranium, which was swung teasingly just beyond the reach of her velvet paws.

"I am glad, my dear, to hear you speak so kindly of the members of your guardian's family. I have never yet seen that person who has not some redeeming trait. Many years ago I knew Louise Neville very well. She was then the handsome happy bride of a young naval officer, who was soon after drowned in the bay of Biscay;—before the birth of their only child—Olga. At first Louise seemed heart-broken by the loss of her husband, but not more than two years afterward, she married Mr. Godwin Palma, who was reputed very wealthy. I have not seen her since Olga was a child, but have heard that her second husband was an exceedingly stern, exacting man; treating her with far less tenderness than she received from poor Leo Neville, who was certainly very fond of her. Mr. Godwin Palma died suddenly one day, while riding down in his carriage to his office on Wall Street, but he made a will only a few weeks previous, in which he bequeathed all his fortune—except a small annuity to Louise—to his son Erle, whose own mother had possessed a handsome estate. Louise contested the will but the court sustained it; and I have heard that Mr. Erle Palma has always treated her with marked kindness and respect, and he provides liberally for her and Olga. Louise is a proud ambitious woman, fond of pomp and splendour; but in those tastes she was educated, and I always liked her, valued her kindness of heart, and strict integrity of purpose."

"You do not know my guardian?"

"I never met him till the day he brought you first to see me, and I was surprised to find him so comparatively young a man, for he is rapidly building up a very enviable reputation in his profession. Regina, I had a letter from Elsie Lindsay, since you were here. She sends kindest messages of love to you, and says you must not allow new friends to supplant old ones. She mentioned also that the climate of India did not seem very desirable for Douglass, who had been quite sick more than once, since his settlement in Rohilcund. I am glad that Elise has gone to Douglass, for his father died of consumption, and I always feared he might have inherited the tendency, though his constitution seems tolerably good."

Dropping the fragrant geranium sprig that so tormented the cat, the girl's fingers interlaced tightly, and she asked almost under her breath:

"Is Mr. Lindsay's health seriously impaired?"

"I hope not. Elise merely said that he had had two severe attacks of pneumonia, and it rendered her anxious. No man of his age ranks higher in the ministry than Douglass Lindsay, and as an oriental scholar, I am told that he has few equals in this country. His death would be a great loss to his church, and——"

"Oh, do not speak of it! How can you? It would kill his mother," cried Regina, passionately, clasping her hands across her eyes, as if to shut out some horrible vision.

"Let us pray God to mercifully avert such a heavy blow. But, my dear, keep this in mind—with terrible bereavement comes the strength to bear it.

Looking reverently up at her pale, worn, placid face, the girl thought it might have been considered a psalm of Renunciation. Almost sorrowfully she answered:

"I begin to see that there is far more shadow than sunshine in this world; the night is longer than the day."

"You are too young to realize such solemn things, and should endeavor to catch all the dew of life that glistens within your reach, for the withering heat of the noon will come soon enough, to even the most favored. Innocent happiness in our hearts is acceptable worship to our God, who has given us the language of joy as He gave to birds the power of song."

"Mrs. Mason, I wish to consult you on a subject that has given me some anxiety. Would you approve of my attending the theatre and opera? I have never yet gone, because I think neither Mr. Hargrove nor Mr. Lindsay would have advised me to do so, and I am perplexed about the matter, for Mr. Palma says that next winter he shall insist on my seeing the best plays and operas. What do you think I ought to do?"

"If you were a member of any church which expressly prohibited such amusements, I should say, do not infringe the rules which you voluntarily promised to respect and obey; but, as yet you have taken no ecclesiastical vows. I think that in matters you mention you may safely defer to your guardian's wishes, bearing always in mind this fact, that he professes no religious faith; and praying God's Holy Spirit to guide and keep your heart faithful and pure."

Regina longed to ask something more explicit concerning the stage, but the thought of her mother peremptorily forbade a discussion, that seemed to imply censure of her profession.

"There is the bell for service. Are you not going to church this afternoon?"

"No, dear, I am not very well, and besides I promised to stay at home and see a poor old friend who is in great affliction. You are not afraid to go alone?"

"Not afraid, Mrs. Mason, still I wish you could go with me. Good-bye."

She bent her head, so that the faded placid lips could kiss her cheek, and went out into the quiet street.

Instead of turning homeward, she hastened in an opposite direction, toward a small brick church. Walking more slowly as she approached the building, she had not yet reached it, when steps which she had heard behind her for several minutes, paused at her side.

"Regina, is this the way home?"

"Good evening, Mr. Palma. I am going to church.,'

"Are you in the habit of coming here alone? If so, your visits to this neighbourhood must cease."

"Mrs. Mason has always accompanied me until this afternoon."

"I prefer you should not attend strange churches, without a companion."

She looked up, saw a few persons ascending the broad steps, and her soul rose in rebellion.

"What possible harm can overtake me in God's house."

"Do you not consider obedience to my wishes part of your duty?"

"Sometimes, sir; but not when it conflicts with my conscience."

"What is conscience?"

"The feeling that God put into my soul when He gave it to me, to teach me right from wrong."

"Is it? And if you were a Calmuck or a Mongol, it would teach you to reverence Shigemooni as the highest god."

"You mean that conscience is merely education? Even if it should be so, which is not true, I think; the Bible says, 'the heathen are a law unto themselves,' and God knows they worship the best they can find, until revelation shows them their error."

"Is your eternal salvation dependent on church going?"

"I don't know—I rather think not; because if it were impossible for me to attend service, the Lord would know it, and He only requires what he makes possible. But at least you must admit it cannot harm me, and I enjoy coming to this church more than any I have seen since I left our own dear old one at V——"

"It is a small, very plain affair, in no respect comparable to St. Thomas' Church, where Mrs. Palma takes you every Sunday morning. Were you not there to-day?"

"Yes, sir—but—"

"But what? Speak out."

"Perhaps I ought not to say so; and it may be partly my fault, but indeed there seems to me more religion in this plain little chapel—at least it does me more good to come here."

"For instance, it incites and helps you to defy your guardian, on the street?"

Until now she had resolutely kept her face set churchward, but as he uttered the last words in a severer tone than he often used in conversation with her, she turned quite around, and retraced her steps.

Walking beside her, he could only see the long, soft lashes of her downcast eyes, and the firm compression of her mouth.

"Little girl, are you very angry?"

She looked up quickly into his brilliant smiling eyes, and her cheek dimpled.

"Mr. Palma, I wanted so very much to go, and I do feel disappointed; but not angry."

"Then why do you not ask me to go with you?"

"You go there? Is it possible that you would ever do such a thing? Really, would you go, sir?"

"Try me."

"Please Mr. Palma—go with me."

He raised his hat, bowed and said:

"I will."

"Oh, thank you."

They turned and walked back in silence until they reached the door, and he asked:

"Are the pews free?"

"Yes sir, but Mrs. Mason and I generally sit yonder by that column."

"Very well, you must pilot me."

She turned into the side aisle next the windows, and they seated themselves in a pew just beyond the projection of the choir gallery.

EARLY LAMBS.

When a farmer can get $3.50 and $4.50 a piece for lambs six weeks and two months old, there is no ground for complaint that sheep raising does not pay. Indeed there is no branch of farming that will pay equal profits. What can be turned into money in so short a space of time as early lambs? Nothing. The period of gestation in a sheep is only about 144 days, and counting an average sheep to be worth as high as $9 in the fall, we have this amount of capital producing in 204 days (counting 60 days for the growth of the lamb) $3.50 and $4.50, and in the majority of cases the ewe brings forth twins, and in this case we have $7 and $9 respectively interest on $9 original capital or outlay, ranging from 70 per cent. per annum to 170 per cent. There is nothing Utopian in this calculation, and nothing but what comes under the daily experience of our wide awake farmers.

Of course there is the keep of the sheep to be considered,—but then there is the wool which even at 18 cents, and the manure, would go a long way towards balancing this. Yet with arguments so clear and demonstrative you cannot convince a large portion of farmers but they are losing money by keeping sheep just because wool is cheap. You don't want to raise them for wool; the profit now is essentially for the mutton, and on this account flock-masters will find their profit. It is the most absurd idea in the world to imagine sheep do not pay because their wool is not high. The ratio of wool to mutton on an average animal would be as 1 to 8;—that is, there would be 8 pounds of meat to dispose of, and only 1 pound of wool; so it can easily be seen that the profit is on the former and not the later. It would be all very well if we could get high priced wool with dear mutton, but such a thing is not obtainable, for wool is a drug in all the markets of the world. Not only will early matured lambs be in keen demand in our own markets, but for exportation forward lambs will always be in keen demand to supply the large commercial cities on this side of the Atlantic. To have early lambs, say in this latitude, would require more comfortable buildings, and more systematic feeding and supervision of the flock. Too many sheep are allowed to take care of themselves during the lambing season, and the result is dead lambs lying around the yards and fields. Some one should be in attendance in the sheep fold day and night during the lambing season; and it will always pay for the extra help.

Besides all this proper attention in housing and feeding, the breed best adapted to producing early maturing lambs of a good quality should be studied. Early maturing is where profitable sheep raising comes in; if a farmer can breed an animal which at two or three months, in the spring time will sell for as much as an old sheep, or a matured lamb in the fall, he gains three and four months feeding and has the use of the money besides.

For lambs that come to maturity early, and that are hardy and produce a first-class quality of meat there are no breeds which excel the Down class. The ewes are excellent mothers, giving a rich and abundant flow of milk, and the young are ready for the shambles in a short space of time. The Shropshires, for a medium wool and for good mutton and early development, have no superiors, and bred to common stock, or even with Lincolns or Cotswolds, would make a good first cross and improve the offspring in early maturity. That spring lamb is a luxury for which the public are willing to pay anything, needs no confirmation outside of our own market, where it sells for 20 cents a pound, and this should be sufficient incentive to farmers to stimulate them to raise more early lambs. But the question of profitable farming resolves itself into this—that no branch of rural industry should be looked upon as furnishing wholly and solely all the profits. Every department should contribute its quota. A farmer should not look upon the garnering of his grain as the only harvest he has. Harvest in the strict sense of the term should be all the year round. A farmer who judiciously varies his crops and products, should be sowing and reaping—taking in money during all seasons;—that is, if he practices a mixed husbandry. If a man sells 50 spring lambs at $4.20 a piece he as assuredly harvests $225 as if he had sold 225 bushels of wheat at $1 a bushel.—London Free Press.

A Hint to the Council.

Yesterday we gave some information as to the looking up of large quantities of the Crown lands in this County by the applications of Mr. Coe and his allies. It would not be amiss if our County Council, now in session, were to memorialize the Crown Lands Department to send to our County authorities a return of all the land for which applications have been made, so that intending settlers may not be discouraged by wasting their time, and that it may be known who, by good rights, should be paying taxes, thus sharing the burden of the present settlers.

As the Club has been rather dilatory of late in practising, it is now for them to do so if they wish to maintain their reputation, and in consequence of this the first twelve will play the team that are playing in Norwood today, both teams turning out in full uniform, on Monday evening next, at 6.30.

CHEMONG LAKE PARK.

THE ANNUAL MIDWAY PICNIC HELD ON THESE GROUNDS.

Under the Auspices of the Ennismore Church—A Large Attendance—A Base Ball Match, Athletic Sports and Dancing

The annual pic-nic held under the auspices of the Ennismore Roman Catholic Church—known as the Rev. Father Keilty's pic-nic—was held on Thursday, June 19th, at Chemong Lake Park.

THE ATTENDANCE

was large. Early in the forenoon people, in search of enjoyment, begin to arrive, and vehicles of all kinds, single and double carriages and omnibuses, continued to arrive well laden with pic-nickers until well on in the afternoon. A large number of people went out from the town, and the number at the park must have been very large.

The park is now so well known that little need be said about it. The situation is a pleasant one, being on the shores of Chemong Lake, and the grove is large, while there is a large open space suitable for sports.

During the forenoon, as, indeed, during the whole day, the chief amusement was

DANCING.

A platform had been erected for this purpose, and as soon as one set left the platform another was ready to go on. The music for the dance was furnished by Messrs. F. Clerk, J. Butcher and J. Martin, and Mr. S. Martyn was master of ceremonies. Despite the warm weather, this amusement appeared to be thoroughly enjoyed.

A SPLENDID REPAST.

At 12 o'clock a sumptuous dinner was served by the ladies of the congregation of the Ennismore church. The table was well supplied, and the ladies were indefatigable in the attention to those who sat down at the table, exerting themselves to see that no one was neglected.

BASE BALL.

At about half past two o'clock the base ball match took place, the prize being a handsome ball offered by Father Keilty. The teams were chosen from members of the Silver Star club, of Peterborough. One team was captained by Mr. E. Sailsbury and the other by Mr. J. Lynch. The teams were composed as follows:—First team, E. Sailsbury, W. Lannin, Joseph Henderson, Jas. Craig, Jos. Armstrong, A. Elliott, W. Logan, H. Alford and W. Marks. Second team, J. Lynch, W. Metheral, Jas. Menzies, W. T. Spencer. W. Breakenridge, A. A. Moore, W. Watson, H. Robertson, J. Bell. Umpire, J. Callaghan; scorer, Jos. Mills.

The play was very good, and attracted a great deal of attention from the crowd. The weather was very warm, and at the end of five innings play terminated, the score being as follows:—

Sailsbury's team—2, 3, 6, 0, 1—12.
Lynch's team—0, 2, 1, 0, 2—5.

The team captained by Mr. Sailsbury thus won the match, and the ball, by 7 runs.

SPORTS.

The committee then called for entries for the sporting events. The weather was so warm, and the pleasure of sauntering through the park so great, that a deep interest was not taken in these events.

The judges were Messrs. Alex. Elliott and E. Brown, of Peterborough. The first event on the programme of sports was the 100 YARDS RACE—Entries, A. Elliott, W. Logan, John Reynolds and A. Moore. A close race, but Reynolds won first prize and Moore second.

THROWING LIGHT WEIGHT—For this there were ten entries, and there was a close contest. First prize, S. J. Callaghan, second, J. Clancy.

RUNNING LONG JUMP—Six entries. First prize, S. J. Callaghan, second, J. Callaghan.

RUNNING HOP, STEP AND JUMP—Five entries. First prize, S. J. Callaghan, second John Blanco.

The remainder of the events on this part of the day's programme had to be stopped on account of the rain.

DANCING

Among the events for which prizes were offered were dancing the Irish jig and the clog dance. There were several entries for each. The judges were Messrs. J. Callaghan and S. Martin.

IRISH JIG—First prize, Miss Katie Hickey; second, Jas. Wallbrook. Both these prize winners were quite young and danced well. Miss Katie giving a graceful exhibition of the favourite lig.

CLOG DANCE—First prize, Miss Twoley (12 years of age), second, Mr. Carew.

At this point the sports were stopped by a heavy thunder storm. Entries had been made for the boat races, but they had to be postponed. Many persons, who saw the shower approaching, had left the grounds, and there was a general rush for shelter and for home. This occurred at about six o'clock and it concluded the picnic.

The Indian Brass Band was present during the whole day, and enhanced the pleasure of the occasion by their music.

NOTES.

Although the rain storm prevented the committee from carrying out the full list of sports, the picnic was an enjoyable one, as well as largely attended, and the management are to be congratulated on its success.

The picnic was also a sort of bazaar. Young ladies went around the park, soliciting "chances" on various ornamental and useful articles.

There was a temporary photograph gallery on the ground, in a large tent, conducted by Mr. Jos. McClelland, which appeared to be well patronized. The refreshment booths also seemed to be doing a thriving business.

A portion of the musician's platform, raised above the dancing platform, was broken down by people climbing up on it to see the dancers, but no one was injured.

Many persons were on the way home when the rain fell in the evening, and not a few got thoroughly drenched. However, others took refuge in houses and taverns, and escaped.

There was a large number of insurance men from Peterborough on the grounds. It is said that one of them went in bathing with a poor swimmer, and threatened to push him into deep water if he did not give him a risk. The victim promised to do so, and escaped from the water. That agent must be a pushing fellow, and ahead of all the ex-perts in his business.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL

Seasonable Recipes—Suggestions on the Various Methods of Preparing Incoming Fruits—Where to Beat Carpets—

FRIED CUCUMBERS.—Pare them and cut into quarters lengthwise. Dip them in corn meal or wheat flour, sprinkle the slices well with pepper and salt, and fry in boiling lard.

SUGGESTIONS FOR KEEPING PRESERVES.—Put them away in small jars or glasses. If the latter are used, store them in a dark place. Cut out a piece of stout paper, the size of each jar. Slip these over the fruit as soon as it has grown cold. Having reserved a little syrup for the purpose, pour a layer of it on top of the paper, and the fruit will not rise to the top, mould, and spoil.

STRAWBERRY JELLY.—Squeeze the juice from freshly gathered berries, for the slightest tendency to fermentation will spoil the whole process. Then let the juice drip, without squeezing, through a flannel bag. To each pint of this clear juice allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar, which must be unadulterated, if such can possibly be procured. Put this syrup over a briskly burning fire, and let it boil hard just twenty minutes. Stir as little as possible, and only at first, till the sugar is dissolved, and then always with a silver spoon. Do not attempt to make more than three or four pounds of jelly at once, and attention to every little particular direction given is necessary to ensure success. Jellying requires more pains than almost any other process of cooking. Strawberry jelly, when well made, more nearly resembles guava jelly than any other that can be prepared from the fruits of the temperate zone.

NICE RHUBARB TARTS.—As early in the spring as the foot-stalks of the esculent rhubarb have attained length sufficient to be cut, trim off the leaves, wash the stalks, and cut them up into half-inch bits. Do not scrape off the outside skin unless it has grown tough. Take an equal weight of sugar and rhubarb, and let them remain together a few minutes until syrup has formed. Then put them on the fire in a brass or procelain kettle without water. To two pounds allow the juice of one lemon, and also the grated rind (or most tastes). Let the rhubarb stew until very thick, mashing it occasionally as in making jam. If there is too much juice, take out a tea-cupful or more, that the fruit may be as thick, when done as marmalade. Be careful not to let it burn. The most appetizing way to serve it is upon puff paste, ready baked in little patty pans. Fill them with a spoonful of the rhubarb, and lay lay lightly on top of each a bit of pastry baked in the shape of a leaf, or something similar.

STROWBERRY SYRUP AND STRAWBERRY PRESERVES.—One gallon of capped strawberries will weigh six pounds, when gathered fresh and allowed to lie lightly without being mashed. For this quantity take one pound of best white sugar, either granulated or crushed loaf. In a china bowl put a layer of strawberries and a layer of sugar alternately, until all the sugar has been put in. Let them remain so for three or four hours to extract all the juice. Then with a skimmer dip up all the berries, and lay them on a colander to drain without mashing them. When all the juice is drained from them, strain it through a coarse linen towel or piece of flannel. Then measure it, and to every pint of juice and sugar into a stone jar, set the jar into an iron pot of cold water. Set the pot over the fire. Let it boil, stirring it occasionally to dissolve the sugar. Skim the froth off. When all the sugar is dissolved and the froth ceases to rise, take it off, let it cool, put it into bottles cork them tightly, and set them in a cool place.

The syrup makes a delightful flavoring for ice-cream, and with the addition of a little lemon juice or vinegar and water makes an agreeable summer beverage. After all the juice has been drained from the strawberries they will weigh two pounds less than they did at first. Take then their reduced weight in crushed loaf-sugar, and put a layer of the berries and a layer of sugar. Put them in a stone jar, set the jar in a pot of cold water, set it over a brisk fire, and let the fruit boil until perfectly tender and transparent. Stir gently at first so as to dissolve the sugar without breaking the berries. The preserves require more cooking than the syrup. Strawberries preserved by this recipe keep much longer than when prepared in the usual way. If you wish the color of strawberries to be bright, do not let pewter or tin come near them during the process of preserving, for either turn the color dull directly.

CARPET BEATING.—The annual domestic revolution dear to housekeepers, and known by the name of "spring cleaning," has this year, owing to the cruel easterly winds, been defered to an unusually late period. However, during the last few days, to judge from the uproar from carpet beating, etc., arising from every backyard and adjacent mews, the process is now in full swing. We have no wish to decry this periodic purification, but merely to point out rules for its better conduct and efficiency. The usual process in households, which cannot afford to have it carried out by special agency, is first to take up the carpets, and sweep the walls and ceilings, and then to wash the floors. While the latter is drying, work must be found for idle hands, and they cannot be better employed than in beating the carpets in the courtyard or back garden, a work attended with a horrid dis and clouds of dust. It will be unavailing, we know, to complain of the noise—no appeal in this direction will gain a moment's sympathy; but we hope more attention will be paid to the other nuisance. When we reflect on the nature of the dust thus raised, we are surprised that sane persons allow to be thus stirred up under their noses all the nauseous accumulations of dining room, bedroom and stair carpets, to say nothing of door mats, etc., into a fine dust, and which thus dispersed finds its way again into our houses in a form most readily accessible to our respiratory organs. Indeed, it is fortunate if the dust thus roused is only nauseous and not infective, since the desquamated cuticle of scarlet fever, the scabs of small pox, the dried sputa of consumptive or whooping cough patients, living parasites, and hairs from mangy cats and dogs may thus invade our rooms.

Carpet beating, we are aware, is forbidden in public thoroughfares; but it should in any form, be prohibited within a reasonable distance of any dwelling houses; and for those who cannot afford to pay the small sum required to have their carpets and mats properly cleaned, the authorities should set aside some open space, to which on stated days and at certain hours persons might bring their carpets and have them beaten, without causing annoyance or danger to themselves or neighbors.—London, Eng., Lancet.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25cts.

Potash.

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with blood or skin diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Shaker Blood Syrup, is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merits.

I have cured permanently blood taint in the third generation by the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, after I had most signally failed with mercury and potash.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of blood poison by the use of your specific after all other treatment had failed.
J. E. KENNEDY, Druggist,
Cobourg, Ont.

For years I was afflicted with dry tetter of the most obstinate type. Was treated by many of the best physicians; took quantities of mercury, potash, and arsenic, which, instead of curing the tetter, crippled me up with mineral poison and rheumatism. The tetter continued to grow worse, and the itching almost made me crazy. In this condition I was induced to take Shaker Blood Syrup, and the result was as astonishing as it was gratifying. In a few months the tetter was entirely well, the mercurial poisoning all out of my system, and I was a well man—and due only to Shaker Blood Syrup. All like sufferers should take it.
C. H. SARGENT
Haverill, Mass.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to the challenge issued in last night's REVIEW by the Peterborough Baseball Club for the championship of the town, we beg leave to state that owing to the 27th being decoration day it would be impossible for us to play on that date, as several of our players will be engaged that afternoon. We have never laid claim to the championship, and if the Peterboroughs are anxious to be dubbed the champions we are perfectly satisfied under the circumstances to allow them the honor and will challenge them at an early date.

THE REGATTA.

The Double Scull, Paddling and Four-Oared Races.

The second regatta of the season, under the auspices of the Peterborough Boating Club, took place over the mile course on the Little Lake on Friday evening.

There were quite a number of persons present, in boats and on the shore, to witness the contests. The water was in fine condition.

Mr. John McClelland acted as referee and Mr. Alex. Elliott as starter and judge.

FIRST DOUBLE SCULL RACE.

The first event was a heat in the double scull contest, which was rowed by F. Adams and Gus. Lock in one boat and G. Orde and W. Cushen in the other. The latter boat got a lead at the start, but they rowed out of their course, going too far out into the lake, and they lost the lead. Adams and Lock turned the buoy first, and, the others again steering a bad course, they increased their lead and came in ahead.

CANOE RACE.

The next event was one of the best races of the evening, namely, the single canoe race. The following started in it:—J. Weller, Geo. Stephenson (Ashburnham) and A. Stratton, and they kept very close together both on the down course and on the return. Stephenson, however, came in four or five lengths ahead, with Weller second, Stratton when near the winning buoy, had ran against a boat and was stopped a little by it. The race was pluckily paddled and closely contested. Time 8.54.

DOUBLE SCULL AGAIN.

The second heat of the double scull contest was rowed by F. Cox and W. Rutherford in one boat, and M. Cottingham and J. Hawkins in the other. They got a good start and rowed a good race, except that Cottingham and Hawkins rowed too close to the shore and out of their course. The steering of Cox and Rutherford was good, as well as their rowing, and they came in a considerable distance ahead. Time, 6.16½.

FOUR-OARED RACE.

Two crews put in an appearance for the four-oared race, and tossed for boats and positions. They were composed as follows:—First crew, Jas. Dolan, Peter Henry, W. Mathews and V. Eastwood, stroke. Second crew, J. Hawkins, G. Schofield, W. Loch and M. Cottingham, stroke. Cottingham won the toss for boats, and Eastwood won it for positions and took the inside course. They got a good start, but the crew on the inside course crowded the shore too closely at first, going out of the straight course. Both crews rowed well and on the return were very close together, with Cottingham's crew leading. They kept their lead and won by about three lengths. Time, 6.44½.

There was not time to row the deciding heat in the double scull race, as darkness was falling upon the lake, and it was postponed.

The regatta was a very pleasant one, and these events will no doubt increase the interest in rowing and boating in the town.

Sudden Death.

On Friday morning Mr. Wm. Mahony, who who resides in the south part of the town, went out early in the morning with a neighbor. At about 12 o'clock he was seen in a lot, where he was working, at the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets, by a woman who lives near that corner. At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon some boys saw Mr. Mahoney lying in the lot, and thought that he was asleep. They told his son-in-law, Mr. John Dwire, who went to bring him home, but when he arrived at the place he found that the old man was dead. He was conveyed home and Dr. King was sent for, that the physician pronounced life extinct. It is not known what caused death, but it is probably that it was sun stroke, and the weather was very warm.

Anderson, English Church minister, occupied the chair. Suitable addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs James and Anderson, and by Mr. Frank R. Weston on behalf of Mr. Davies.

Thirty Persons Injured by the Fall of a Railway Bridge.

ATCHISON, Kansas, June 19.—As an eastbound passenger train on the Burlington and Missouri river railroad approached Hubbel last night, the rails spread about 60 feet from the approach to a bridge 150 feet long. The engine left the track but crossed the bridge on the ties, jolting the weakened bridge and causing it to fall, carrying down the entire train. The engine, smoking car, day coach, and the sleeper were totally wrecked. Thirty persons were injured. A number of other persons received painful cuts and bruises. An examination of the track indicates that the wreckers drew out the spikes, removed the fish-plates, fastened barbed wire wire in the holes, and pulled the rails apart when the train approached.

SPRINGVILLE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SCHOOL PICNIC.—On Friday, June 20th, the picnic of the pupils and their friends of Smith's School House, a Union School Section between Cavan and Monaghan, was held in Thompson's Grove, about a mile from this village. There was a good attendance, beautiful weather, and general enjoyment. The Bethany Band was in attendance and their admirable music added greatly to the pleasure of those present. A platform had been erected for dancing, and this was well patronized by many a couple, who performed indefatigably under the influence of the inspiriting strains of the Bethany String Band. Others occupied themselves in the games and amusements usual on such occasions. The expected match between the Bethany and Springville Base Ball Clubs did not come off, as the Bethany club, having a match on hand for the next day, did not make its appearance. Determined not to be baulked, the Springville players, with some local devotees of the bat, chose sides, and played a lively and well contested game, Mr. Jas. Baptie acting efficiently as umpire. Then came the hour for enjoying the refreshments, which were abundant and excellent, being supplied by the lady friends of the school. The festivities were prolonged until a late hour, amid general enjoyment. Altogether it must be pronounced a very successful picnic.

CEMETERY FENCE.—The new fence round the Springfield cemetery has now been completed and greatly improves its appearance not only of the burial ground itself but also of the village.

SUDDEN DEATH.—The friends and aquaintances of Mr. Wm. Mahoney, an old resident of this village, were shocked at the news of his very sudden death in your town on Friday, as he was supposed to be a man of robust health.

FLOWER GARDEN AND LAWN.

When the grass is growing rapidly, it may be mown frequently; on the other hand, if a drouth checks the growth, the grass may be injured by using the mower too often. Large weeds should not be allowed to get established; take up docks, plantains, etc., as soon as discovered. An old thin chisel fixed to a handle, makes an excellent "spud" to aid in uprooting large weeds. Beds planted in Ribbon Style, need care, and if plants in the different lines run into one another, they must be cut away to keep the outline distinct. Perennial Plants, except in rare cases where seeds are wanted, should have the flower clusters cut away as soon as they begin to fade. Dahlias, Gladiolusses, Tuberoses, etc., will need stakes; let them be inconspicuous, and placed out of sight. Annuals of all kinds will keep in bloom much longer if not allowed to ripen their seeds.—American Agriculturist.

A U. E. L. HERO.

Now that the United Empire Loyalists are celebrating their Centennial Anniversary, all the events connected with their history have an even greater interest than usual for Canadians. This has added even a greater zest to our perusal of the volume before us, written by the most celebrated member of one of the most distinguished of the U. E. Loyalist families. The interest is certainly not lessened by the fact that we have among us in this locality many members of his race.

The work to which we refer is the "Journal of Major (afterwards Colonel) Robert Rogers," published in London in 1765.

The period of his eventful history with which it deals was that of his active and glorious share, at the head of Rogers' Rangers, in the fierce contests with the French and their Indian allies before the fall of Quebec, and the incidents accompanying the taking possession of the ceded country. From the date of its publication it contains no account of his later exploits, when he and Rogers' Rangers again distinguished themselves in the Revolutionary war, till at its conclusion he handed over the command of his brave regiment, then honored by the name of the Queen's Rangers, to Col. Simcoe, the first Governor of this Province.

His first command was an independent company of Rangers, to which he was commissioned as captain. So great was the service they rendered by their bravery and skill in bush fighting and scouting, that some other companies were raised over which, besides the command of his own company, he was appointed Major. One of these companies was commanded by his brother, Capt. Richard Rogers, who, after bravely leading his men against the enemy, died of small pox just before the capture of Fort William Henry, when the Indians actually disinterred his body and scalped it. Anthe was commanded by his brother, Capt. James Rogers, who, after doing good service with the Rangers through the French and Revolutionary wars, participated a hundred years ago in the U. E. L. settlement of the shores of the Bay of Quinte, with many other officers and men of Rogers' Rangers, with their families. From this Capt. James Rogers are immediately descended the Rogers of the County of Peterborough.

Rogers' Rangers, the very model of light infantry for bush fighting, were the eyes and ears, very often also the hand to strike the blow, for the British forces in the district of Lakes George and Champlain. It would be impossible to give even the barest outline of all their exploits, and especially of their commander, who was very chary of describing his own personal adventures. They were constantly reconnoitering and fighting on land and water, sometimes marching in single file through the forest, sometimes in boats or canoes, on snow-shoes or skates. Often they intercepted and took the enemy's convoys, often they made a dash to capture a prisoner when fuller information was essential. In one expedition in 1757 near Ticonderaga, being overpowered by numbers, he was wounded and lost many officers and men, but by hard fighting they beat off their assailants and extricated themselves. Later in the same year he served with his Rangers in the abortive operations in Nova Scotia, but was soon recalled to the New York frontier. The next year, being sent against Carillon with an insufficient force, he was attacked by a large force, which had learned his movements from a deserter, and again he extricated his command by sheer hard fighting and with heavy loss. Immediately after this the Rangers were augmented and he was made their Major, a rank which a little later was conferred upon him in the regular army. Having a number of picked officers and men of the regulars attached to his regiment, that he might train them in bush fighting, he drew up a detailed code for their guidance, which is given at length. In 1858 he, with his Rangers, led Lord Howe's army in the operations against Malcolm, when the British General fell. In 1759 under Gen. Amherst and Gen. Gage, he took an active part in the operations by which the French were driven out of Ticonderoga and other forts on those waters. One of his most dashing exploits was the forced march by which, in revenge for the cruelties and perfidy of the Indian allies of the French, he swooped down upon the town of St. Francis, near the south bank of the St. Lawrence, between Montreal and Quebec, totally destroying it, with heavy loss to the enemy, and rescuing a number of British captives. There was a larger force to check this exploit, but evading them, he left this strong enemy in the rear, outmarched them, accomplished his feat, and returned by a detour by way of the Connecticut River, having separated his force into small bands which took independent routes. Nearly as brilliant was his expedition in 1760, to destroy the fort at St. D'Etrese. He took as usual a foremost part in the concluding operations of the campaign when the forts at St. John's, Chamble, &c., was taken, and the conquest of French Canada was completed. But even the peace did not terminate the adventures of this U. E. L. hero. He was at once despatched with his Rangers to take possession of Detroit and receive the submission of the French and Indians in all that region. This stirring journey and his mission being accomplished, he left a portion of his Rangers as a garrison, returning by way of Lakes Erie and Sandusky and the Erie River to New York.

During this expedition, and on other occasions, he must, as an efficient Ranger would do instinctively, have made good use of his eyes and ears, for he published another work, in which he shows for that time a surprisingly accurate knowledge of the geography of North America.

Major Robert Rogers, now that peace reigned on this continent, went to England, but the Revolutionary war saw him and his Rangers again in the field for the old flag. Unfortunately he did not publish a detailed statement of their services in this conflict, but it is known that they acquitted themselves as might have been expected from their previous career.

It is no wonder that these men remained loyal to the flag for which they had fought so bravely, and that they sought new homes where it might still wave over them. It is no wonder that those in whose veins their blood flows are loyal also, and that leavening, as they must have done, our whole population, they have done much to bring about the loyalty of the Canadians of to-day to the old flag. Very few degenerate descendants from those heroes are willing to sever their connection with the empire in whose history their forefathers wrote such glorious pages.

IMITATION OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

We translate from Le Moniteur du Commerce the following article :—

We have learned by telegraph that a member of the Chamber of Commerce in England has called the attention of the English Government to the counterfeit of farm produce imported into England from America. The English Minister, aware of such imitation, has put at the disposal of the chamber all documents bearing upon the subject to be produced when desired.

Although it is it well known now-a-days that the butter, and even the cheese exported from this continent are spurious, the accusation happily only applies to American products; ours, on the other hand, enjoy a good reputation, and it is to be hoped that our producers will be sufficiently alive to the importance of avoiding the example of our neighbors.

The imitation of butter by oleomargarine, and of cheese by the products of hog's lard has become to-day a considerable industry in the United States. The deception does not consist in the manufacture of these articles, but in passing them off upon the market under the name of butter and cheese. It is this device that will ruin American exports if an interior legislation does not put a stop to the fraud. So long as the American Government permits the sale and exportation of counterfeited products, foreign and home purchasers will be right in supposing that everything that is offered to them is adulterated (frelate), the effect of the bad reputation established by spurious articles.

This question of the imitation of food commodities is one of the most important. These impositions have become so extensive and are so numerous and dangerous that consumers purchase with fear a closed box. The manufacturers of Baltimore have commenced a reactionary movement against this ruinous practice, and it is to be hoped that shortly we shall have nothing more to dread in the matter of the quality and security of commodities contained in boxes from Baltimore.

Whilst our neighbours, in consequence of their dishonest practices, are aware that the importance of their exportations of cheese is on the wane, we, on the contrary, recognize that ours are growing stronger (grandir). The following is what an American journal says of Canadian products :—

"Canadian cheeses rank first in all the markets of the world and we express the opinions of all who are engaged in this branch of trade when we assert that there is not the remotest danger that the laurels gained (by them) will ever pass into the hands of its rivals."

What then should be done to keep in our hands an important part of this trade, and to develop to as high a degree as possible this agricultural industry? Nothing more than to continue in the course now pursued. Make well in order to sell well. It is necessary, to guard against the machinations of those who endeavour to palm off their commodities as Canadian, and to establish a confusion, which though not profitable to them will be most prejudicial to us. To prevent our foundering upon this rock our manufacturers should adopt a trade mark which shall establish in a positive manner the purity of Canadian commodities, and which shall tend to develop amongst our producers a feeling of emulation that will redound to the advantage of the whole of this important industry.

Lake of the Woods.

The Winnipeg Times says :—W. W. Banning of the firm of Dick & Banning returned the 2nd of June from a trip to the Lake of the Woods. He says the lumber cut this season has not been nearly so large as the preceeding year, but the quality is superior. He thinks, however, there will be sufficient to meet all the demands. He reports the water as being extremely low, and steamboating is done under a very great disadvantage.

LACROSSE.

A Second Chapter in the History of the Second Twelve—A Defeat.

On Thursday night at 11 p. m. when most of the citizens of Peterborough were gently slumbering, those who live along Hunter street East, were suddenly awakened by hearing the old "threadbare" song "Good-bye, My Lover Good-bye," sung at the top of about fifteen voices, and at once concluded that some of the members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club were let loose. The melodious manner in which it was sung, especially the Alto and Tenor parts, gave the people to understand that it was not a first twelve racket, but the second twelve on their way to Norwood, which place they arrived at, after a ride of about four hours, "in the morning by the bright light." Mr. D. Brennan, the genial host of the Brennan Hotel, was the first person to realize the fact, and, unlike the generality of persons disturbed from slumber, appeared on the scene in the very best of humor and extended the boys a right hearty welcome, at four o'c ock in the morning.

It is needless to say that they were soon in beds and asleep, any person who has travelled the roads between Peterborough and Norwood, especially at night, will agree with us when we say that very little rocking will set one asleep.

About nine o'clock most of the boys were astir and taking in the sights of the village, inspecting the new O. & R. Railway station, &c., which inspection lasted until 12 o'clock, at which hour they repaired to the McGregor House, where it was arranged by the Norwood Lacrosse Club they should dine.

At 3 o'clock the boys of both teams marched to the field and took up their positions as follows :—

Mr. G. W. Ritchie was chosen referee.

The ball was faced for the first game at 3.50 p.m., and at once travelled towards the Peterborough defence, where Aleck Robertson caught it, and, running behind the goals, made a nice drop, which was put through by McKelvey, assisted by W. Walch, one of the Peterborough's own men. Time 2.30.

The second game was started immediately, and this time the boys got warmed up and determined, if possible, not to let the Norwood boys drop in on them in such a short time as in the previous game. Harry Niel, in the goal played a splendid game, and after many struggles came out generally with the ball on his 'crosse. The play went on for twenty-two minutes, neither team having any noticeable advantage. S. Heaps got the ball and made a low shot, and the second game went to Peterborough.

The third game was started after a rest of ten minutes, and for twenty-seven minutes the ball made numerous return trips between the goals. It was finally passed through the Peterborough flags by McFaul.

The fourth and last game was started shortly after 5 o'clock. After twenty minutes play Pearce got the ball, and made a good run right up to the teeth of the Peterborough goal keeper and made a low shot. The umpire nodded his head, and twelve Norwood lacrosses were thrown into the air. Time, 20 minutes. Pearce said positively that the ball did not pass between the poles, and quite a dispute arose. However, the umpire repeated his decision, and, though the Peterborough players were a little dissatisfied, all was over.

The boys returned to Brennan's hotel for supper, where they were entertained by the Norwood boys. They then returned home, and arrived here at 1 a.m. in the morning.

KITCHEN AND MARKET GARDEN.

Success in keeping down weeds, depends upon attacking them while they are small. A sharp rake is most effective if applied early. The use of the cultivator must be supplemented by hand weeding in the rows. Asparagus tops make a dense shade, and keep down small weeds; if any large ones appear, pull them. Sowing seeds for Succession Crops, and setting out plants for late ones, will be the chief work next month. Sow Early Beets (see p. 284). Of Bush Beans, the Refugee is preferred for late planting. Sweet Corn, of early quick growing varieties, may be planted for table and for drying. Sage, Thyme and other sweet herbs, may be set out, also late Cabbages, Cauliflower, etc. Celery is to be set out from the seed bed. If ground can be used from which a heavily manured crop has been removed, all the better; otherwise the soil must be well manured. Mark out the rows, three, or better, four feet apart, setting the plants six inches apart in the rows, taking care to set them no deeper than they stood before. Press the soil gently and firmly to the roots with the feet, and if it be dry, give an abundant watering. Afterwards keep the celery clear of weeds. Ruta Bagas and other turnips, may be sown as indicated elsewhere. When vines of Lima Beans extend beyond the tops of the poles, nip off their ends. Tomato vines must be kept tied up to the trellis; remove all badly shaped fruit hand-pick and kill the great green worm. Egg-plants.—Keep the potato bug from them, and place straw under the fruit to keep it from the ground. Sweet Potato vines should not be allowed to take root at the joints; remove them at each hoeing.—American Agriculturist.

As the silver-haired pastor entered the pulpit, the organ began to throb in a low prelude, and four gentlemen bore shallow waiters through the assemblage to receive the contribution for the "Destitue." Mr. Palma saw his companion take something from her glove, and when the waiter reached them and she put in her small alms, which he judged amounted two twenty-five cents, he slipped his fingers in his vest pocket and popped a bill on the plate.

"Is all that huge sum going to India, to the missionaries?" he gravely whispered.

"It is to feed the poor of this church."

As the organ swelled fuller and louder, Mr. Palma saw Regina start and listen intently, then the choir began to sing, and she turned very pale and shut her eyes. He could discover nothing remarkable in the music, "Oh! that I had wings;" but is it progressed, the girl's emotion increased—became almost uncontrolled, and through the closeed lids the tears forced themselves rapidly, whild she trembled visibly and seemed trying to swallow her sobs.

All through the singing her tears fell unchecked, sliding over her cheeks and upon her white dress, and when the congregation knelt in prayer, Mr. Palma only leaned his head on the back of the pew in front, and watched the figure bowed on her knees close beside him, crying silently, with her face in her hands.

When the prayer ended and the minister announced the hymn, she seemed to have recovered her composure, and finding the page, offered her pretty gilt hymn-book to her guardian. On the fly-leaf that fluttered over, was written: "Regina Orme. With the love and prayers of Douglass Lindsay."

Closing the book, he laid it in his lap, leaned back and folded his arms over his chest.

The preacher read the sixty-third Psalm and from it selected his text:

"My soul followeth hard after thee."

Though certainly not a modern Chrysostom, he was an earnest, faithful, and enlightened man, full of persuasive fervour; and to the brief but interesting discourse he delivered, a discourse occasionally sprinkled with felicitous metaphors and rounded with several eloquent passages, Mr. Palma appeared to listen quite attentively.

At long intervals and upon especially august occasions Mr. Palma had now and then attended service in the elegant church where his pewrent was regularly paid; but not until to-day had he been attacked by the swarming reminiscences of his childhood, all eagerly babbling of the long-forgotten things once learned

"At that best academe, a mother's knee."

From the benignant countenance of the earnest preacher, his keen cold eyes began to wander, and after awhile rested on the pale tender face at his side.

After forty years' sole undisputed mastery of his heart, something suddenly and unexpectedly wakened there—groped about—would not "down" at his bidding; and a new sensation made itself felt.

A brief sentence of Elliott Roscoe had, like Moses' rod, smitten the rock of his affection, and forthwith gushed a flood of riotous feelings never known before. At the thought of any man claiming Regina's perfect lips and peerless imperial eyes, a hot wave of indignant protest rolled over his whole being. That she should belong to another now seemed monstrous, sacrilegious, and all the strength of his own nature rose in mutiny.

Shading his countenance with his fingers he deliberately studied her features; even the modelling of the waxen hands folded together on her knee; and then and there—weighing all his achievements, all his pictured future, so dazzling with coveted ermine—he honestly confessed to his own soul that the universe held for him nothing so precious as that fair, pure young girl.

How superlatively presumptuous appeared Elliott Roscoe's avowed admiration and preference. How dared that humble, impecunious divinity student, now sojourning in the "Land of the Veda," lift his eyes towards that priceless treasure, which Erle Palma wanted to call his own?

The benediction was pronounced and the congregation dispersed.

Walking silently beside her guardian until they had proceeded some distance from the church, Regina wondered how she should interpret the grave preoccupied expression of his countenance. Had he been sadly bored, and did he repent the sacrifice, made to gratify her caprice?

"Mr. Palma, I am very much obliged to you for kindly consenting to accompany me. Of course, I know this church and service must seem dull and plain in comparison with that to which you are accustomed, but I hope you liked Mr. Kelsey's sermon."

"In some respects this afternoon has been a revelation, and I am sure I shall never forget the occasion."

"Oh! I am so glad you enjoyed going," she said, with evident relief.

"I did not intend to convey that impression; you infer more than my words warrant. I was thinking of other and quite irrelevant matters,—and to be frank,—really did not listen to the sermon. Do you attend church from a conviction that penance conduces to a sanitary improvement of the soul?"

"Penance? I do not exactly understand you, Sir."

"I certainly have never seen you weep so bitterly; not even when I so ruthlessly tore you from the kind sheltering arms of Mother Aloysius and Sister Angela."

"Oh, no, Sir!"

"You are resolved not to appoint me your confessor?"

"Mr. Palma"—— her voice faltered.

"Well—go on."

"I was very much distressed; it made my heart ache."

"So I perceived. But was it the bare church, or the minister, or my ward's sensitive conscience?"

After a moment, she lifted her misty eyes to meet his, and answered tremulously:

"It was the singing of 'Oh! that I had wings.' I have not heard it since that dreadful time I sang it last, and you can't possibly understand my feelings."

"Certainly not, unless you deign to explain the circumstances."

"Dear Mr. Hargrove asked me to go in and play on the organ in the library, and sing that sacred song for him. I sang it, and played for a while on the organ, and then went back to him on the verandah—and he had died—alone in his chair, while I was singing, 'Oh! that I had wings.' To-day, when the choir began it, everything came back so vividly to me—the dear happy home at the Parsonage, the supper I had set for my dear Mr. Hargrove, the flowers in the garden, the smell of the carnations, the sound of the ring doves in the vines, the moonlight shining so softly on his kind face and white hair, and Oh!——"

They walked the length of two squares before either spoke again.

"I was not aware that you performed on the organ."

"Mrs. Lindsay gave me lessons and I used the cabinet organ."

"Do you prefer it to the piano?"

"For sacred songs I do."

"If we had one in the library, do you suppose you would ever sing for me?"

"If you really desired it, perhaps, I would try; but of course I know very well you care nothing for my music; and our dear old hymns and chants would only tire and annoy you."

The lamps were lighted, and night closed in, with silvery constellations overheard, before Mr. Palma and his companion were near their destination. As they crossed a street, he said, abruptly breaking a long silence:

"Take my arm."

Never before had such a courtesy been tendered, and she looked up in unfeigned surprise.

He was so tall, so stately, that the proposition seemed to her preposterous.

"This afternoon I indulged one of your whims; now will you reciprocate, and gratify a caprice of your guardian?"

"Have you caprices? I think not; but I will oblige you if I can do so."

"Thank you. In future you must never walk to see Mrs. Mason; always go in the carriage, and I am unwilling that you should be out as late as this, unless Mrs. Palma accompanies you, or I am with you. You need not ask my reasons; it is sufficient that I wish it, and it is my caprice to be obeyed without questions. One thing more. I do not at all like your name—never did. Regina, Reginæ, Reginam wearily remind me of the the classical slough of declensions, and conjugations—of my Livy, Sallust, Tacitus. In my mind you have always been associated with the white lilies that you held at the convent, the first time I saw you—that you held to your heart while asleep on the cars; and hereafter, when only you and I are present, I intend to indulge the caprice of calling my ward—Lily."

ORCHARD AND FRUIT GARDENS.

During the present month and the next, the orchardist and gardener finds work less pressing than at any other time, and he is wise if he takes a vacation. A week at the seaside, or on the shore of an inland lake or river, will do wonders for recruiting one for the work of the autumn months. Go among the fruit growers and gardeners, see what others are doing, and how they do it. Such visits are useful to both giver and receiver. Insects demand attention every month. The Apple-worm is noted elsewhere. The Apple-borer and Peach-borer must be looked for; if their sawdust is found, or there is a depression in the bark of young trees, cut for and probe out the worm. The Current and Gooseberry bushes, if attacked by the worm must have powdered White Hellebore, a tablespoonful thoroughly stirred in a pailful of water, and freely showered to wet the leaves. The Beetles and large caterpillars upon the grapevines may be picked off by hand. If a strawberry, is seen to wilt, search at its roots for the White Grub, and kill it before it can go to another plant. The shiny, green Slug upon the leaves of pear and cherry trees, may be destroyed by dusting them with air-slaked lime, or wood ashes. Blight is often destructive to the pear. All that can be done is to remove the blighted portion, whether a small branch or the whole tree, and burn it. Budding may be done as soon as buds are mature, and the stalks are ready. The cherry is usually the first, followed by the plum and pear. Summer Layer the Grape. Shoots of this season that are sufficiently hardened, may be bent down and have a portion buried in the soil; roots will soon form upon it. Wind Falls.—If pigs are not pastured in the orchard, the fallen fruit should be picked up and fed to them.—American Agriculturalist.

"MAY DEW"

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubbornly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light variable winds, fine weather, not much change in temperature.

Decoration Day.

An agreement to close their places of business on the afternoon of Friday, June 27th, the day on which the Oddfellows of the town will decorate the grave of their departed brethern, has been almost unanimously signed by the merchants.

Dominion Day.

The sports committee of the Cricket and Boating Club are determined to make a grand success of their games on July 1st. At a late meeting of the committee it it was decided to have the grandest display of fireworks ever held in the town. They are having the track in the agricultural grounds put in prime condition, so that so fast time may be expected.

Twice Upset.

Two young men who were coming from the regatta on Friday evening in a canoe upset the boat. They got into it again, and about a hundred yards further on they were telling about their mishap, when the boat capsized the second time. They did not go up to the boat-house, but got out at the nearest point in order to reach home quickly and without being seen.

A Sail—"Ship Ahoy!"

Arrangements are steadily progressing for a gala day on Dominion Day at the Wallace Point Summer Resort, the new and beautiful picnic grounds of Mr. Faucher. A pleasing feature in connection with the day will be a grand display of fireworks on board of the steamer. The boat will leave the wharf at 8 a. m., 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. The citizens who patronize these excursions may rely on the firemen enforcing good order during the entire day. Everybody is talking about it, and the success of the day is guaranteed.

Those American Denims Turnbull is showing are grand goods to wear. Every Farmer and Mechanic should see them.

Music in the Park.

The Fire Brigade Band on Friday night gave the second open-air concert under the electric light in the Court House Park. There was a very large number of people out to enjoy the music, and the Band gave them a programme that could be thoroughly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the vocal waltzes, "Dream Faces," the band received a hearty burst of applause from those present; vocal music in connection with the band gives decidedly good satisfaction, and we hope the members of the Fire Brigade Band will see fit to favour the public with more of it in the future, as they have some really good vocalists among them.

Saved Army Picnic.

The Saved Army pic-nic, took place at Idyl Wild on Friday. The steamer Golden Eye left her wharf at Peterborough at 7 o'clock in the morning with about 150 persons on board, and picked up passengers on the way down. At Idyl Wild they joined people from Keene, Harwood, Cobourg, Campbellford, &c. It is estimated that there were about 3,000 people present. Gen. Lindsay and a number of other officers of the Army attached. Addresses were delivered on the grounds by various officers. At about 4 o'clock the Golden Eye left the pic-nic grounds for the return trip and arrived here at 8 o'clock. The party appeared to be well pleased with the pic-nic.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

DEPUTATIONS FROM NORWOOD SCHOOL BOARD AND THE TOWN.

An Opportunity for the Town Council to Provide a Park for the Citizens—The County Engineer's Report.

On Thursday the forenoon was spent in committee work. In the afternoon the Warden took the chair.

NORWOOD HIGH SCHOOL.

Messrs. Rork, Reynolds and J. C. Brown, a deputation from Norwood, was introduced.

Mr. RORK explained their object in waiting upon the Council. A new high school building had been erected in Norwood, at a cost of $8,600, and they wished the county to assist them in paying for it,

Mr. REYNOLDS also addressed the council. In the course of his remarks he said that the High School Inspector, during his visit to the school, stated that the gentleman who had drawn the plans understood his business, as special attention had been paid to ventilation, and that it was the best ventilated school building in his district. Mr. J. E. Belcher was the architect of the building.

Mr. Brown also addressed the Council.

Mr. MOLONEY moved, seconded by Mr. WALSH,—That the application of the Norwood School Board for a grant of money to construct a school house in the village of Norwood be referred to the Finance Committee.—Carried.

THE COURT HOUSE PARK.

A deputation from the town, consisting of Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Mayor, and Messrs. D. W. Dumble, Wm. Cluxton, Andrew McNeil, B. Shortly, Jas. Alexander and Adam Hall, waited upon the Council in reference to the Court House Park, and were introduced by M. Sanderson.

Mr. COX, in addressing the Council, said that it was a pity to see such a fine place as the Park was closed from the public. He understood that the County Council had done all they could towards having it opened, as at the last June session they had adopted a motion appointing a committee consisting of the Warden and Messrs. Burnham and Sanderson with power to rent or lease the park to the Town Council or any other body that would undertake to keep it in proper order. They asked the Council to re-enact this resolution. He explained that he appeared simply as a citizen, but he thought that the Town Council would see their way clear to make satisfactory arrangements by which the Park would be opened.

Mr. DUMBLE agreed with Mr. Cox as to the desirability of having the park opened. He thought that the proper way would be to appoint a Park Commission, which, with appropriations from the Council each year, would be enabled to maintain and add to the beauty of the grounds more effectually than could be done by the Council.

Mr. CLUXTON also addressed the Council. He had visited many places on both continents and he failed to remember any place that had such a park closed up as this one had been. It was too bad to have such a beautiful place without making an effort to have it made a place of recreation for the public.

Messrs. Burnham, Strickland and others spoke in favor of opening the park.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. KIDD,—That Messrs. Burnham, Sanderson and the Warden be appointed a committee with power to lease the Court House Park to the Town Council, Horticultural Society, or any other parties they think proper, for the purpose of beautifying it and throwing it open to the public.

CONDOLENCE.

Messrs. Burnham, Stapleton and Stewart were appointed to draft resolutions of condolence with the families of the late Henry Collins and George Oliver.

COUNTY SOLICITOR.

A by-law was introduced and passed through its several stages, appointing Mr. E. B. Edwards County Solicitor.

The Council adjourned until 10 o'clock on Friday morning.

THE ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The following is the semi-annual report of the County Engineer, Mr. John E. Belcher, which was submitted to the Road and Bridge committee:—

To the Chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee:

SIR,—I beg to submit my semi-annual report on the county bridges under my charge.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

The guard rails of this bridge are in a neglected condition, as well as the aprons to the approaches, and the entire structure is overgrown with vegetation, which decays the flooring. Further than replacing an occasional loose floor plank nothing has been done to the bridge during the last twelve months, pending the action of the township of Emily as to the repair of the approaches of the Victoria end of the bridge. About a month since some slight repairs were done to that end by the Reeve of Emily, and I am informed he is now raising the approach sufficiently high to prevent the overflow of the lake during high water. The rails should be immediately repaired, as well as the apron, and the swing and the vegetation clearly raked out of the joints of the flooring.

MUD LAKE BRIDGE.

The chains and anchors referred to in my report of last January were fortunately laid in position before the going out of the ice during the spring, as I understand from the report of Mr. Kelly, the caretaker and other eye-witnesses, that were it not for this anchoring precaution the entire structure would have been torn away, as since the construction of the bridge it has not been so severely tested, a gate from the north-west having carried a large field of ice square against the bridge, which for some hours withstood the pressure, yielding but a few yards at the western end. The annual repairs to the guard rails have been executed, and new apron approaches ordered to be formed, and where the bridge has lost some of its floating properties new floats must be inserted. The caretaker is now about straightening the bridge. The guard booms, which are at present loose and detached, must be thoroughly overhauled and repaired to render it of any service.

BUCKHORN BRIDGE.

This bridge was in danger of being carried away during the spring from the accumulation of drift wood piled against it several feet high. I have been informed that Mr. Wm. Hall cleared away the jam and relieved the bridge. I would advise the appointment of a caretaker who, for a small charge, would keep the bridge from damage from drift wood and river drives.

BURLEIGH BRIDGES.

These bridges have had some repairs executed thereto about three years since, which to the present have rendered them serviceable, but next year one of them at least must be replaced by a new structure.

YOUNG'S POINT BRIDGE.

This bridge is in a dangerous and unsafe condition. Originally badly designed, and badly constructed of dead pine, it has been a constant source of anxiety and care. Some seven years since I reported in this condition, when some repairs were done to it and about three years ago a new pier was added to assist in its support. These have all done their work by lengthening the term of its existence, but now it is past repair, and I would advise that immediate action should be taken by your Council to erect a new iron structure in its stead.

LAKEFIELD BRIDGE.

The bridge is in good condition and is about one of the best superstructures in the county. It will require a coat of paint next year.

NASSAU BRIDGE.

This bridge has been satisfactorily completed and the several contractors paid. The approaches thereto, which have been tendered for and let by contract, in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by me, have been well constructed under the immediate superintendance of the Reeve of Douro, Mr. John Moloney. Indeed, all the works of this bridge, some of which (particularly the mid-stream pier) have been of a peculiar nature, reflect credit on the contractors for their respective parts. The old bridge is not yet removed. I would recommend that it should be carefully taken down and the bolts and iron work cut out and sold or stored for future use.

LOCKS BRIDGE.

The new iron swing bridge has been completed, and is a good structure. It is operated by cog wheels and pinion and opens and closes remarkably easily. The centre pivot pier and abutment after the removal of the old bridge, was found to be simply a filling of loose stone and earth, totally unfit for the new structure, and after consultation with some of the members of the Joint Committee of the town and county, I decided to take the old pier and abutment down and rebuild the same with heavy ashlar masonry set in cement. This was contracted for with Mr. Chas. Wynne, and has completed in a substantial manner. The Joint Committee examined with myself the works during their construction, and on their completion, when at a meeting of the Committee the accounts and contracts were submitted, examined and approved.

DEER RIVER BRIDGE, BELMONT.

This bridge is situated on the boundary between the counties of Hastings and Peterborough, and in accordance with a resolution of the Council at its last June session, which resolved "that the bridge be rebuilt, the cost thereof to be divided between both of said counties, and to be erected from the plans and under the inspection of the County Engineer of Peterborough." I prepared the plans and specifications and advertised for tenders, and that of Wm. Boyd was accepted by the Joint Committee. The bridge has been built in a creditable manner by Mr Boyd, and paid for as in the resolution above recited.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN. E. BELCHER,
County Engineer.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Supposed Incendiarism.

At about half-past six o'clock on Sunday morning an incipient fire was discovered in the market building, the second story of which, known as the old Music Hall, is used by the Saved Army. It was discovered just in time to be checked before it did very much damage.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The secretary of the "Star s" is a very sarcastic youth and a first-class player. His reply to my challenge "is rich." On two separate occasions we have challenged the "Stars" in one month, and on two separate occasions "Several of our players will be engaged on that afternoon," or some other like excuse has been our answer. We have no desire "to dub" ourselves champions of the town, but as we understood from the "wind" wasted around the streets that the "Stars" claimed that "honor" and feeling confident that we had fully as good a team we desired to enter the arena to contest the "honor" with the "Stars." The "Stars" promise to challenge us at an early date. We only hope that the "early date" will be before the snow flies.

I remain, yours, etc.,
WM. McDOWELL,
Sec. P.B.B.C

Peterborough, June 23rd, 1884.

[We regret that this correspondence has been carried on in the spirit that it has. A friendly rivalry between the two clubs might be desirable, but when the rivalry goes any further than that it will only injure the popularity of the sport which the clubs hope to make popular. We would therefore ask the secretaries to drop the correspondence, but we will be willing to publish friendly challenges to friendly matches, and we hope that they will view this matter in the same light that we do.—ED. O'BRIEN AND HIS FINE.

He says he is determined to continue to expose the manner in which the Government of Ireland is conducted by Earl Spencer and Mr. Gladstone.

REVOLT IN GUINEA.

LONDON, June 22.—The situation in Guinea is critical. The revolt of the blacks continues. The insurgents at Bissao captured a gunboat, but the crew escaped in boats.

THE RAILWAY WHISTLE.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—Still another article has appeared in the Toronto Mail on the above named "intolerable nuisance," a proof that the local press are ready to assist the inhabitants of the Ontario capital in their determination to get rid of it.

On the 20th inst. may be found a paragraph to the following effect: "At Detroit a penalty of fifty dollars is fixed on all locomotives and steamboats unduly whistling within the limits of the city." At the meeting at which the above statement was made "a deputation was appointed to wait upon the Mayor to urge him to pass a by-law similar to the one existing in London.

This step was hardly necessary because the inhabitants of Toronto not only enjoy the advocacy of the local press in their attempts to free themselves from this nuisance, but that of their Mayor also, who, happily for them, not being a railway man, headed a deputation to the Dominion Government on the subject of railway encroachments and nuisances, and who secured an engagement from the Minister that he would provide, as far as he could, immunity from the complained of annoyance.

When will the authorities in Peterborough bestir themselves as those of Toronto have done? The shunting engine here is passing up and down Bethune street almost all day, and in addition to its perpetual snorting and grunting, is belching its foul black coal smoke over our residences, so that we are constantly obliged to close all our doors and windows to prevent our rooms from being contaminated. The driver of that engine, too, is all the time blowing his whistle, sometimes as loudly as he can? Will any of the railway people tell us that this outrageous disturbance is necessary, or if they have the assurance to tell us so, will any one believe them?

A lady on a visit here from Scotland, after 24 hours experience of the night and day disturbances caused by the steam-whistle, said she wished herself back in Edinburgh, where such disturbances would not be tolerated by the public.

A friend of mine, whose relatives reside in a town in the U. S., says that no such nuisance is permitted there, that no freight train is allowed to pass within the limits of the corporation, and that any freight car attached to a passenger train is uncoupled outside the limits and left behind.

But, Sir, in addition to this nuisance of the shunting engine, which was formally complained of some time ago before the Town Council by the Police Magistrate, there is the still more intolerable annoyance of the blowing of the steam whistle during the night by one or other of the R. R. lines; we hear it up to midnight; we are disturbed by it again often at 3 or four o'clock in the morning; so that we literally get no respite at all.

And to what end is all this torment? Simply for the purpose of putting more money into the pockets of the railway people, who care not so much as a "red cent" for the pain they inflict upon the private residents of the town, their sole desire being to make money; and in the prosecution of that desire they inflict a grievous injury on the comfort and health of the people. I say on the health, for when loss of sleep occasioned by discordant noises in the night constantly occurs, health must necessarily be impaired.

I do sincerely hope, as one of the oldest inhabitants of the town, and as a property owner as well as a ratepayer, that the inhabitants of Peterborough will insist, as those of Toronto have insisted, on an abatement of the nuisance which has too long been imposed upon them.

The railway men seem to imagine that the whole business of life consists in the conveyance of passengers and freight, especially of freight, up and down their lines with as much noise as possible. Are we prepared to concur in this opinion?

THE COTTON TRADE.

THE Ottawa Free Press says that our statement that the enormous cotton industry of Great Britain was successfully built up by artificial means till it was strong enough to run alone, is "so absurdly untrue that we (the Free Press) must regard it as an unintentional slip of our contemporary's pen." We would respectfully suggest to our contemporary that calling a statement absurdly untrue is not argument, and will not settle the point at issue, nor is it so courteous as the Free Press of late seems to wish to be in its discussions.

We do not make untrue statements, but carefully ascertain the facts, though the correctness of the inferences which we draw from those facts must, of course, remain a matter of opinion, without implying wilful falsehood in either disputant. Our contemporary in the same article supplies a refutation of its own conclusions. It says:—

"England commanded a monopoly of the cotton industry much more completely under protection than she does to-day, and yet her foreign exports in those lines have swollen under the influences of free trade to an almost incredible extent."

This complete monopoly afforded by protection built up the cotton trade till it had the command of the chief markets of the world, as they then existed. The free trade spoken of by the Free Press was really protection in disguise, but of a most practical kind, for it meant the free importation of bread stuffs, and the consequent cheapening of food and wages, while cotton goods were not imported free, because they were not imported at all, the British cotton mills having so prospered under protection as to have secured the market.

These are the plain facts, which are not susceptible of disproof. As to the inferences to be drawn from them, we suppose that we and our contemporary must agree to differ. We infer, and we believe with good reason, that protection, with its admitted resulting monopoly, had given the British manufacturers such a substantial position, such a hold upon the home and foreign markets, that they could afford to say that cottons might come in free of duty, as none would come for a time at least, no other manufacturers being in a position to compete against such firmly established rivals. We also infer, we believe with equal reason, that the practically additional protection of a free importation of breadstuffs so cheapened production as to account largely for the "almost incredible extent" to which the exports of cotton goods have swollen, this effect being aided by the continual opening of new markets and the advance in population and wealth throughout the world.

We will not say that the widely different inferences which the Free Press draws from the undoubted facts are "absurdly untrue," for it may be quite honestly mistaken, through taking too much for granted the statements and arguments of the theoretical free traders, and of the interested cotton manufacturers of Great Britain. If our contemporary will study the history of the trade, as if approaching the subject for the first time, and disregarding these prejudiced advocates, it will draw the correct inference from the facts and arrive at the logical conclusions—that the cotton trade of Great Britain was originally built up by protection—that it was subsequently aided by free importations of food—that it was so firmly established by both these aids that it expanded rapidly and enormously in the absence of any serious competition—that the radical manufacturers of Great Britain in advocating so-called free trade were really agitating for a further advantage to their industry. The eyes of other countries are now being opened to these facts, and they have adopted protection with already considerable results. Even some of the British cotton manufacturers are beginning to see that protection is of some avail, and are not now so indifferent to it, as may soon be ascertained by anyone who converses with them, while more public indications of this turn in the tide are not wanting.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

FRIDAY'S SESSION OF THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MUNICIPALITIES.

Reports of Several Committees Adopted—Opposition to Special Grants—A Deadlock in the Norwood High School Grant.

Friday forenoon was also spent in committee work. At four o'clock in the afternoon the Council resumed, the Warden in the chair.

EQUALIZATION.

Mr. Burnham read the following report of the committee on equalization which was adopted:—

The Committee on equalization and assessment of the municipalities comprising the County of Peterborough beg leave to report:—

1. That they have carefully examined the assessment rolls of the several municipalities and find them complied with more care than heretofore, showing that the recommendation of the committee last year in reference to the very inaccurate condition of the rolls, has had a beneficial effect, but the Clerk states that there is still room for improvement.

2. The Committee find that there have been increases and decreases in the average of the different municipalities as compared with the previous year, as follows:—

Increases: Asphodel, 22 acres; Methuen 565 acres; Dummer, 126 acres; Douro, 26 acres; Ennismore, 111 acres; Otonabee, 67 acres, and Smith 521 acres.

Decreases: Belmont, 200 acres; Burleigh 266 acres; Asphodel, 220 acres; Chandos, 10,323 acres; Harvey, 1,222 acres; and Monaghan, 5 acres.

3. In Harvey the decrease is accounted for by lots vested in the crown, and heretofore assessed, being left off the roll, and the decrease in Chandos is owing to a clerical error of the clerk of the township in 1882, certifying that the resident and non-resident lands of the township were 10,000 more than they really were, and the Committee beg to recommend that the treasurer credit the municipality with the sum of $40, which represents the excessive levy on the municipality owing to such error.

4. Cavendish appearing this year for the first time separately, the Committee recommend that it be equalized at $1.50 per acre.

5. That as to the other municipalities the Committee recommend that the basis adopted by the Council of last year be the basis of the assessment for all county purposes for the year 1884, as shown in the schedule.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN BURNHAM,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 20, 1884.

A By-law was introduced confirming the report of the Committee, and was passed through its several stages.

SCHOOLS.

Mr. Walsh read the following report of the Committee on Schools.

The Committee on Schools beg to report:—

1. That no action be taken with reference to the petition of the Trustees of School Section No. 3, in the township of Belmont, by way of appeal from a By-law passed on the 28th day of April, 1883, by the township of Belmont making certain alterations in the School Sections of that township.

2. That the Inspector of Public Schools for the County of Peterborough be instructed to make a half-yearly report to this Council of the Public Schools under his care in this form, an outline of which is annexed.

All of is which respectfully submitted.

JOHN WALSH,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 20, 1883.

The report was adopted.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Mr. Moloney read the following report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges:—

The Committee on Roads and Bridges beg to report:—

1. That since the County of Victoria has signified its intention of spending a sum of money, not more than $100, in repairs to the approach of the Pigeon Creek Bridge, your Committee recommend that the caretaker, under instructions from the County Engineer, keep the Peterborough end of the bridge in as good a condition of repairs as the County of Victoria keeps their end of the bridge, and that the caretaker be instructed to remove any vegetation growing thereon.

2. That the report of the County Engineer with reference to the Mud Lake Bridge be adopted, and that the Engineer notify the caretaker thereof that he must pay more strict attention to his orders, and that in case of further neglect the Engineer have power to remove him and appoint another.

3. That Mr. W. Hall be appointed caretaker of the Buckhorn bridge at a salary of $10 per year.

4. That pending the construction of the Trent Valley Canal no action be taken with reference to the Burleigh bridge, the Engineer in the meantime to have the oversight thereof.

5. That Messrs. Moloney, Senderson, Strickland and the Warden, with the Engineer, be a committee to examine the Young's Point bridge, with power to rebuild, or take any other action they see fit.

6. That no action be taken with reference to painting the Lakefield bridge.

7. That the special grant of $50 towards the rebuilding of Preston's bridge over Deer Lake in the township of Belmont, given at our last session, be supplemented by a further grant of $50 for the same purpose.

8. Your Committee recommend that in future a supplementary report of the expenditure of special grants be added in detail to the Finance Committee's report and printed in the usual way.

9. That a special grant of $100 be given for the road in the 9th line of Dummer, and $30 for the road running between lots Nos. 20 and 21 between first concession of Dummer and Douro leading from Lakefield to Warsaw being given.

10. That a special grant of $50 given to build a bridge over Deer River on or near the the boundary line between Chandos and Wollaston, provided the County of Hastings make a like appropriation for the same purpose.

11. That your Committee are pleased to observe that the Ontario Government are inclined to aid old townships like Dummer in this county as well as several old and well settled townships in the neighboring County of Victoria, in making and improving leading roads, and hope that it will see fit to also aid other townships in the County.

12. That a special grant of $30 be given for the road running between lots number 15 and 16, Douro, leading from Lakefield to Warsaw.

13. That a special grant of $200 be given for the road leading through the township of Ennismore from the Mud Lake bridge.

14. That the County Engineer be authorized to take down the old Nassau bridge, to carefully stow away the iron and flooring and good timbers, and to sell the balance of the material thereof.

15. That $100 be expended on the boundary line running between the townships of Otonabee and Douro, and $100 on the boundary line between Asphodel and Dummer, such sum to equally divided.

16. That $200 be expended on the road leading from Young's Point to the first concession of Burleigh.

17. That $200 be expended on the gravel road leading from Springville to Peterborough.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN MOLONEY.
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 20, 1884.

When the report was read no one was willing to move its adoption, and it was received.

Several amendments were moved, but they were withdrawn, and the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the report, with Mr. Kidd in the Chair, and considered it clause by clause. It was finally reported with the following amendments:—In clause 10, the $30 grant to the Lakefield and Warsaw road was struck out. Clause 13 making a grant of $200 to the road in Ennismore was struck out. Clauses 15, 16 and 17 were struck out. The following clause was added:—"That the Reeves of the several townships be the commissioners for the expenditure of the several sums granted, and that they report in detail the manner in which said expenditure is made." The Committee rose and reported.

Mr. MOLONEY moved, seconded by Mr. WALSH,—That clause 9, making a special grant for the 9th line of Dummer, be struck out.—Lost.

Mr. MOLONEY moved, seconded by Mr. McCLIGGOT,—That all special grants in the report be struck out.

The motion was lost on the following division:

YEAS.—Messrs. Moloney, Walsh, McCliggot, Hicks, Sanderson and Crough.—6

NAYS.—Messrs. Stevenson, (Asphodel) Burnham, Mansfield, Kidd, Strickland, Stephenson, (Norwood), Brown, Elmhirst, Foster and Stewart.—10.

The report was adopted.

Disastrous Floods in the Rio Grande.

EL PASO, Tex., June 20.—Rio Grande shows more water here and above than at any time in a quarter of a century. The Horse railway and Mexican Central bridges have been swept away. The valley below presents the appearance of a vast inland sea. The damage is great. It is understood the American town of Presidio, Texas, has been nearly destroyed.

Potash.

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with blood or skin diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Shaker Blood Syrup is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merits.

I have cured permanently blood taint in the third generation by the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, after I had most signally failed with mercury and potash.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of blood poison by the use of your specific after all other treatment had failed.

J. E. KENNEDY, Druggist,
Cobourg, Ont.

For years I was afflicted with dry tetter of the most obstinate type. Was treated by many of the best physicians; took quantities of mercury, potash, and arsenic, which, instead of curing the tetter, crippled me up with mineral poison and rheumatism. The tetter continued to grow worse, and the itching almost made me crazy. In this condition I was induced to take Shaker Blood Syrup, and the result was as astonishing as it was gratifying. In a few months the tetter was entirely well, the mercurial poisoning all out of my system, and I was a well man—and due only to Shaker Blood Syrup. All like sufferers should take it.

C. H. SARGENT
Haverill, Mass.

Another Victory.

A Startling important discovery was made when, after long and patient experiments, the combination of Nervilline was reached. A grand victory indeed, for the suffering have an ever ready, prompt, efficient, and cheap remedy at hand. Do you know that for 10 cents you can buy a trial bottle of Polson's Nervilline and test its great power over pain of every description? Polson's Nervilline cures chills, pain in the stomach, side and back, rheumatism; in fact all pain. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

A marvellous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by J. D. Tully wholesale, retail agent.

A Cure for Cuts, Sores, etc.

The finest healing compound under the sun is McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Acid Cerate. There is no sore but will succumb to its wonderful healing properties. It is an invaluable dressing for scalds, festers, etc. Price 25 cents at John McKee's drug store.

THE OLD WAY.—A horrible butchery, the practice of paring corns and warts with a knife or razor. The new way is to call on your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Starr's Corn Solvent which will remove them without pain in 3 to 6 days. Brush attached to cork of each bottle for applying. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist 25c.

OH! how tired and weak I feel I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

For constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh, and for consumption induced by the scrofulous taint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the true remedy. It has cured unnumberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Yonder they come! They have just left the carriage, and as usual she is escorted by her body-guard; those grim old fogies who watch her like a pair of gray-owls. Now, Doctor, you must contrive an introduction."

General Rene Laurance raised his gold eye-glass, and looked curiously toward a group of three persons who were walking amid the ruins of Pozzuoli.

His companion, Dr. Plymley, who was examining an inscription, turned around and looked in the direction indicated.

"Are you sure? I am quite near-sighted."

"Very sure, for no other figure could be mistaken for hers. By all the Gods ever worshipped here, she is the loveliest woman I ever saw but as coy as a maid of fifteen. The fact that she secludes herself so rigidly only stimulates curiosity, and I have sworn a solemn oath to make her acquaintance; for it is something novel in my experience to have my overtures rejected, my courtesies ignored."

"Come this way, General. This encounter must appear purely accidental, for Madame Orme is very peculiar, very suspicious; and if she imagines we planned this excursion to meet her, or left Naples with the intention of joining her party, the chances are that I as well as you would be snubbed. In her desire to avoid society and personal attention, one might suppose her an escaped abbess from some convent instead of a popular actress. It was with much difficulty that I prevailed on her to receive my son and wife one afternoon; as she remarked that her object in coming here was to secure health, not acquaintances. In treating her professionally I was called upon to prescribe for what, in her case, is more than ordinary sleeplessness, is veritably pervigilium; and when she refused opiates, I asked if there were not some trouble weighing upon her mind which prevented her from sleeping. Her reply was singular: 'Many years have passed since I became a widow, and was forced to leave my only child in America, and the power of sound healthy sleep has deserted me.' Even in Naples, her beauty attracts attention wherever she is seen.

"Certainly I am not a tyro in these matters, and have probably had as much experience as any other man of my years and will improved opportunities, and you can form an estimate of my appreciation of her charms, when I tell you I have followed her since the night I first saw her on the stage at Milan. I see your wife beckoning us to join her."

Although sixty-five years old Gen. Laurance carried himself as erectly as the son he had left Paris, and his proud bearing and handsome face seemed to contradict the record of years that had passed so lightly over him.

Six months before, he had first seen Madame Orme as "Deborah," in Rosenthal's popular drama, and charmed by her face and fingers, had attempted to make her acquaintance. But his floral offerings had been rejected, his jewels and notes returned, his presentation refused, his visits interdicted; and as usually occurs in natures like his, opposition to his wishes intensified them.

Dr. Plymley was an English physician travelling with an invalid wife and consumptive son, and, having been consulted by Mrs. Orme on several occasions in Milan, had at length been prevailed upon by Gen. Laurance to arrange an apparently casual introduction.

It was a cloudless spring day, and leaving Mr. and Mrs. Waul to read a package of American papers, Mrs. Orme walked away toward the lonely outlines of the Serapeon.

Gazing out across the sapphire sea that mirrored a cloudless sapphire sky, Mrs. Orme's beautiful solemn face seemed almost a part of the classic surroundings, a statue of Fate shaken from its ancient niche; and the cameo sappho on her breast was not more faultlessly cut and polished than the features that rose above it.

A shadow fell aslant the glassy water through which was visible the glint of the submerged pavement, and turning her head, she saw the familiar countenance of her quondam physician.

"A glorious day, Dr. Plymley!"

"Glorious indeed, Madame, for a dinner at Baiæ. I hope you are feeling quite well, and bright as this delicious sunshine? Mrs. Orme, will you allow me the favor of presenting my friend, Gen. Laurance, who requests the honor of an introduction?"

She had been unaware of the presence of his companion, who was concealed from view, and as he stepped forward and took off his hat, she drew herself up, and at last they were face to face.

How her brown eyes widened; lightened; and what a sudden whiteness fell upon her features, as if June roses had been smitten with snow!

"Is the gentleman before me General Rene Laurance, of America?"

"I am, Madame; and supremely happy in the accident which enables me to make an acquaintance so long and earnestly desired."

With that unwavering gaze still upon his dark blue eyes, she drew off her glove and held out her fair hand, smiling the while, as Circe doubtless did before her.

"I am sincerely glad to meet General Laurance, of whom I heard the American Minister at Paris speak in glowing terms of commendation. I believe I also met a son of General Laurance in Paris? Certainly he resembles you most strikingly."

As he received into his own the pretty pearly hand, and bowed low over it, he felt agreeably surprised by the cordiality of a reception which appeared utterly inconsistent with her stern contemptuous rejection of his previous attempts to form her acquaintance.

"Ah! My son Cuthbert? Handsome young dog, and, like his father, finds beauty the most powerful magnet. Where did you meet him?"

"Only once, when he was introduced by our Minister, who deputized him to deliver to me some custom-house regulations."

"Did you meet Mrs. Laurance?"

"Your wife, sir."

Annoyance instantaneously clouded his countenance, and Dr. Plymley gnawed his lower lip, to hide a smile.

"My son's wife. Cuthbert and I are the only survivors of my own immediate family."

"If Madame had not so rigidly adhered to her recluse habits, she could scarcely have failed to learn from his brilliant campaigns in gay society that the General is unfettered by matrimonial bonds, and almost as irresistible and popular as his naughty model D'Orsay."

"Madame, Plymley is a traitor, jealously stabbing my spotless reputation. I deny the indictment, and appeal to your heavenly charity, praying you to believe that I plead guilty only to the possession of a heart tenderly vulnerable to the shafts of grace and beauty."

"Beau Monde and its fashionable foibles constitute a sealed volume to me. My world is apart from that in which General Laurance wins myrtle crowns, and wears them so royally."

"When genius like Madame's monopolizes the bay, we less gifted mortals must even twine myrtle leaves, or else humbly bow, bare of chaplets. But may I ask why you so sternly taboo that social world which you are so preeminently to grace and adorn?"

"And if I answer, that the fine world you love so well, is to me but as a grey stone quarry, wherein I daily toil, solely for food and raiment for my child and myself—what then?"

"Then verily if that be possible, Pygmalion's cold beauty were no longer a fable; and I should turn sculptor. Do you not find that here, in Parthenope, you rapidly drift into the classic tide that strands you on Paganism."

"Has it borne you one inch away from the gods of your lifelong worship?"

As she spoke, she bent slightly forward and searched his bright eyes as if therein floated his soul.

"Indeed I can answer reverently with my hand upon my heart: Italy has given me a new worship, a goddess I never knew before. My divinity——"

"Belongs, sir, to the Dii Involuti! Fortunate provision of Fate—which leaves us at least liberty to deify—you, perhaps, family pride—Venus, or even avaricious Pluto; I possibly ambition or revenge. We all have our veiled gods, shrouded close from curious gaze; 'the heart knoweth its own bitterness, and the stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy.'"

NEW SETTLERS IN THE WEST.

The Work done by the C.P.R. Colonization Bureau.

Since the beginning of May as many as 130 families have been settled by the Canadian Pacific Colonization Bureau all over the North-West, but principally on the Red and Assiniboine rivers. These have been all well to do people who would rather pay a couple of thousand for a farm near civilization than take a free grant further west. Many of them wishing to settle their sons, have sold farms in this province which were to small to divide, and bought valuable farms in the North West. Some cautious ones have rented their property till they could try for themselves how things go in the new land. There are many instances of French Canadians who have emigrated to the United States, and, after a short stay there, have got tired of keeping still and moved to Manitoba to settle. No attempt is made to get any one who has not means to settle as they might fail, come back and blame the colonization bureau for their failure. Besides these hundred and eighty families, there are thousands of French Canadians who have gone up to work on the road. Indeed two-thirds of the workmen at Lake Nipissing are French, about a third are French east of Port Arthur, anc at the Lake of the Woods there are a large number employed by lumber firms.—Montreal Witness.

TORONTO.

HYMENEAL.—A large and fashionable assemblage gathered in Knox Church on Thursday morning to witness the marriage of Mr. James Alexander, late of the firm of Alexander & Reid, of this city, to Miss Agnes Mortimer Topp, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Topp, former pastor of Knox Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Parsons.

THE RAILWAY WHISTLE NUISANCE.—The Toronto Mail of June 20th contains the following:—The almost perpetual whistling of locomotives on the Esplanade rendered necessary by the passing and repassing of so many trains has become an intolerable nuisance. At a meeting of railway representatives at Mr. Wragge's office yesterday this question came up. It was stated that in Detroit a penalty of $50 is fixed on all locomotives and steamboats unduly whistling within the limits of the city. Messrs. White, Wragge, and Webster were appointed a deputation to wait on the Mayor and urge him to pass a by-law similar to the one existing in London

THE INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Industrial Exhibition Association was held in the association rooms, Public Library buiining, on Thursday. It was announced that a firm would exhibit during the fair samples of flax in every stage of manufacture. Mr. Elliott said he would be glad to unite with the above an exhibit of the various products of flax seed. Several communications were read, including one from the Western Dairymen's Association of Ingersoll, offering a donation of $100 towards increasing the prize list for dairy products.

The Tully Extradition Case.

NEW YORK, June 18.—In the case of G. T. Tully, the ex-English bank manager, held for extradition on the charge of forgery, the Court decided to-day that his acts purporting to be giving receipts for investments in the funds of the bank did not amount to forgery, as he was an agent of the bank and acting in the course of his duty. Tully was therefore discharged. He was immediately re-arrested in a civil suit for recovery of the amount of his peculation.

Tennis in Ireland.

The winners in the lawn tennis tournament for the championship of Ireland, concluded in Dublin, May 24, were:—All-comers' singles—H. F. Lawford, All-England L.T.C. (challenger) defeated Ernest Renshaw (champion of England) by three sets to love—games 6 to 1, 5 to 4, and 6 to 2. Ladies' doubles—the Misses Langrishe beat the Misses Watson, 11 to 8, and 6 to 2. L. West won the Fitzwilliam Purse, F. O'Carrol the Veterans' Cup, and M. J. Carpendale the Fitzwilliam Plate.

Train Wreckers on Trial.

DETROIT, June 20.—Frank Ross, accused of placing obstructions on the Grand Trunk Railway at Stoney Point, was arraigned before Magistrate Bartlett, at Windsor. The prisoner, who has the appearance of a criminal, conducted his own case. As some evidence necessary to convict was not in readiness, the trial was adjourned until June 24th.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Pain less Corn Extractor to others.

A VISIT TO THE PLACE WHERE PETERBOROUGH'S DEAD ARE AT REST.

"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy For Ever"—The Appearance of the Little Lake Cemetery at this Season of the Year.

It is a pleasure to pay a visit to the Little Lake Cemetery at any time during the summer months, but more particularly so at this season, when Nature has put on her garland of flowers, when the trees and shrubs are decked with their garb of leaves and blossoms—when the roses have opened their petals, and the lively littte birds carrol sweet music from their lofty perches midst the trees of our Canadian woodland. Day after day and Sunday after Sunday, crowds are to be seen wending their way towards our cemetery—that shady and quiet nook where the grass grows so fresh and green, and where fond recollections are ever brought to the mind of those dear friends and relatives that have been laid to rest in their narrow beds. At no time has the cemetery looked so beautiful in all its solemn grandeur as at the present time. The flowers are now in full bloom and the grass is green and fresh looking, while the splendid walks are in excellent condition. A few comments on the general appearance of the lots and graves will not be amiss, and no doubt will be interesting to the readers of the REVIEW.

The G. W. HALL lot is a pretty plot, as flowers are planted in profusion, and an Oddfellow's link—three flower beds—has been made in the lot, which is decidedly picturesque and handsome. Mr. Maxwell Hall has the grave of his daughter, in the same lot, tastefully decorated. An arch, which is supported on either corner by four pillars, and emblematic of the scriptural quotation, "By faith supported as the pillar do the arch," at once attracts the attention of the passer by.

The PETER HAMILTON lot shows signs of care and attention, and the plants, shrubs, etc., are tastefully arranged, while the tall granite monument, which stands to a height of twenty-one feet, gives a very artistic appearance to this otherwise attractive lot.

The HATTON lot, where are resting the remains of our late Police Magistrate, is recieving minute attention. There are vines, shubbery bushes, rose bushes, a Norway pine, and flowers planted in endless profusion.

The ULLYOT lot. This lot is looking unusually well this year. The family of Mr. Ullyot and the superintendant are alike bestowing attention on it, while many mementos are visible, thus showing that something is constantly being done to beautify and adorn the last resting place of the dead.

The GEO. MCCOMBES lot. A new feature in connection with beautifying graves is a frame of iron piping the length and width of the grave, with one bar and canopy and tablets. The fountain enclosure is constructed of pipes, which when filled with water, serves not only as an enclosure, but vases are attached in which flowers, plants and vines may be planted. These are supplied with moisture, caused by the evaporation of water from the pipes through the vases.

The lot of the late JOHN MCGHEE is a pretty one, and in connection with the flowers and shrubs, a large marble monument marks the last resting place of one of Peterborough's faithful public servants.

The JOHN MCWILLIAMS lot is showing signs of vast improvement. The graves are nicely decorated with geraniums, roses, and various other flowers.

The ATTRILL lot is also an attractive one. At present there are no flowers or shrubs planted, but a nice iron frame encloses the graves, and other points about it arrest attention.

The THOS. BEAVIS lot also gives evidence of the best of attention, and looks unusually well.

The WM. ARMSTRONG lot adjoining is a very pretty one, being planted with flowers, shrubs etc.

The H. CALCUTT lot is, as usual, tastefully decorated with flowers, shrubs and vases—all looking beautiful.

The CONGOR lot, although one of the oldest in the cemetery, is looking green and fresh. It is surrounded by a green hedge, while a beautiful white rose bush adds to the beauty of the lot.

The HENTHORN lot, wherein are placed the remains of the late Squire Henthorn, has also a beautiful green hedge surrounding it. Other improvements are to be made by the Superintendent.

The SCORELL lot is made attractive by a beautiful peony plant, which has a double flower on each stem—one different in color and appearance from the other, and a handsome honey suckle bush—each of which cost the sum of twenty five dollars each.

The WHITE lot, which has always been one of the best cared for and attractive in the cemetery, is this year looking unusually well. The flowers, which are planted in profusion, are multifarious in kind, while the shrubs, hanging baskets, etc., add a singular charm to the spot.

The LANNIN lot is also presenting a beautiful appearance this summer.

The late GEO. E. SHAW lot looks as if careful hands were daily adding to the beauty of it, as flowers, etc., are planted in endless variety.

The HUSTON lot is a pretty one. The grave is tastefully decorated, and other noticeable features are apparent.

The RUBIDGE lot, wherein are placed the remains of the late Capt. Rubidge and relatives looks picturesque and neat.

The REV. V. CLEMENTI lot is a fine one. Although not yet planted with flowers or shrubs, the surrounding stone-work is quite enough to attract attention. It is a smooth lime stone embedded in the earth, and has four pillars of the same quality of stone on each corner. A very handsome monument is to be placed in the lot by Mr. Thos. Moore, who furnished the stone surrounding the lot, which will make it a decidedly handsome spot.

The GALLEY lot is also a very artistic one, and constant attention and care is made visible by the beautiful appearance it presents.

The ODDFELLOWS' lot. This is a delightful piece of ground, and is tastefully and appropriately laid out. Three links of flower beds adorn the grounds, and other attractions will not fail to draw the notice of visitors.

The HALL lot. This lot is jointly owned by Messrs. Adam and Robert Hall, and is indeed a beautiful one. A new design of flower vases are to be seen, which should be recommended. An endless profusion of beautiful flowers, vases and ornaments decorate the lot.

The MASONIC lot. This Society has also purchased a splendid plot of ground wherein to place the remains of their brethren. It is situated on the north point of the cemetery. No doubt the Masons will have it nicely laid out with flower beds, etc. An iron panel around it would also add to its good appearance.

The WM. MERCER lot. In the centre of this lot stands a fine marble monument with the cross of our Saviour on the top. The lot is otherwise beautified with flowers, etc.

DR. KING'S lot is extremely handsome. Flowers of various kinds are planted in profusion, and hanging baskets, shrubs, roses and vines make the spot particularly attractive and pretty.

The JOHN SPENCER lot shows signs of care and attention, and it is evident that those who are asleep 'neath the green grass below are not forgotten.

The ROBERT HAMILTON lot looks, as usual, in excellent order. Constant care is bestowed on the grass and flowers, and it is pleasing to note how well everything in the lot looks.

The JOHN FOSTER lot, (Smith), which has a very handsome English granite monument placed in it, presents a picturesque appearance.

The ROBERT NICHOLLS lot shows signs of improvement.

The late WM. HALL lot is, as usual, well attended to, receiving constant care from the superintendent and relations of the deceased.

The LEWIS lot. In this lot are placed the remains of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lewis. Mrs. Lewis died last year, and Mr. Lewis, it will be remembered, died suddenly this summer, and now they sleep side by side in this pretty and picturesque plot, where they await the sound of the last trumpet, when the graves will give up their dead.

The CAPT. WALLIS lot is indeed a pretty one. A flower bed in the shape of a cross is thickly planted with flowers, while on every side the handiwork of relatives is made visible, and every possible act is done to beautify and adorn the last resting place of dear, dead and gone friends.

The JAS. HOWDEN lot has been much enlarged and generally improved.

The STUART lot, (Otonabee), is also showing signs of great improvement. A very handsome monument is to be placed in it shortly by Mr. Thos. Moore.

The WALTER PATEREON lot is indeed a handsome one, and gives evidence of unusual care and attention. The iron railing, chairs, vases, etc., have been newly painted. Beautiful flowers have been planted, and the shrubs and small trees are doing well.

The ROGERS lot is looking fresh and green. Herein are deposited the remains of the late lamented Geo. C. Rogers, and upon his grave a wreath of flowers has been placed by loving hands.

The GOODFELLOW lots, (Robert and Archie, Springville). These lots are looking very handsome. It is evident that those who have gone on before are constantly occupying the thoughts of friends here.

The late SAMUEL DICKSON lot. This lot is looking in beautiful order. The flowers, etc., together with the monument, make the spot look unusually attractive.

The SANDERSON lot is also looking very nicely—the flowers, etc., are doing well.

The HAULTAIN-DENNISTOUN lot. This very pretty spot is receiving great care and attention. The graves are nicely decorated, and the green grass lends a singular charm to the lot.

The late JUDGE HALL lot is receiving the best of attention—it always looks well, and this year it is, perhaps, ahead of former years.

The late COL. HAALTAIN lot gives evidence of excellent care, and at present looks decidedly pretty.

The J. W. FLAVELLE lot is, perhaps, one of the prettiest in the cemetery. A star flower bed is filled with an endless variety of beautiful flowers. Beside the grave stands a handsome vase, also filled with flowers.

The GILMORE lot is, as usual, well attended to.

The JAS. EDWARDS lot has been greatly enlarged and improved. Four lots have been added to it, and the whole is surrounded by a green hedge. The flowers are growing splendidly, and everything looks lovely.

The EDMUND CHAMBERLAIN lot has been undergoing some extensive repairs. The monument has been thoroughly cleaned, flowers planted, and the lot generally improved.

The Rev. MARK BURNHAM, DRS. BURNHAM, BOUCHER and BURRITT lot is indeed a picturesque one. It is well cared for and presents a highly creditable appearance.

The PETER CONNAL lot, although last on our list is by no means least. Flowers, shrubs and vines, and the immense granite monument all look attractive.

Time and space prevents us from mentioning more at present, suffice it to say that the whole cemetery—all the lots, with scarcely an exception—looks well, and gives evidence of careful attention.

NOTES.

Mr. Kelly intends to terrace the south-eastern portion of the cemetery—nearly opposite the vault, in a short time. This improvement will add still greater beauty to this already picturesque portion.

A good idea that is carried out by many who have vacant lots, is the putting into the earth of a small marble post about a foot in length, with the initials of the owner of the lot on it, so there is little or no trouble in finding the lot if the Superintendant is not close at hand to point it out.

That portion of the cemetery which lies north-east of the chapel, has been turned into good account by Mr. Kelly. It formerly was one of the roughest spots in the Cemetery, but now the whole scene has been changed—the place has assumed a pleasant and picturesque appearance—until there is no portion of the Cemetery any better.

That portion of the Cemetery known as the flat has also received marked attention. Although not shaded with trees like other portions, it has been under the pruning knife, and the consequence is, it is an improvement.

Perhaps one of the many good things accomplished in this part has escaped notice. This is a piece of work that has been done directly east of the Chapel. A large diamond-shaped mound has been made, with a roadway through it each way. Trees are planted on each of these triangular corners, and in one of them a neat little fountain has been set to work. If this portion of the Cemetery has escaped observation before, it is not because it was unworthy of it.

On the right of the Superintendant's residence, trees have been cut down to make room for a large shed or building for the storage of tools, waggons, and other utinsils that are constantly in use accomplishing work in the Cemetery. The thick under-brush is to be cut away to give a better and more artistic appearance to this place, and other improvements are under contemplation.

A gentleman from the City of Toronto, who visited the Cemetery on Sunday last, expressed the opinion that he had seen the principal Cemeteries in the United States and Canada, and that none of them looked so well, or was any better kept than ours. This is highly complimentary to the painstaking and energetic Superintendant, Mr. John Kelly, who is ever untiring in his efforts to accomplish some improvement to add still greater beauty to this picturesque far-famed and "City of the Dead."

The Death Rate.

The following are the interments and cause of death that have been entered in the Superintendent's book at the Little Lake Cemetery for the month of June 1884, up to date, and for the same month in the year 1883 :—

| | 1884. |
|---|---|
| Heart Disease | 2 |
| Paralysis | 1 |
| Nervous System | 1 |
| Disease of the Brain | 1 |
| Old Age | 1 |
| Total | 6 |

It will be seen that the death rate for this month (June) has been light, while in the same month in the proceding year, it was :—

| | |
|---|---|
| Congestion of Brain | 3 |
| Found Dead | 1 |
| Measles | 4 |
| Consumption | 2 |
| Congestion of the Lungs | 2 |
| Typhoid Fever | 2 |
| Old Age | 1 |
| Disease of the Bowels | 1 |
| Total | 16 |

There were also five re-interments from other cemeteries that are not included in the above.

A Collision at Belleville.

A collision occurred at Belleville at about 3.15 o'clock on Saturday afternoon between a freight train and a ballast train of the Midland division. The ballast train was shunting in the yard when a special freight train came in and collided with the ballast train. The engine of the special was thrown off the track and almost capsized. It was badly wrecked, and one car of that train was demolished and two derailed. Six or seven cars of the ballast train were badly damaged. Although work was at once commenced to clear the track it was not completed until one o'clock on Sunday morning. The evening Grand Junction train was delayed and did not arrive here until between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1884.

HALF ACCOMPLISHED.

RECIPROCITY, from the very nature of things, cannot be all on one side. Both parties to a transaction must act in accord to make it reciprocal.

Canada has already legislated for a free interchange of natural produce with its neighbouring republic. It now rests with the United States to take a similar step, and reciprocity is accomplished.

Canada has advanced half way, and the United States must come the other half, or obviously there cannot be reciprocity.

THE RAILWAY NUISANCE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Referring to a letter in your edition of yesterday, signed "Ratepayer and Property Owner," I should be much obliged if you will kindly state that the Grand Trunk are anxious to do everything in their power in order to prevent inconvenience to the public, and if the writer of the letter in question will be kind enough to call upon Mr. Ferguson or myself, we shall be happy to discuss the question with him, but we must have some specific charges in order to enable us to deal with them.

Yours truly,
A. WHITE,
District Traffic Agent.
Peterborough, June 24, 1884.

ENGLAND AND THE SOUDAN.

SUFFICIENCY OF THE BRITISH TROOPS.

LONDON, June 20.—In the House of Commons yesterday Lord Hartington said the Government believes the British and Egyptian forces now in Egypt are sufficient to defend Upper Egypt.

PILGRIMS FROM KHARTOUM.

A Suakin despatch says twenty one pilgrims have arrived from Khartoum. They left Berber on May 25, and say Khartoum was then safe and had a full supply of provisions.

TURKISH INTERVENTION.

Turkish intervention in Egypt or the Soudan is excluded under the terms of agreement between France and England. Colonel Wood has been instructed to echelon the whole Egyptian army between Assouan and Wadyhalfa by the end of June. Several battalions of English infantry will proceed to Assouan, where an entrenched camp is being constructed.

A DOUBTFUL RUMOUR.

A Cairo despatch says it is stated on good authority that the governor of Dongola is devoted to El Mahdi.

THE GOVERNOR OF DONGOLA.

The report current in Cairo that the Governor of Dongola is devoted to El Mahdi is extremely unlikely. Hussein Ben Khalifa Pasha, the general in question, has no more than one occasion rendered the England signal service in the Soudan. He is the son of the old Prince of the Ababdes. His father surrendered to Mehemet Ali, and received as a reward a state situation in Upper Egypt. After the the disaster of General Hicks, when the situation at Khartoum became critical, the Khedive appointed him Governor of Berber and Dongola, and made him a Pasha. Hussein Ben Khalifa then proceeded to Berber but subsequently took up his quarters in Dongola. There can be no doubt that the presence of Hussein Pasha had great influence, and procured a period of tranquility for the tribes of the Ababdes and the Bishareen. Indeed, it is chiefly due to Hussein Pasha that General Gordon found the Khartoum road open.

"The Hour but Not the Man."

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 21. — Emma Fletcher was to have been married on Wednesday to Sidney Callendar, and extensive arrangements had been made for the wedding. At the hour appointed Miss Fletcher received a telegram from Callendar, dated New York, saying he had met with financial misfortune, and requesting a postponement of their marriage. Callendar stated he would be in Bridgeport on the following day, but has not been heard of since.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

FOLLOWS A GOOD EXAMPLE.

The Winnipeg Times, following in the rut of the Peterborough REVIEW, devotes considerable space to expressing its gratification at the conversion of the Free Press to National Policy views, because we admitted in an article on "India's competition in wheat-growing," that the development of manufacturing industries in an agricultural country like India would give the natives "a greater purchasing power in the matter of food."—Ottawa Free Press (Ref.).

THE HIGHEST MARK YET.

Canada floating a three and one half per cent loan at £91 9s. 6d. is the highest mark in the steady rise of the country's credit. The transaction is one that will be received with satisfaction.—Monetary Times.

DEFYING EXPERIENCE.

We know that the theory of the consumer always paying all the duties is not really believed in by those who pretend to believe in it. English manufacturers, and still more American manufacturers, understand full well that on articles which are made in Canada they have to reduce prices in order to sell in this market. But, in utter defiance of business experience, the doctrine is still taught in free trade text books that the consumer always pays all the duty.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.).

UNPATRIOTIC JOURNALS.

In their efforts to force us into free trade English and American manufacturers do great injury to Canadian industries, and to themselves at the same time. The sooner they are made to understand that the war is fruitless, and that the Canadian N. P. has come to stay, the sooner they will give up the wasteful fight. That the fight continues at all is largely because of the unpatriotic course followed by the Hamilton Times and other free trade journals in Canada. —Canadian Manufacturer.

EXCEPT ANGLIN'S PRINTING JOB.

We have no interest in defending "jobs," whoever may be the "jobbers." Quite the reverse. Toronto World.

CRYING DOWN CANADA.

The Globe has the London press most at its back in crying down Canada's credit in England.—Toronto World (Indep. Reform).

ANGLIN ON CORRUPTION.

Fancy a man who sat in the speaker's chair with a government printing contract and was put out of his seat in Parliament impeaching any Government for corruption! This is pure Grit hypocrisy.—Winnipeg Times.

HONEST AND GOOD VALUE.

This, however, remains to be said of Canadian textiles, cotton or woollen, that, as a whole they are honest goods, of undeniably good value at present prices, and that, in finish and wear they challenge competition with the products of any country.—Monetary Times.

DISLOYALTY DENOUNCED.

Poor Sir Richard! At the Adolphustown United Empire Loyalist demonstration he had to listen to all the speakers denounce independence. No wonder he did not dare to advocate it before such an assembly. The constituency which rejected him in 1878 will have none of it.—Ottawa Citizen.

OUR PROFFERED RECIPROCITY.

The Globe very carefully avoids saying what terms it would consider fair, but the tone of its remarks indicates pretty plainly that it takes the American view of reciprocity, not the Canadian one. As we have time and again shown, the American view is that reciprocity should consist of the exchange of American manufactured goods for Canadian raw products. The Canadian view, as embodied in one important clause of an act which has been on our statute book for now five years, is that natural or raw products only shall be included in the bargain. —Canadian Manufacturer.

The Eno Extradition Case.

So far the prosecution seem to have proved nothing beyond the fact that Eno had in his capacity of the Second National Bank signed and issued cheques, the funds of which were diverted to other sources than the legitimate business of the bank. There is nothing of an extraditable character in those acts. There was one piece of damaging evidence offered, but rejected as being hearsay, and that was that Eno had issued some of this paper after he had ceased to be president of the bank.

In the course of his cross-examination Mr. Allen, the accountant, said he had seen in the books no evidence of Eno's signing any other parties' names for the purpose of obtaining money from the bank under false pretences. He also said that the entries suppressed in the demand loan-book were all found in the general ledger.

This concluded the examination of the witness, and he left to night for New York. The court will meet on Monday and proceed with the examination of Mr. Roberts, of the bank.

Eno is in good spirits, and the general impression amongst lawyers and others is that he cannot be extradited.

It now turns out that the statement that Eno, as president of the bank, had signed and issued cheques after ceasing to be president, is not true, because the question arises, Is issuing a check wrongfully forgery? In fact the case as it proceeds seems to glaze the accused in a more favorable light. From a statement just compiled, it appears that the amount paid to the bank to cover the deficiency by the seven shareholders, taking the number of shares held by each as the basis, Eno paid over one and a half million dollars more than his share, and, indeed, it can be proved that the alleged deficiency of $145,000 is more than balanced by surplus and interest accounts in books of the bank.

Eno stated to a correspondent that he expected to get through without trouble, a conviction generally shared by all interested in the case. If cleared he will select his domicile in Quebec and send for his wife and family. Counsel on both sides expect to get through the evidence on Tuesday, but as it is lengthy it is probable the judge may take some few days before giving his decision.

Of these 26 are returning elders, who have been absent two years gathering in the faithful in foreign lands. Of the converts who came in the steerage 406 are Scandinavians, and the remainder are from Great Britain, and principally English. The majority of the immigrants are farm laborers. ### NORTHWEST SPECULATIONS.

The following paragraph, taken from a trade journal, is worthy of note in more respects than one :—

"The creditors of Slaven & Co., of Napanee, are willing to accept seventy cents on the dollar, and a compromise will likely be arranged on that basis. Slaven's difficulties have been caused principally through speculating the Northwest."

This is only a specimen of numerous items to the same effect, which show plainly two things.

First, the inaccuracy of the anti-national press in attributing every failure to depression in business, and secondarily to the National Policy, when in fact many of them either occurred in the North West, or in consequence of investments there, outside of the regular business of the investors, which was crippled by this imprudence.

Second, the unreasonableness of many six months citizens of the North West, who talk as if the older Province were hostile to them, while in fact the North West has been built up chiefly by the older Provinces, in many cases at heavy cost to our people, as in the instance under notice. Some of the sham farmers are the very creatures of such infortunate investments from Ontario.

THE DEFENCE AGGRAVATES THE CRIME.

THE Belleville Ontario comes to the defence of the Coe-Pardee job, and does so by the use of misrepresentations and abuse, of which the REVIEW comes in for its full share. It taunts us with our "ignorance," though it knows that our complaint is that we are wilfully kept in ignorance by the impertinent and dishonest refusal of Mr. Pardee to give the information ordered by the Legislature, and his persistence in hiding away the details of the job in the pigeon holes of his office, so as to keep from the public the particulars of this transaction, thus owned to be unfit for the light of day.

We are attacked by our contemporary for pointing out that Mr. Coe is not smelting his iron ore, but is shipping it to the States, and we are told that the ore cannot be smelted in Ontario. If so Mr. Coe and Mr. Pardee are far worse than we supposed, for the one has been fraudulently obtaining and the other fraudulently granting, valuable timbered land, on the false pretence that it was to supply fuel for the furnaces. Is this dodge revealed by the Belleville Ontario only another device for monopolizing more completely the valuable minerals of Peterborough and Hastings counties?

The assertion that Mr. Coe's grab does not comprise good agricultural land is another falsehood, as is proved by the fact that intending settlers have applied for the land to make farms for themselves, but find it already monopolized.

These are only specimens of the misrepresentations of our contemporary, which, if it can make no better defence for its patrons, might well imitate Mr. Pardee in his dishonest refusal to tell the people of Ontario how he has disposed of their property entrusted to his charge.

Again we ask Mr. Pardee to announce the lands for which Mr. Coe has applied, and which Mr. Pardee is holding for Mr. Coe, though deferring the grant, the better to enable Mr. Coe to defraud the municipalities of taxes upon property, which is virtually his, by a dishonest agreement with this unfaithful trustee of our property.

ANOTHER REFORM FICTIONIST.

At the Reform picnic at Knowlton, Mr. Edward Blake, if we may believe the report of the Globe (which perhaps it would be rash to do) gave utterance to a deliberate falsehood, advancing a step further than heretofore, when he has only insinuated the same untruth. According to the chief Reform journal the Reform leader said :—

"The cottons, woollens, crockery bought by the poor pay about double the duty charged on the finest kinds."

It was bad enough when Mr. Blake said the poor man was thus taxed, but in his ignorance of such matters he may not quite understand the difference between imposing a duty and exacting a tax. But when he says that the poor man pays, he has not even this flimsy excuse, for he knows that he is uttering an untruth. For the cottons, the tweeds, the crockery, &c., of which Mr. Blake speaks, the poor man need not and does not pay the duty, for thanks to the National Policy he can buy Canadian goods, which pay no duty, while they are both better and cheaper than those he bought before the charge. The increased amount of customs duties now collected is paid chiefly for luxuries, possibly by Mr. Black's poor man, who since Mr. Blake went out of power, may be able to buy a broad cloth coat for himself and a silk dress for his wife, if he fancies it, and he does not grudge paying a share of the public expenses of the country by a tax upon such superfluities. Mr. Blake did tax the poor man, yes and the poor woman, for he made them pay duty or their cup of tea or coffee, which almost all consume, and as Canada cannot produce them the duty was added to the cost. Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues, as soon as they had restored the financial position of the country, shaken so badly by their incompetent predecessors, took off this tax, and poor men and women no longer pay this impost on their cup of tea or coffee.

WATERWORKS AND CHEAP INSURANCE RATES.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—At the time the construction of waterworks was agitated, the plea was made by insurance agents that fire risks would be lessened, and lower rates obtainable, but this has proved a failure utterly unwarrantable, as the following fact will verify :—One of my stores having been insured for $3,000, for which a premium of $21 has been paid for years before the existence of waterworks ; by making additions this year, lessening the fire risk by doing away with shingles and gravel roof and covering the same with galvanized iron, a premium of $32 is asked for the sum of $4,000. Is there any greater risk now, with a hydrant in front of my building? The public have read the flattering results of the inspection of waterworks by men representing insurance companies, who felt pleased with them. It cannot be said that insurance companies have suffered great losses in Peterborough the last twenty years to warrant such exorbitant prices. If it is monopoly it is well worth while for property holders to consider the matter, and find means to protect themselves against such combinations. Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

Yours, etc.,
W. LECH.

FOR THE NORTH-WEST.

Successful Efforts of the C.P.R. in the Cause of Repatriation.

The success of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the work of repatriating French Canadians who have settled in the United States and providing them with homes in the North-West is at present attracting widespread attention. The Company, by an admirable arrangement is sending agents throughout every township in this Province and is turning the tide of emmigration to that portion of the Dominion in no small degree by supplying farmers with free grant lands. Already in the District of Montreal, many habitants have sold their farms and proceeded west and their subsequent success has created such an impression among their countrymen that many are following their example. One party consisting of about one hundred and seven settlers have already left for the North-West this spring. The counties so far worked up have been Three Rivers, Nicolet, Maskinonge, Richelieu, and Vandreuil. The lower portion of the Province, which has been neglected so far, will be attended to at once. The majority of the French Canadians are settling in Qu'Appelle Valley, where there is an abundance of wood and water. Contrary to the expectation of the railway company, many refused the offers of free grant lands in the railway belt but preferred to purchase farms from their own means. In several cases wealthy farmers from this Province have farms consisting of three or four thousand acres. Fully two-thirds of the French Canadians settled in the North-West hail from the New England States.

The Canadian Pacific will despatch another party of settlers under the direction of Mr. L. O. Armstrong, from the Quebec Gate depot on July 2nd. The party will proceed via the O & Q Railway, the lakes and the C.P.R., to the North-West.—Montreal Star.

SERIOUS FIRE AT MONTREAL.

An Hotel Demolished — Six Men Buried Alive—Loss, $170,000.

A great fire broke out at Montreal early on Sunday morning last in the large shirt factory of Messrs. Skelton Bros. & Co., in St. Henry street. In twenty minutes or less three sides of the building fell in. The eastern wall of the factory dropped down upon the Eagle hotel, a three-story brick house adjoining, belonging to Mr. Louis Liment, and cut off one-half, the premises containing nine rooms, all of which were occupied by sleepers. In a moment six men in their beds were partially buried under the debris, whilst those on the first and second floors rushed out on the street in time to save their lives. Messrs. Skelton Bros. & Co. approximately estimate their loss on stock at $130,000, not by any means as large as it would have been had the conflagration been a week or so later, when their imports of goods for the fall trade will arrive from Europe.

The United States Shipping Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The conference committee on the Shipping Bill have agreed upon their report. The free ship feature is stricken out, and a substitute for the subsidy feature has been agreed upon, providing for the repeal of all laws which arbitrarily require American vessels to carry mail matter at two cents. per letter, and which prevent an American vessel clearing until such mail matter is received. The repeal does not take effect until April 1st, 1885.

Gilchrist Scholarship Examination.

This examination concluded on Friday at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. The examiners were J. G. Holmes, of Wingham and W. H. Fraser, of Toronto. This is the last of these examinations in Canada, the scholarship having been withdrawn by the trustees of the Gilchrist fund.

Confession of Wife-Murder.

DETROIT, June 23.—Andrew Long, in gaol charged with the murder of his wife near Muir, made full confession in the presence of the sheriff and two others. He says about midnight he went to the barn without putting on his pantaloons, got an oak club, and came back to the house where his wife was in bed. He struck her three or four blows on the head, and and thinking he had caused her death, he then got a razor and cut his hands to make the people believe he had been attacked by burglars. Then got a gun and knocked out a light of glass and fired through the opening. He broke off a nail that fastened the window and three it down, and then went to the barn and turned his horse loose. He went back to the house, took the money out of his pantaloons, hid it in the straw and carried off the pantaloons. He then returned to the house to see if his wife was dead, and found her still breathing. He took the club and threw it into the grass near his wife's window, after which he started for the house of Frank Connor, to give the alarm. He threw the razor into a pasture lot on the way. When he returned he found his wife still alive. He says he has a distinct recollection of all that transpired, and did it as deliberately as he would go out and get an armful of wood. He says he cannot give any reason for killing her, except he thought he ought to. This is the most brutal and cold-blooded murder ever committed in Iona county. The motive which induced Long to commit the crime is still locked in his own guilty breast. The confession was made at his request. The money was found in the place where he said he hid it.

Temperance in Peterborough County.

We find the following paragraph in the Montreal Witness :—

It is now about six years ago since the Dunkin Act was carried in the town of Peterborough by one hundred and ten, and in the county by about nine hundred of a majority, but by some flaw the Act never came into force in the county and in the town they could not enforce it and repealed it in about a year, consequently the people are slow in taking up the Scott Act, though I think it could be carried by one thousand of a majority. Several temperance societies have been opened during the winter and spring and the submission of the Scott Act was talked about, but, as far as I am aware, no active steps were taken till, on May 31st, at a meeting of the lodge of I.O.G.T., at Lang, the following resolution was passed: Resolved that in the opinion of this society, the Scott Act could be carried in the county of Peterborough by a large majority, and that we actively engage for its submission to the electors and that our secretary correspond with other temperance organizations to secure united action. So I think that before long we can have a county convention, organize and get to work in earnest.—Con.

Sensible Maxims

Never be idle. If your mind cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live, (misfortune excepted) within your income. Do business only with men that have one price, any man that will ask you 50cts. and take 40cts. will cheat you or your neighbour. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it, and when you want value for your money go to KELLYS. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow unless you cannot possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. Read the above maxims at least once a week.

3. That a moiety of the account of the Board of Education be paid, provided that the County is legally liable therefor, and that no part of the account is charged for Mr. Brown's services.

4. That the Clerk be instructed to notify the Clerk of the Peace of the County and the Police Magistrate of the Town of Peterborough that owing to negligence in not promptly furnishing returns of lists of convictions for printing each quarter, this County is put to increased and unnecessary expense, and to request that the returns be provided at the proper time and the difficulty thus remedied.

5. That the time for payment of any instalments of money due this Council by the Township of Burleigh be extended until next January.

6. That $25 be granted to the Norwood High School in addition to the usual Government equivalent.

7. Your Committee recommend that the memoranda attached of accounts paid by your Treasurer on the authority of your Warden, &c., or under contracts duly entered into, be confirmed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. R. KIDD,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 20, 1884.

Mr. KIDD moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. SANDERSON moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. MOLONEY.—That the report be referred back with instructions to strike out the grant to the Norwood high school.

The amendment was lost on the following division :—

YEAS,—Messrs. Moloney, McCliggott, Hicks, Crough, Mansfield, Stewart, Sanderson and Lang.—8.

NAYS, — Messrs. Stevenson (Asphodel) Walsh, Burnham, Strickland, Kidd, Stephenson (Norwood), Brown and Elmhurst.—8.

The motion to adopt the report was lost on same division reversed.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. MANSFIELD,—That the report be referred back with instructions to insert a grant of $250 to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute as well as the grant of $250 to the Norwood high school, on the condition that pupils from the county be admitted free.

Mr. BURNHAM said that the Collegiate Institute would not accept this grant, as it received $125 now from Ashburnham, and the motion would only increase the grant by $125. It would only be a farce to pass it.

Mr. KIDD supported the motion, which was lost on the following division :—

YEAS,—Messrs. Strickland, Mansfield, Kidd, Stephenson (Norwood) and Brown.—5.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moloney, McCliggott, Walsh, Stevenson (Asphodel), Hicks, Crough, Burnham, Elmhurst, Forster, Stewart and Sanderson.—11.

Mr. MCCLIGGOT, moved, seconded by Mr. MANSFIELD,—That the report be referred back to make the grant to the Norwood high school $50.—Lost.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. KIDD,—That the report be referred back with instructions to make a grant of $500 to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, as well as the $250 to the Norwood high school, on the condition that pupils from the county be admitted free.

The motion was declared lost on the following division :—

YEAS.—Messrs. Burnham, Stevenson (Asphodel), Mansfield, Strickland, Kidd, Stevenson (Norwood), Elmhirst and Brown.—8.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moloney, Walsh, McCliggott, Hicks, Crough, Forster, Stewart and Sanderson.—8.

There appeared to be no prospect of the deadlock being broken, and the Council adjourned at 6 o'clock until 9 o'clock on Saturday morning.

The Council resumed at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, the Warden in the chair.

THE DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Mr. KIDD moved the adoption of the Finance Committee's report,

Mr. MOLONEY moved in amendment, seconded Mr. SANDERSON,—That that portion of the report recommending the grant of $250 to the Norwood High School be struck out.

Mr. SANDERSON said that the school had received $567,84 from the Government, and the County grant raised it to $1300. He thought they should be content.

Mr. W. H. Stephenson said that in 1882 and 1883 the school had received nothing from the county besides the government grant and its equivalent. They had erected a new school building, and they asked a grant towards it, as they had a debt of $1,600.

Mr. KIDD supported the grant.

Mr. BURNHAM said that the argument that the grant should not be made because no grant was made to the Peterborough school was not a good one, as if it was right to give the grant it should be done.

Mr. MOLONEY said that he offered the grant on principle. If they voted these grants it would encourage the legislature to make it compulsory for the counties to maintain these schools. If the county had to sustain them they would soon have plenty of grammar schools.

Mr. BURNHAM said that the school had been established at the instigation of the county.

The amendment was carried in the following division :—

For the adoption of the report :—Messrs. Walsh, Stephenson, Burnham, Kidd, Stevenson, Brown and Elmhirst—7.

In favor of the amendment :—Messrs. Moloney, McCliggott, Hicks, Crough, Mansfield, Foster, Stewert, Fitzgerald and Sanderson—9.

The report was accordingly amended, and adopted as amended.

A By-law confirming the report was introduced by Mr. Kidd and passed through its various stages.

SCHOOL MONEYS.

A By-law was also introduced and passed through its several stages for the purposes of levying a rate for raising $2,472 for school purposes as equivalent to the Legislative grant, as follows :—

CONFIRMATORY BY-LAWS.

A By-law to confirm the report of the Road and Bridge Committee was adopted.

A By-law was also adopted appointing the Warden and Messrs. Moloney, Sanderson and Strickland, with the Engineer, a Committee on the rebuilding or repairing of the Young's Point bridge, in accordance with the Street and Bridge Committee's report.

KINGSTON.

AMMUNITION.—Fifty thousand rounds of ammunition were shipped to Montreal on June 18th per steamer and forty thousand rounds to Brockville. The military equipments from the Adolphustown camp arrived on the steamer Hero for the military stores to-day.

A SMALL PROCESSION.—Last night the Salvation procession was an exceedingly small one, and the stalwart drummer was absent. The drum was laced to a young woman's back, while another young woman wielded the stick with telling effect.

DULL TIMES.—The Surrogate reports that the matrimonial market is very dull, more so than it has been for many years. The two months in the year in which the most marriages are effected are June and December, more especially the latter month.

LACROSSE.—The Kingston lacrosse club met on Wednesday night and decided to challenge the Napanee club to play here at the Catholic picnic on the 14th of July. As the Maple Leafs cannot get a club to play with them on Dominion Day, it is probable the $25 prize will be competed for by the Kingston and Perth clubs. The latter is willing to come to Kingston.

GOOD NEWS.—The assistant general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has announced that the telegraphic system between Montreal and Toronto over the Ontario and Quebec Railway line has been finished, and will be opened in two weeks. The company is in hopes of completing the through line to the Rocky Mountains in a very short period, and of also accepting public business.—News.

BELLEVILLE.

THE RACES.—The various classes in the trotting meeting which is to be held here on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next have all been filled except the colt race, and for it a green race has been substituted. The entries have been as follows :—2.25 class—Charlie, Elsie Groff, James Halfpenny and Jennie. 3.00 class—Maggie May, Stadacona, King Star, and Gallant. 2.30 class—General Brock, Victor, Jennie, and James Halfpenny. 2.45 class—Charlie, Kink Star, Maggie May, and Gallant. Open trot—Little Sious, Moose, Elsie Groff, and Jennie. Green race—Brewery Boy, Loyal, Bay Billy, Stadacona, Lady Julian, and Florence. Several of the horses have already arrived, and others are on the way.

Railway Collision at Welland.

WELLAND, June 22.—This morning about seven o'clock No. 310 special going south with a caboose on the Welland branch of the Grand Trunk railway collided with No. 28 regular freight at the station here, wrecking both engines, tenders and six cars. Brakesman Wells, on No. 28, was instantly killed; Fireman Tremellion, on No. 28, died in less than an hour; the fireman on No. 310 was badly injured, but will recover; Taylor, engineer on No. 28, was slightly hurt. A wrecking train was on in two hours. No. 28 had the right of way, but it is not known whose fault caused the collision.

LATER PARTICULARS.—The trains which collided here this morning were No. 28 freight bound east, and a special bound west in charge of Conductor Nesbitt. The special left Allanburg on the time of No. 28 and without orders. No. 28 was about four hours late. The trains met at this station, with the result already reported. The fireman of the special was the only one on that train injured. Conductor Nesbitt made himself scarce, and has not been seen since the accident. He was formerly yard boss of the Great Western Railway at Hamilton. The fatalities were all on No. 28. The fireman and brakesman killed were attached to that train. The engine driver of No. 28 was slightly injured.

Drink Buttermilk.

The following letter appears in the Montreal Witness :

SIR,—What becomes of our buttermilk? As far as we can gather, it is given to the pigs. Now, this is just one more illustration of our wasteful habits, as buttermilk is a most wholesome drink for young and old and should be utilized for that purpose. On the continent of Europe and the United States of America the good qualities of buttermilk are fully appreciated, and it forms part and parcel of the daily diet of the people. According to a prominent physician it contains a variety of substances, caseine, lactic acid, sulphur, sodium, lime and, it may be, a small portion of sulphuric acid. One doctor says: "It is a valuable beverage for laboring men, and I urge its use instead of beer." In New York and Philadelphia the Germans appear to be becoming better customers than the Irish, who have always been noted buttermilk drinkers. The Germans find that buttermilk is as good as beer, which it is superseding. All men who are total abstainers and the laboring men especially, will find good buttermilk superior to coffee or tea in the coming hot weather. One dairy in the State of New York has sold as much as 1,000 quarts in a day, and averages from 600 to 700 quarts. Any coffee house or restaurant introducing good buttermilk into Montreal is bound to attract lots of customers when its value as a drink is more fully known.

JAS. A. KIDNER.

Guelph, Ontario.

N.B.—Sweet milk is often found to disagree. Buttermilk never.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

The Woman's Physician.

A common sense medical work for ladies only. Fully answers all questions which modesty prevents asking a male physician. Gives causes and symptoms of all diseases of the sex, with positive cure for each in plain language, written by ladies who have made these diseases a life study. A plain talk in delicate language which every woman, young and old, should read. It is recommended by many eminent lady physicians as a safe guide for the sex. Handsomely bound and illustrated. Sent postpaid for $1.00. Address the ROCHESTER PUBLISHING CO., 32, 33 & 33½ Osburn Block, Rochester, N.Y.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubbornly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. Worth Knowing.

While prices are generally high all over the country it is refreshing to learn that at least one store in Peterborough has placed prices to suit the times. At China Hall you can buy a handsome glass set, 6 pieces, for 35 cents, a handsome butterdish for 10cts., a large glass bread plate for 15 cts., a nice glass lamp complete for 25 cts., six chimneys for 25 cts., white tea set, 44 pieces, for $2.00; colored tea set, 44 pieces, $2.50; chamber sets from $1.00 up; half dozen nice goblets for 30 cts.; handsome China tea sets from $4.50; best quality cruets, only $2.50; knives, forks and spoons lower than ever. Do not fail to visit "China Hall," the palace store of Peterborough.

A FINE STORE.

The Improvement made in Mr. John McClelland's Jewellery Establishment.

We noticed some weeks ago that Mr. John McClelland was making improvements in his store, and now that the work is approaching completion, we give more particulars of what he has done.

Plate glass has been put in two of the windows. Each light is divided in the centre and held in position by a nickel silver bar, which enhances the good appearance of the windows, as well as strengthening them and lessening the danger of injury. New doors have also been put in. They are circular doors of solid walnut, made by Messrs. McKee Bros., and mounted with a very handsome gold plated latch, procured from Mr. Geo. Stethem. The lights in and above the doors are plate glass, bent to suit the circular doors.

A new floor has been laid in the store, of oak strips two inches wide. The walls have been colored a green tint, blocked into panels, with gold borderings.

The furnishings added to the store are handsome and expensive. In the front window there is a triangular mirror-lined case, made by Mr. A. Clegg. In it is shown jewellery and silver ware, and they can be viewed in this case to good advantage. On the safe stands a square glass case, with nickel silver joints, which contains a display of optical goods, of which Mr. McClelland has a large variety. On the wall, behind the counter, there is a large and handsome walnut case, with bent glass ends. The doors in front are mounted on pulleys, with weights, and slide up. This arrangement is convenient, and makes the case proof against the penetration of dust. The sash frames are of nickel silver, and the case is ornamented on the top in the Eastlake design. This case, as well as two other handsome ones with nickel silver points on the counters, were manufactured by Millichamp, of Toronto. A collection of clocks is shown in the side window. They stand on a shelf, with a bird's-eye maple back.

The spaces on the walls are relieved by clocks, &c., which are thus shown to good advantage, and add to the general good appearance of the establishment.

The counter fronts are panelled and painted in two colours of green and in gold, and a new counter, similarly ornamented, has been put in at the rear of the store, where the partition of the work-room formerly stood.

Besides the work already done, another plate glass will be put in the second side window and the work room will be newly fitted up. Mr. McClelland will then have an exceedingly handsome and well furnished store, and one that any one might be proud to do business in.

P.B.C.

A meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club will be held in the boat-house at 8 o'clock this evening.

Military.

The Peterborough contingent of the Durham Field Battery has gone to attend the annual camp, which is held this year at Kingston. The greater number of the members went on Monday and the remainder this morning. Mr. W. Hill attends the camp this year in his old position of Quartermaster Sergeant.

Lacrosse.

A meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will be held at the Little Windsor Hotel at 8.30 o'clock this evening.

There will also be a practice match this evening between the first and second twelves of the Club.

On Saturday the Little Heroes and the Young Plinkers played a match. The Heroes secured the first, second and fourth games and thus won the match.

"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy for Ever,"

An experience that remains ever true, and there is nothing more beautiful, nothing in which you can display your good taste better than in the selection of pictures that are at once works of art, ornaments in your homes and instructors to yourselves and your children. Do not fail to examine the engravings and water colours just received at A. Clegg's. They will be on exhibition to-morrow. As this lot did not come to hand as early as expected they will be sold at extremely low prices. All new frames and new subjects.

Smith's Market.

Strawberries picked and delivered twice a day. Parties can rely on our berries being equal in quality and flavour to any berry grown in Canada, as the growers, Messrs. Rogers, Sheffield and Mills have spared no pains or expense in getting the finest varieties grown. When delivered they are placed in the cooler and thoroughly freed from the heat, thus making them cool and refreshing. Parties, picnics, etc., supplied in small or large lots to suit at an hour's notice. Cherries will be along in a day or two. Green peas every day, and all other kinds of fruit and green vegetables as rapidly as the season permits. Fresh fish every day.

Another large shipment of Bass' Ale, October brewing, just arrived at W. Chamberlain's Restaurant. Imported direct.

REVIEWS.

ELECTIONS BY LOT.—We have received a lively little work of two dozen pages entitled 'Election by Lot the only Remedy for Political Corruption." Through a jeu d'esprit, the author, who is evidently a gentlemen of considerable reading and much general information, has no doubt a sober and serious object in his jest. We think that he paints matters in too dark colours, but perhaps that is for the sake of effect. At all events it is deserving of a careful reading. The publishers, Dawson Bros. of Montreal have done their part thoroughly well, for the printing and binding of this little book are excellent.

POLICE COURT.

BOUND OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE.

TUESDAY, June 24.—James Kerr was charged by Mrs. Margaret Woods, who lives in the south part of the town, with having threatened her. He was required to find sureties to keep the peace, and bonds were taken, himself for $200 and a surety for $200.

A Suspected Dynamiter.

QUEENSTOWN, June 23.—Great excitement was caused here by the arrest of Patrick Joyce on board the steamer Illinois. The tube found in his baggage is supposed to be an infernal machine of a novel and ingenious pattern. It resembled a wooden log, but was found to be hollow, a hole having been pierced through it, leading to a chamber containing a liquid supposed to be explosive. There was an outer wooden casing, sixteen inches long and four thick, within which a brass tube was inserted, bound with gutta percha. On removing a metal cap a liquid was found. Except by careful examination, it was impossible to suppose that the article was anything but a log of wood.

LONDON June 23.—Patrick Joyce has been discharged. The tube found on his person contained oil.

Dynamiters to Meet in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Irishmen here ridicule the proposition alleged to have been made by Paris dynamiters for dropping explosives upon cities in England. Col. Daniel O'Sullivan says no Irishman believes in an armed invasion, the futility of such efforts has been satisfactorily demonstrated. Patrick Crowe says Stephens once had the opportunity to lead an armed rebellion but proved a coward. He declares, however, a mass meeting of Irishmen will be held here during the period of the Democratic convention to raise money for dynamite.

L'Association Internationale.

BERLIN, June 20.—The National Zeitung denies the report that the dissolution of the African International Association is imminent. The capital of the association, it says, is far from being exhausted. Assurances are given that the navigation of the Congo throughout its entire length will presently be thrown open to the whole world. It will be free to the competition of all comers, as no restriction will be imposed.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. WINNIPEG, June 21.—A big fire is raging in Port Arthur. The Queen's Hotel and other buildings are now (11 a. m.) on fire. It is reported that three persons have been burned to death.

LONDON, June 21.—The Indian Government having decided to construct a railroad from Candahar, in Afghanistan, to Quetta, in Bellochistan, is now engaging a force of forty thousand workmen for that purpose.

There are lots of people going around grumbling, and half sick at the Stomach all the time; who might be well and happy if they only used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters occasionally. It is a splendid Blood Purifier. All Druggists, 50 cents.

That is daily bringing joy to the homes of thousands by saving many of their dear ones from an early grave, truly is Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hay fever, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, pain in side and chest, or any disease of the throat and lungs, a positive cure guaranteed. ### THE RAILWAY NUISANCE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—It is somewhat reassuring to learn from Mr. A. White's letter, which appears in your issue of this evening "that the Grand Trunk are anxious to do everything in their power in order to prevent inconvenience to the public."

But, Sir, if this be the case, why did Mayor Boswell, of Toronto, deem it necessary to go to Ottawa for the purpose of complaining of the steam-whistle nuisance to the Minister of Railways? Why did Sir C. Tupper promise to introduce a clause in the new Railway Act to secure the abatement of that nuisance? and why did the Railway Committee inform the railway companies that if they did not adopt some other method of signalling, they, the Committee, would devise a plan for them? If the Grand Trunk Co. are so anxious to meet the wishes—the reasonable wishes—of the public, surely a remonstrance addressed to the authorities of that powerful corporation would have sufficed.

Why, again, if the nuisance were not an "intolerable nuisance," has the Toronto Mail published so many such strong articles in deprecation of it? Why have the Municipal authorities of London adopted a By-law to abate it? and why are those of Toronto contemplating the enactment of a similar law?

The answer to these various questions is undoubtedly the following:—Up to this time the R. R. managers have tacitly refused to listen to the numerous and loud complaints which they cannot fail to have noticed; and if now, however late competition exercises its beneficent influence on that portion of the Grand Trunk with which Mr. A. White is connected, I, for one, shall be willing to let "bygones be bygones," and to extend to that line the sympathy its enterprise merits.

But, Sir, Mr. White writes me to prefer some specific change and to call upon either himself or Mr. Ferguson for the purpose of discussing it.

I have on more than one occasion complained personally both to Mr. Cox and Mr. Ferguson on this subject, and complained without effect, and I therefore decline appearing before those persons again as a vive-voce complainant; but I have no objection to inform Mr. White why I have written as I have done, premising, however, that as regards the constant passage of the shunting engine up and down Bethune street, I blame the Municipal authorities more than I blame the R. R. Co. This shunting within the corporation limits should never have been allowed. But then the managers of the line ought to have this shunting done with as little disturbance as possible. There is no occasion for the large amount of whistling indulged in by the drivers, and which is often so loud that we are obliged to cease from talking or reading aloud during its continuance; the whistle, too, ought never to be sounded at an unreasonable hour of the night, breaking the rest of those to whom rest is vitally essential. The steam, too, should not be blown off, as is done, close to the doors and windows of private families who pay a considerable amount of taxes, and who therefore pay for immunity from public nuisances; and the shunting engine should not be permitted to stop and allow the black smoke to penetrate our premises.

I believe these nuisances would to a great extent be mitigated if Mr. White and the other managers saw fit to exercise their authority in that behalf.

I am writing, this evening, in all calmness I am quite sure that many others, equally with myself, will thank Mr. White if he now uses his endeavours to free us from an universally acknowledged nuisance of many months' standing.

POLICE COURT.

THE LICENSE LAW.

WEDNESDAY, June 25.—A. D. Faucher was charged by Constable Adams, with having sold liquor during the prohibited hours on Saturday evening. Mr. Geo. Edmison appeared for the defendant and entered the plea of guilty. A fine of $20 and $4.04 was imposed. Mr. C. A. Weller, County Attorney, appeared for the prosecution in this case, and also in the two cases which follow.

Daly Bros. were charged by Constable Pidgeon with the same offense. Mr. F. J. Daly appeared and pleaded not guilty. The case was enlarged until Saturday.

A similar charge was preferred against J. B. Dunn by Constable Pidgeon. He pleaded not guilty. Mr. J. O'Meara appeared for defendant.

Mr. O'MEARA took exception to the jurisdiction of the Court. He contended that the case of Regina vs. Roddy decided that a case of this kind was a charge of a criminal offence. The Ontario Legislature had no right under the British North American Act to make laws regulating proceedings in a criminal case, and the Magistrate therefore had no authority to finally dispose of the case, unless they elected that he should do so, which they did not do.

The MAGISTRATE over-ruled the objection, saying that it was decided in the case of the Queen vs. Roddy that a defendant in such a witness was not a compellable witness, and that was under the old law.

The evidence of Constable Pidgeon, Constable Adams and the defendant was taken, and Mr. Dunn was fined $20 and $3.33 costs.

The West Riding Agricultural Society.

The directors of this Society met last Saturday and adjourned for a fortnight in the hope that in the meantime arrangements for obtaining a permanent exhibition ground for the use of the Society might be perfected.

On motion of Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr. T. E. Bell, the Directors of the West Riding of the Peterborough Agricultural Society, desire to take this the first opportunity afforded them of placing on record their sense of the loss which the Society has sustained by the death of Mr. Henry Collins of North Monaghan, who had, for more than fifteen years continuously, been one of the most active and zealous of its Directors and who did much to promote the agricultural interests of the country—especially in stock-raising. The Directors would also take this opportunity of tendering to his widow and son their heart-felt sympathy in their bereavement which they have sustained.

The resolution was unanimously passed and the Secretary instructed to forward a copy of it to Mrs. Collins.

A Fishing Experience.

A party of gentlemen who went from Port Hope to join the excursion party at Idyl Wild on Tuesday, threw out a fishing line on the way to the pic-nic ground and one of them narrowly escaped an experience with a maskinonge similar to that of Jonah with the whale. They had hooked a large fish, and, finding it difficult to haul it in, one of them caught it with his hand, but the fish sank its needle-like teeth into his hand and severly lacerated it. It is said that he was only saved from being eaten by the fish by the aid of his comrades and the toughness of a rubber coat which he wore. The fish weighing seventeen and a half pounds.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25, 1884.

A DEGENERATE U.E.L.

In these days there is much discussion as to inherited instincts and traits, with speculation as to the effect of ancestral habits upon descendants. Some believe firmly in evolution, and hold that man, to go no further back, is developed from the monkey, with his tail worn off or dwindled away for want of use. Others again maintain that we have degenerated from gigantic forefathers with lives of patriarchal duration. The combatants agree only on one point, that ancestral habits are inherited even though modified.

A man should undoubtedly be judged not by what his ancestors have been, but by what he himself says, by what he does, and in short by what he is. Still it is sometimes interesting and perhaps not altogether unprofitable to note how hereditary traits of bygone ancestors may crop up in remote descendants.

Much attention is now being attracted to the subject of the settlement of this country by the U.E. Loyalists a century ago. Among others Sir R. Cartwright has been making a speech glorifying his ancestors and himself. It is therefore only natural that the history of these brave and loyal men should be perused with received interest, and the name of Cartwright should certainly not be overlooked.

Few Canadians are aware that slavery was ever in vogue in Canada, and especially in that part of the Dominion which now forms the Province of Ontario. Yet it is a fact that some of the U.E. Loyalists who settled on the bay of Quinte a hundred years ago brought slaves with them and held them in bondage here. Not long however was this stigma to effect our country, for in its second session the Legislature of Upper Canada passed a measure to forbid the spread of slavery and to provide for the eventual freedom of those already enslaved.

Among these slaveholders was the ancestor of the Cartwrights. Now we are not disposed to pass very heavy censure upon him and those of his companions who also brought these live chattels with them. They probably acted in accordance with what light they had, and but followed from habit the custom of their time and of the place from which they came, so that they were in a measure excusable; any more than we would blame the ancestral monkey for confiscating a weaker monkey's nuts. Most certainly we cannot blame their descendants, who are in no way responsible for the shortcomings of their ancestors. In fact we would not have named the Cartwrights in connection with this subject, but for the fact that Sir Richard Cartwright having plumed himself upon the renown of his forefathers, cannot fairly object to be reminded also of their weaknesses. Indeed we do not attach any discredit to him, but we may be excused for pointing out how the hereditary traits of the old slaveholders are revived in him. Do not his egotism, his impatience of contradiction, his violence when thwarted, his desire to enslave the opinions of all men and make them bend, right or wrong, to his own, his tyranical and autocratic lording over all to whom he can dictate, recall forcibly the habit of mind and the temper of those who held their fellow men in bondage? Is it not like some survivals from the monkey stage that are sometimes observed.

We are not surprised then that Sir Richard should be dictatorial, tyrannical, and utterly unreasonable when crossed; indeed we find much excuse for these foibles in the history of his race. But we must confess we are surprised, that boasting of ancestors who obtained large grants of the soil of Canada and did good service in return by developing this Province, that owing as he does his present wealth and position largely to these ancestral grants, he should be one of the loudest and bitterest in condemning grants of land in our North West Territories to those who in their turn will develop our grand Dominion; that descending firm men who at great personal sacrifice left their homes to maintain their connection with the Empire to which they were proud to belong, he should invite consideration of the expediency of cutting adrift from that Empire. We can but suppose that his inheritance of the characteristics his forefathers is only partial that he has inherited the insolence, haughtiness and unreasonable of the old slaveowners, but that he has not inherited the desire to improve and develop the country of the public spirited U.E.L. settlers, nor the loyalty to our glorious banner, to our noble Empire, of the brave and faithful veterans who left their homes to remain under the old flag.

Heredity displays these unaccountable vagaries sometimes.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE COUNCILLORS SATISFIED WITH THE PRESENT NUMBER OF MEMBERS.

Reports from the Committees on County Property and Petitions—The County Rate—Condolence.

The following is the conclusion of the report of the County Council proceedings:—

COUNTY PROPERTY.

Mr. SANDERSON presented the following report of the Committe on County Property, which was adopted:—

The Committee on County Property beg to report:

1. That the alterations in the Registrar's office be made as proposed by Mr. Belcher, if no objections are made thereto by the Inspector of Registry offices.
2. That matting be put down in the passages of the Court Room, and that the doors thereof be buffed with listing.
3. That a lavatory be fitted up in the barrister's room of the Court House.
4. That material be procured for building the continuation of the sidewalk in front of the Court House.
5. That Messrs. Sanderson, Moloney, Lang, Foster and Burnham be a committee to consider the question of heating the County buildings by steam or hot water, with power to obtain tenders and let contracts therefor, if they consider the same in the interests of economy.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MICHAEL SANDERSON,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 20, 1884.

PETITIONS.

Mr. STEWART read the following report of the Committee on Petitions:—

The Committee on Petitions beg to report:

1. That no action be taken with reference to the communication of R. W. Phipps, Esq., with reference to forest preservation.
2. That a memorial be passed as asked by the communication of the County Council of the County of Peel, in reference to the Public School Act.
3. That in answer to the questions forwarded to us by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, with reference to the desirability of reducing the number of County Councillors, and also of extending the law now applicable to incorporated villages in the matter of building bridges over one hundred feet in length to towns and townships, your Committee submit the following replies.

GEORGE STEWART,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 21, 1884.

The answers stated that the Council was satified with the present number of members of the County Council, and that they were not favorable to a reduction of the number. They considered the law compelling County Councils to erect bridges over one hundred feet in length in incorporated villages not satisfactory, but thought that if the law was extended to towns it should also be extended to townships. They suggested that all bridges over one hundred feet in length should be erected and maintained by County Councils.

The report was adopted.

THE COUNTY RATE.

A By-law was introduced to assess, levy and collect a sum of money for County purposes, namely, $17,466.72, the rate being 2 mills on the dollar. It was passed through its several stages and signed. The amount levied from each municipality was as follows:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Ashburnham | $ 440 00 |
| Lakefield | 300 00 |
| Norwood | 120 00 |
| Asphodel | 1,914 70 |
| Belmont | 784 51 |
| Methuen | 78 66 |
| Burleigh | 58 30 |
| Anstruther | 75 42 |
| Chandos | 150 67 |
| Dummer | 1,275 67 |
| Douro | 1,933 47 |
| Ennismore | 974 10 |
| Galway | 92 02 |
| Cavandish | 11 56 |
| Harvey | 529 30 |
| Monaghan | 981 86 |
| Otonabee | 4,289 30 |
| Smith | 3,777 18 |
| | $17,466 72 |

Mr. BURNHAM moved, seconded by Mr. KIDD,—That in the matter of the debenture rates, inasmuch as it appears that the amount that it is provided shall be levied under Debenture By-laws Nos. 335 and 373 will produce a sum largely in excess of the amount required, that the clerk be instructed to levy such an amount only as will be sufficient to meet this year's sinking fund and interest, and that one-half only of the rate provided under By-law 454 be collected, for the reason that only one-half of the debentures authorized to be issued thereunder, have been issued, and that the corporation seal be attached to this motion to give it the effect of a By law.—Carried.

CONDOLENCE.

The Committee appointed for that purpose drafted the following resolution of condolence with the families of the late Henry Collins and George Oliver, which was signed by the members and officials:—

Whereas Almighty God has, in His wisdom, been pleased to remove from our midst two highly esteemed co-workers and friends, we the undersigned members and officials of the County Council of the County of Peterborough desire to express to their respective families our sincere sympathy and deep sorrow in their bereavement. Those of us who have long known both in public and private life our lately departed colleagues can speak with especial confidence of the honor and sincerity which uniformly characterized their public life, and regret that their sound service and mature judgment will be wanting in our public Councils. We know that the remembrances of their many endearing and estimable qualities in private life will always remain among the regretful memories of the public.

The Council adjourned.

Music in the Parks.

A PETTY OUTCRY.

When Mr. Hardy, or Mr. Fraser, or Mr. Pardee leaves the provincial capital to look after his private affairs, or to practic in the courts for the benefit of his pocket, Reform journals are silent; but when a member of the Dominion Government leaves Ottawa for a few days, up goes the cry, "neglect of business." What is sauce for the Tory should be sauce for the Grit.—Ottawa Citizen.

BLOWING HOT AND COLD.

Industries which have been fostered into existence under a high protective tariff will probably be considered with a view to their maintenance, unless the country is required to pay to dear for its whistle. ### SEVEN THOUSAND MEN WANTED.

The Globe has been charging the Canadian Pacific Railway with employing foreigners in preference to Canadian labour on their works of construction. The company intend pushing their road through vigorously and are calling for 7000 men and have instructed their agents to secure them, if possible, in Canada, as they prefer Canadians for much of their work.—*Toronto World (Ind. ### MR. MOWAT'S RETREAT.

While this dispute remains unsettled, however, the territory is being administed under joint authority of Ontario and Manitoba. The bad feeling of a few months ago has disappeared since the constable brigade from this province has been withdrawn, and questions of local importance are now engaging the attention of the people rather that disputed points between the respective Governments.—*Newmarket Era (Ind. ### THE GLOBE IS DOING ITS BEST

To "bear" the prospects of the country. To "bear" our manufacturers. To "bear" even the crops. To "bear" the Canadian loan just made in London. Because it can never forgive Canadians for having the hardihood to make a tariff to suit themselves.—Toronto World (Ind. Ref.).

VISITING THEIR VICTIMS.

Messrs. Blake, Mackenzie and Hardy are reported about to visit Manitoba and the Northwest. It is really time that they took some personal interest in a country that has suffered so much from their unmerited depreciation.—London Free Press.

HOSTILE CRITICS FOILED.

The attempt to injure the credit of Canada went for nothing. They were made in anger, and the motive was understood. What investors look at is the ability of the country to pay, and the way in which it has hitherto met its obligations; and once satisfied on these points they do not allow themselves to be affected by hostile criticism, which at the same time avowedly interested.—Monetary Times.

She had interrupted him with an imperious wave of her hand, and spoke through closed teeth, like one tossing down a gage of battle; but the brilliant smile still lighted her splendid eyes, and showed the curves of her temptingly beautiful mouth.

"Mrs. Orme, my wife and Percy are waiting for me at the Ampitheatre, and we have an engagement to dine at Baiæ. Can I persuade you to join our party? Will you not contribute the charm of your presence to the pleasure of our excursion. Remember I am your physician, and this morning prescribe Baiæ air."

"You are very kind, doctor, but I devote today to Avernus, Cumæ and the infernal gods. Next week I shall bask at Baiæ. Gentlemen, I bid you good-day, and a pleasant hour over your Falernian."

She turned once more to the mysterious solemn face of that wonderful legendary blue sky, and the light died out of her countenance, as in a room where the lamps are suddenly extinguished. She started visibly, when a voice close beside her asked:

"Permit me the pleasure of seeing you to your carriage."

"I am not going just yet. Gen. Laurance should not detain the doctor's party."

"They have a carriage. I am on horseback, and can easily overtake them; but, if I dared, would beg the privilege of accompanying you,—instead of drinking sour wine and smoking poor cigars among the ivy-wreathed ruins that await me at Baiæ. Ah—may I hope? Be generous, banish me not. May I attend you to-day?"

"No, Sir. Go pay your devoir to friendship and courtesy. I have faithful guardians in the two coming yonder to meet me."

She pointed to the heads of Mr. and Mrs. Waul, just visible over the mass of ruins that intervened, and lifting her handkerchief waved it twice.

"You have established a system of signal service, with those antique ogres, griffons? Really they resemble crouching cougars, ready to spring upon the unwary who dare penetrate to the sacred precincts that enclose you. Why do you always travel with that grim bodyguard? Surely they are not relations?'

"They are faithful old friends who followed me across the Atlantic—who are invaluable, and shield me from impertinent annoyances, to which all woman of my profession are more or less subjected.

Her voice was sweet and mellow as a Phrygian flute sounding softly on moonlight nights through acacia and oleander groves,—but the scorn burning in her eyes was intolerable, and before it the old man seemed to shrink, while a purplish flush swept across his proud face.

"Mrs. Orme is an anomoly among lovely women, and especially among popular trayediennes, and as I am suffering the consequences of that unexpected fact, may I venture, in pleading for pardon, to remind her of that grand prayer: 'Be it my will that my mercy overpower my justice.' Will she not nobly forgive errors committed in ignorance of the peculiar sensitiveness of her nature,—the mimosa delicacy of her admirable character."

"Is General Lawrence pleading abstractedly for forgiveness for his vain and presumptuous sex?"

"Solely for my own audacious impertinence, which, had I known you, would never been perpetrated. My rejected emeralds accuse me. Pardon me, and I will immediately donate them in expiatory offerings to some Foundling Asylum Hospital, or other public charity."

"If I condone past offences, it must be on condition that they are never repeated, for leniency is not one of my characteristics.

She suffered him to take her hand, and bow low over it, breathing volubly his thanks for her goodness.

Taking his offered arm, they walked back toward the spot where she had desired her companions to await her return, and as he attempted to analyze the strange perplexed expression on her chiseled white face, he said:

"I trust this delicious climate has fully restored your health?"

"Thank you. I am as well as I hope to be, until I can go home to America to be once more with my baby."

They proceeded to the carriage, and, as he assisted her to enter it, General Laurance asked:

"Will you grant me the privilege of accompanying you next week to Baiæ?"

"I cannot promise that."

"Then allow me to call upon you to-morrow.'

"To-morrow will be the day for my exercises in Italian recitation and declamation. I long to electrify these fervid enthusiastic yet critical Neapolitans, with one of their own favorite impassioned Italian dramas."

Pale as marble she cooly met the undisguised ardent admiration in his gaze, and bending forward he asked pleadingly:

"Not to-morrow? Then next day, Mrs Orme?"

"Perhaps so, if I chance to be at home—which is by no means certain.

"Shall we not return to Naples? You look weary, and unhappy," said Mrs. Waul, who did not like the expression of the hopeless, fixed blanched lips.

"No—no! We go to Avernus. That is the mouth of Hell—you know—and to Hecate and all the infernal gods I dedicate this fateful day, and those that will follow. It is only the storm-beaten worthless wreck of a life, let it drift on—on—down! Had I ten times more to lose, I would not shrink back now! I would offer all—all as an oblation to Nemesis.

"The gods have made us mighty certainly—
That we can bear such things, and yet not die."

The Dynamiters.

PARIS, June 23.—James Stephens has summoned an early meeting of prominent Irish-Americans at Chicago who are willing to join a military organization on lines proposed by the late John O'Mahony. Stephens declares the services of several distinguished European officers have been offered. No definite plan is proposed until the convention of Irish patriots is held in Paris. To this convention the Chicago conference is invited to elect delegates. After the convention an address will be issued expounding the aims of the new movement. Among the plans mooted is one to despatch balloons manned with desperadoes over England, to drop explosives. Captain McCafferty has been commissioned to examine the plans and apparatus. Several Fenians in Paris have volunteered to take part in the aerial expeditions.

French Imperialists.

The Imperial Committees at a meeting in Paris have re-elected M. de Cassagnac President, and have approved Prince Victor's resolve to obtain his independence, and declared him the representative of religion, liberty and order in the Democracy. Prince Victor was notified of the resolution, and said the principles expressed were his own.

LADIES' JOURNAL

Bible Competition No. 7.

Closing September 11th,

OPEN TO THE WORLD

The Leading Rewards are Lot 50 x 150 at Toronto Junction, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Tea Sets, &c.

The proprietor of the Ladies' Journal now announces a magnificent list of rewards for correct answers to Bible questions. It is surprising how little is known of the Bible. The questions are not so difficult this time as last, and we should be glad if there was a hearty response so as to encourage the proprietor of the Journal to persevere in his good work. It was announced in the June issue of the Ladies' Journal that the competition which closed last month would be the last for the present, but it has been decided to try one more.

All money must be sent by post office or express. No information will be given to any one more than is stated here. So send on answers, and don't waste time writing. Do not send postage stamps unless six cents is added for the discount. Remit by postoffice order, scrip or small coin.

THE BIBLE QUESTIONS:

1.—Mention the case of a man who was sorry for losing what he had borrowed?

2.—Mention the names of a king, a counsellor, and a scoundrel who committed suicide?

3.—Where is mention made in the Bible of a man who had on each hand six fingers and on each foot six toes?

Now, any one having a knowledge of the Scriptures ought to be able promptly to answer these questions with a little study, and so secure some one of those rewards. Bear in mind every one competing must send FIFTY CENTS with their answers for which the Ladies' Journal will be sent one year to any address. If you answer each of the questions correctly and your answers are in time you are sure to secure one of these costly rewards.

Fifteen days will be allowed after closing day for letters from distant points to reach the Ladies' Journal office. But you can, of course, send in any time between now and the 11th of September, and your letter will take its place at the publication office in the order it arrives there. All letters are carefully numbered as they arrive, and there can be no mistake. If your answers are correct, and they reach there in time, you will surely get some reward in addition to the Ladies' Journal, which alone is big value for the half dollar. If you don't get anything but the Journal you will be well pleased with your investment, as it consists of 20 pages of fashions illustrated, short and serial stories, poetry, newest music, household hints, etc., etc.; in fact, just the paper to suit every lady.

By subscribing in a club with your neighbors you will secure some considerable advantage—that is, there must be at least thirty of a club, and all who send correct answers to the Bible questions may have their choice of a handsome ring, heavily gold-plated ladies' gold brooch, which retails at about one dollar and a half, or a triple-plated butter knife. Either of these you may wish will be sent postage paid. You will thus secure to a certainty one or other of these two presents, and in addition will have as good an opportunity of gaining some one of the other large rewards in lists given above just as well as though you had sent in singly. This is simply an inducement to get up clubs. We are sure our readers could not do better than to try their skill in hunting up these questions and competing for these rewards. Everything will be carried out exactly as promised.

Prizes in last competition went all over Canada and to many parts of the United States.

Address, Editor LADIES' JOURNAL, Toronto, Canada.

"MAY DEW"

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubbornly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

"A Life on the Ocean Wave."

In the hot summer months—when the thermometer is away up among the nineties—there is nothing so refreshing and invigorating as a pleasant sail on the water. Attractions too numerous to enumerate at present, will be presented, and a good day's enjoyment is promised to all.

THE COMPASS AND THE SQUARE.

The Masonic Picnic to Idyl Wild—Large and Respectable Attendance.

The Masonic fraternity and their friends had a very enjoyable time at their picnic to Idyl Wild, on Tuesday, 24th inst., (St. John's Day). The heavy rain during the early hours of the morning was rather unpropitious for the occasion, but as the time for departure arrived it was evident that those who had made preparations for a holiday were not to be disconcerted by the state of the weather. About 200 persons got on board the steamer Golden-Eye, all in good time, and an early start was made from the wharf at about 7.30 sharp. The sail down the river was a delightful one, and although it was hot and sultry the fresh breeze from the water had an exhilarating effect upon the excursionists. Freeman's quadrille band accompanied the party, and enlivened the day with their excellent music. Not much disposition was evinced for dancing during the sail down the river, as the excursionists appeared more taken up with observations of the scenery on this their first trip of the season, in friendly conversations, and in forming new acquaintances.

On arriving at Hales' Bridge, or Wallace's Point, where Mr. Faucher is opening his new hotel, Captain Dion announced that ten minutes would be allowed to all who wished to visit the hotel. Quite a large number availed themselves of the opportunity, and were heartily welcomed by Mr. Faucher, who gave them freedom of his house. The furnishing is going on rapidly, and is being done in a respectable and tasty manner ; the bar is got up in an attractive style; and the general impression was that Mr. Faucher had made a capital hit in securing these premises, and the ample groves in connection therewith, and that he would make it pay.

The all aboard whistle was sounded, and the trip down the river resumed. Some logs were encountered, but the steamer ploughed through them without difficulty and Idyl-Wild was reached about 12.30. Preparations were immediately begun for dinner, and in a short time the pic-nic tables all over the island were covered with white cloths and edibles ; while about a hundred of the party were accomodated with a good repast in the hotel. Unfortunately rain began to fall just in the middle of the meal, and disturbed the enjoyment of those dining outside. One large table especially—must have been a "Syndicate" table from the size and wealth of it—fared badly, as the rain came on so quickly that the magnificent spread was completely deluged with water before the company had time to save their bacon.

Dinner over, most of the pic-nickers gathered in the dancing pavilion and in a short time the musicians struck up their inspiring airs, and the floor was soon covered with dancers. Conspicuous in the crowd was "Commodore" Calcutt himself, who appeared to be as supple and limber on the floor as the youngest man in the party, and went through the intricate quadrille with a zest and freedom that called out the applause of the whole party.

On visiting the interior of the Idyl-Wild hotel we found that the house was being entirely refurnished with new furniture, bedding and bedroom sets, and that Mr. Calcutt was preparing to fit up the premises in a manner superior to what it has ever been before. Idyl-Wild has numerous attractions which many would like to see kept up ; and as its name is so familiar, and been known for so many years, there is no reason why it should not continue to be a popular resort with the people and profitable to the enterprising proprietor.

About 3 p. m. the swift little steamer Dora called at the island, having on board a party of about thirty, composed of members of the Keene Lodge of Masons, who had called off from labor to refreshment for the purpose of giving their brethren from Peterborough a surprise. The brethern were accompanied by W. Bro. McNeil the W. M. of Keene Lodge, Bro. Shaw, Bro. English and others. Considerable fraternizing was of course indulged in, until the hour for the Golden-Eye to depart arrived. Three cheers were given first for Commodore Calcutt, three for Keene Lodge, and three for the Peterborough brothers, after which the Golden-Eye set out for her return trip.

The sail home was more pleasant and enjoyable than the sail down. It was cooler, and the party seemed to have got warmed up for dancing, which was kept up briskly all the way home. No accident or anything else occurred to mar the pleasure of the day, and the ladies and gentlemen all seemed to participate in the mystic sentiment so familiar to all Masons : "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again."

The Committee did their work without any shirking,—every man of them worked well, and were painstaking in doing all in their power to entertain their friends, so that when another picnic is talked of the Shortlys and Patersons, the Alexanders and Barbers, will be under the tongue of good repute as fit and proper men to put on the Committee.

An accident occurred at the Ashburnham wharf while the boat was leaving off some of the party. A little boy named Long got on the plank in order to get on board just as the boat was starting out, and fell into the water. The motion of the paddle-wheels saved him from danger, forcing him back near the shore, where a few willing hands pulled him out.

"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy for Ever,"

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

A U. E. L. FAMILY.

A Singular Family Record—Life on a Lot Granted for Loyal Services.

Mr. Gabriel Sprung came with the United Empire Loyalists from the States and obtained for his loyal services a free grant of lot No. 9 in the 4th concession of Cramahe.

John Sprung, son of Gabriel, is now living on their farm on the same lot, being 97 years of age.

Benjamin Sprung, son of John, is also living on the same lot and is aged 64.

John Sprung, jr., son of Benjamin, is also living with his father and grandfather, being 45 years of age.

The last named three, John, Benjamin, and John the younger, were all born on this lot, obtained as a free grant by Gabriel, the patriarch of the family. Each of the three has married a second time, and at the present moment all three of them, with their second wives, are living on the same ancestral farm.

This is a singular family record and it will have unusual interest at present, when the hundreth anniversary of the U. E. Loyalist settlement is being celebrated.

To these patriotic men and their descendants Canada owes much, and it is more especially true of this portion of Ontario. It is therefore only fitting that any details of interest concerning them should be placed on record.

THE RAILWAY NUISANCE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I think in fairness to the Railway Co'y, whose multiplied sins are so openly discussed, that "A Ratepayer and Property Owner" should accept Mr. White's suggestion and make a specific charge of their shortcomings, and so give the opportunity they presumably ask of taking to task the deliquent who resorts to unnecessary whistling, steam blowing, etc. A more general assertion is hardly sufficient. A special case summarily dealt with will have some effect, and plenty of opportunities, I gather from "A Ratepayer and Property Owner's" letter, occur to give him the information to make a specific charge. Long abstract letters to the newspapers certainly will not remedy matters.

Corn Crops Damaged.

In Essex and Kent Counties, Ont., the farmers complain that the corn crop is being greatly damaged, and in some places totally destroyed by the cut worm. Some of the farmers say that they have replanted their fields three times this season.

AVOID by all means the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, costiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

LAKEFIELD.

From our own Correspondent.

MISSION OF NORTH DOURO.—It is encouraging to note the many signs of life and progress in this part of the work of the Church of England in the Diocese of Toronto. The pretty stone church of St. John's, Lakefield, has lately been greatly improved in the interior—including new choir stalls, pulpit and reading desk. Several ladies of the congregation received the honor of a vote of thanks at the Easter vestry meeting for their beautiful and artistic work, both with needle and paint brush, which has added very materially to the graceful and churchly appearance of the building. A new stone porch and belfry-tower (the latter to cost about $400, and to be erected as a memorial to the late Colonel Strickland) are now in course of erection. The parish is prospering financially, about $1,300 having been raised for various purposes during the last year, and the congregation have been able to raise the stipend of their clergyman, the Rev. John Farncomb, by $100. The services at St. Mark's, Warsaw, the only out-station attached to Lakefield, are very well attended. The energetic church-warden, Mr. A.F. Choate, has lately carried through (mainly by his own labors) an extensive improvement of the interior of the church, the effect of which is very tasteful, and highly appreciated by the congregation.

DUMMER.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COUNCIL MEETING.—A special meeting of Council, called by the Reeve to business, was held at Warsaw on Monday June 16th. All present. Appropriations made on 9th con. line $200. James Robb, Commissioners. On boundary between Dummer and Douro, opposite lots 21, 22, 23 and 24, as equivalent to a like sum by Douro Council, $10, George Harding, commissioner. On boundary between Dummer and Douro, opposite lot 7, provided Douro grant a like sum $10, Patrick Gilroy, commissioner. On boundary between Dummer and Asphodel, opposite cons. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, provided Asphodel grant a like sum $37,50, Robt. Wigmore, commissioner. On boundary between Dummer and Asphodel, opposite cons. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, provided Asphodel grant a like sum, $37.50, Thomas Webster, Commisioner. Richard Crowe was instructed to furnish Nathaniel Robinson with necessaries not to exceed $10, between this and 31st December next. An order for $3, issued to James Barr for keep of A. Slavin. A By-law to make road appropriations and appoint commissioners for expending the same, and one to provide for the payment of money, passed. Council adjourned to 30th August next, to meet in Warsaw.

BELLEVILLE.

A HORRIBLE FIGHT.—A stabbing affray which is almost certain to result fatally occurred at about 8.30 on Tuesday evening on the premises of Michael Kennedy, 4th con. of Tyendinaga, about sixteen miles from this city. There had been a logging bee during the day, and two men, named John McAulay and James Alexander, engaged in a fight, in which the former hit one of the latter's fingers. Joseph Morden, one of the bystanders, upbraided McAulay for his mode of fighting, and in response to a challenge engaged in a conflict with McAulay, who drew a knife and stabbed him sixteen times in the face, shoulders, and upper part of the body, one of the wounds being in the left lung. Medical men were summoned from Descronto, who gave it as their opinion that the victim could not survive. McAulay made his escape, and up to latest accounts had not been captured.

VICTORIA HARBOR.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday morning when the down freight train was shunting cars in the yard here, a young man named Stephen Smith, on a box car, lost his balance and fell heavily to the ground, bruising his side and breast terribly. He died almost instantly. He was the chief support of his parents, who are greatly sympathised with.

NORTH-WEST NOTES.

A PROJECT is on foot to bridge the Red River between St. Vincent and Pembina.

THE C. P. R. has refused to operate the spur track from Nelson to Morden which the municipalities interested propose to build.

THE Walrond Ranche Company, near Calgary, have purchased the Smeat band of cattle at the mouth of Sun river, Montana. The band numbers 3,400 head, and they are to be delivered on the Company's range by July 1st.

THE steamer Alberta, of the C. P. R. Line, made the last trip, from Owen Sound to Port Arthur, in 37 hours and 45 minutes, being the fastest time on record. She had on board 200 passengers and 500 tons of general merchandise.

AMONG those who left for Mrntreal to visit the St Jean Baptiste celebration were Judge Dubuc and family, Rev. Mr. Giroux of St. Anne, Rev. Mr. Messer of St. Boniface College, Mayor Bernier, Mr. Trudel, editor of Le Manitoba, and Mr. Turenne of the Dominion Lands Office.

THE citizens of Port Arthur are taking steps for the erection of a mamoth hotel. Their idea is to obtain Waverly Park from the Ottawa Government, and form a Joint Stock Company, with a capital of $60, 000, in shares of $100 each, which sum they think can be easily raised.

SHOWERS of rain reported from all districts east of the Saskatchewan river. The rain seems to have gone in streaks, and has missed very few places. The weather at most places gives promise of remaining broken. Under the rain fall of the past two weeks crops have made astounding progress.

Large Failure.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Matthew Morgan & Sons, bankers, William street, New York, have suspended. It was stated this afternoon that the assets will exceed the liabilities. A. W. Dimock & Co. are paying their obligations. The members of the firm came from New Orleans, and have been correspondents of several London houses. They are rated at one million. The suspension is due to a shrinkage in values. The firm has been identified with the Denver and Rio Grande, and C., C., C., & I Railway. The Morgan family own the New York hotel and other valuable property here. The firm refuses to give particulars regarding their assets and liabilities, but it is estimated that the latter will not exceed one million.

Depression of Trade in Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 25.—The financial outlook here is gloomy in the extreme, and indications are that there will be a heavy smash if matters do not mend. Whether there is truth in the story it is hard to discover, but it had a terrible effect on the stock. Messrs. H. & H. Merrill, dry goods, are asking a further extension from creditors. There are ugly rumours about the condition of three wholesale grocery firms, but as yet they lack confirmation.—Telegram.

WATERWORKS AND INSURANCE.

THE letter from Mr. Lech in reference to our waterworks and the rates for fire insurance in Peterborough, together with the reply from Mr. Cluxton, which we publish to-day, will attract general attention from the importance of the subject and from the fact that it concerns nearly everyone. It will be learned, as is already known to very many, that among other benefits that have been derived from the waterworks, and the public-spirited gentlemen who have procured them for us, we have really obtained a very substantial reduction of our insurance rates. Quite independently of the introduction of waterworks here, though almost simultaneously, the fire insurance companies doing business in Canada finding that owing to excessive and not always very honest competition, their average rates had been greatly reduced, agreed to act in common and to classify anew the different cities and towns. The rate for Peterborough was fixed, in accordance with the general plan, on the footing adopted in other towns having a good steam fire engine and a well-organized brigade. The fact of the construction of our waterworks, the efficiency of which was brought to the attention of the fire insurance board by the officers of the Water Company, caused this decision to be revoked and our grade to be raised, with a large consequent reduction in the cost of insurance. This was purely owing to the additional safety afforded by our waterworks, so that as far as they are concerned we have been greatly benefitted. It must be remembered also that the insurance money never covers the loss from interruptions of business, &c., and the liability on this risk, necessarily run by the insurer, is greatly reduced by our more effective means of suppressing fires.

As to the rate adopted by the fire insurance board, that is an altogether different matter. It may be that by combination the rates throughout Canada have been placed too high by the new system of grading. This can only be ascertained by finding out the proportion of the losses to the premiums, and the new rates have not yet been long enough in force to show this. It is very probable, however, that they may be somewhat higher than is justified. Undoubtedly over-zealous agents had in some cases cut rates till some companies actually withdrew from Canadian business, and others were meditating withdrawal. The combination was therefore formed and no doubt, as is invariably the case where there has been over competition, the rates have been increased so as not only to cover any past deficiency, but also to go to the other extreme. If this is the case "cutting" will almost inevitably begin again. Probably much of the cost of insurance is caused by the extravagant system of obtaining business, the multiplicity of expensive agencies, when a far less number would suffice to do all the business. The remedy for this would be for the companies to agree each to withdraw some agencies, but there is little hope of this being accomplished.

There is one aspect of the new arrangement as it affects the town of Peterborough to which we must give a few words. It seems to us obviously unfair that the same grade should be granted to the whole town, the parts not protected by the hydrants as well as those served by them. As the whole system of insurance rests upon averages, it is obvious that the comparative safety of the protected portion reduces the rate for the outlying parts, while the greater risk in the unprotected portion increases the rate for the part within reach of the hydrants. Now, it is manifestly unfair that those who are paying for the use of the waterworks by a special rate should be called upon to pay extra for insurance to benefit those who not only refuse to contribute for the water supply, but have even endeavoured to place obstacles in the way of those wishing to do so. Some of those who were bitter opponents of the water works were among the first to apply for a decrease of their insurance rates on account of the protection afforded by the works. There certainly should, in justice to all parties, be one grade for the protected district and another for the portions not so protected.

THE RAILWAY SIDING.

Judge Dean's Decision in the Appeal Case of Beavis vs. Brundrett.

It will be remembered that Mr. Brundrett, station agent for the Grand Trunk Railway, was fined $40 by the Police Magistrate for obstructing Bethune street by allowing cars to stand on the siding at Mr. Beavis' storehouse. The Railway Company appealed against the conviction, and at the General Sessions of the Peace the arguments in the case were heard by Judge Dean, who reserved judgment. He has now given judgment in the case, affirming the conviction. The following is the full text of the judgment:—

BRUNDRETT, appellant, vs. BEAVIS, respondent. This is an appeal from a conviction by the Police Magistrate of the appellant, who is station master for the Midland Railway at Peterborough. There was some question raised as to whether the station master was the servant of the company who was really doing the trespass complained of, but it was agreed not to insist upon this objection, so that the real point might be tried.

The charge is that appellant did obstruct the free use of Bethune street, between Simcoe and Charlotte streets, by placing and leaving railway cars thereon, contrary to a By-law.

The By-law under which the Magistrate convicted was produced, No. 395, a By-law to provide for the better Government of the town, and for the preservation of order and the suppression of nuisances therein, and for other purposes.

The first three sections are grouped under the heading "Foot Passengers," and the remaining thirty-five sections under the heading "Horses and Vehicles."

Section 8 enacts that no person shall permit his horse, carriage, cart, waggon, sleigh or any other vehicle to stand upon any street in the said town longer than is necessary for the owner, driver, or person using the same to transact his business with the person opposite whose house the horse shall stand. * * No person shall leave any carriage, cart, waggon, sled, sleigh or other vehicle standing opposite any other person's door than such as the owner, driver, rider or occupant may have business with, and no person shall in any wise obstruct the free use of the streets or sidewalks of the town, &c., by stopping any horse, carriage, waggon, sled, sleigh or other vehicle across the same, or by any other means, except as hereinafter provided with respect to buildings and building materials.

The By-law then goes on to provide against all imaginable evils, the keeping of disorderly and gambling houses, &c., &c. It fixes the assize of bread and the punishment of persons found drunk on the streets and generally provides for the government and good order of the town.

It was contended for the appellant that because the clause of the By-law under which he was fined for allowing railway cars to stand on the street, was grouped under the heading of "Horses and Vehicles," that such an obstruction as the one complained of was not provided against by the By-lay. A careful perusal of the By-law shows that an astonishing variety of subjects can be ranged under that simple heading. The words "or by any other means, except as hereinafter provided, with respect to buildings and building materials," shows clearly enough that it was intended to cover every possible obstruction that might be placed upon the streets without lawful excuse. The only excuse provided by this by-law is the depositing of building materials in a certain way and upon certain conditions upon the streets.

I think the Magistrate was right in convicting the appellant under this by-law, but another by-law, No. 430, was produced before me, which was not before the Magistrate, and under it the appellant contends that he, or rather the railway, have the right to keep cars standing upon the switches on Bethune street whenever and so long as they please, in a word, to use that part of the street as a railway yard.

This is a by-law to authorize the Midland Railway of Canada to construct and finish for their use certain further switch accommodation on Bethune street in the Town of Peterborough.

The By-law recites that the company wish to increase their "switch accommodation on Bethune street," and that the annexed plan shows the present and proposed rails, and that "some time since an application being made for the said authority, certain holders of property along the said street opposite to the said proposed additional lines of rail, objected thereto, and the company were then given to understand that on the said railway making arrangements with such property holders as owned land opposite to such proposed additional lines of rail, the necessary authority would be granted * * and that, relying on the said understanding, the company had agreed and contracted with certain parties named for the purchase of their lands and to pay the town an annual sum to be paid to another owner of land opposite the proposed rails, and that the owners of remaining property are desirous of having such additional lines of rail laid down for the better serving their storehouses and storehouse property, which will be greatly benefited thereby, and that it is in the general public interest that the railway should, by all reasonable means in the power of this municipality, be aided in any way which will the better enable them to deal with the growing business of the town, and it is apparent that the granting of the authority asked is reasonable, and will be to the advantage of this municipality in the manner aforesaid.

It is then enacted that the railway shall have power to lay down rails according to the plan, subject to their complying in all respects with the provisions of the Railway Act as to railways running along any highway, and subject to the annual payment for the benefit of the owner of one particular parcel.

Provided always, that the By-law should not be construed to affect or prejudice the rights of private property holders on said street * * and provided further that the Company shall plank and keep planked between the rails of all the lines and so much of the street as lies between the sidings and the main track so that wheels of vehicles will easily and readily pass over the rails.

From this last clause it is plain that the Council did not intend that the street should be so encumbered that it could not be used for public travel. The effect of leaving long lines of cars upon the side tracks would seriously interfere with the free use of the street, and so far as the owners of adjoining lands are concerned, would practically shift up the street. The Council have no power to do this without compensating the owner.—Moore vs. Esquesing, 21 C. P., 277.

The recitals of the By-law show, I think, plainly enough, what was the intention of the Council. It says that some time previously the railway made application for leave to lay down these rails, that the owners of the adjoining properties objected, that the Company were then given to understand that if they arranged with the said property owners this By-law would be passed, that they had since bought certain of the lands and had arranged to pay an annual sum which was to go to the owner for the time being of another parcel, and then it goes on to say:—"And whereas other owners of remaining property are desirous of having such additional lines of rail laid down for the better serving their storehouses and storehouse property, which will be greatly benefitted thereby."

The by-law was then passed upon the consent of the adjacent property owners, and that consent was got either by payment of money or by the undertaking by the railway to render some substantial benefit in another way, viz.: to serve their storehouses, and it was the intention of the Council to enable the railway to give this benefit in return for the right. The respondent is one of those who had a storehouse to be served, and so long as the inconvenience to him was the necessary result of the railway better serving the storehouses and storehouse property of the owners of such property, he could not complain if cars were kept loading and unloading at any of these storehouses. So long as they took only a reasonable time for the work he could not complain, though the result might be that access to his land was impeded to any extent.

I have no doubt from the by-law itself that the intention was to give access to these storehouses and incidentally to give the railway the benefit of more siding room for the purposes of the growing traffic, but not to give the right to make a railway yard of a public street. I am strongly of the opinion that a by-law passed with such intention would be invalid, unless the consent of the adjoining land owners was obtained or provision made for their compensation, but it is not necessary to go so far in this case, as I feel no doubt that there was no such intention.

Conviction affirmed with costs.

THE WATERWORKS AND INSURANCE RATES.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Mr. Lech writes in yesterday's REVIEW as follows:

"At the time the construction of waterworks was agitated the plea was made by insurance agents that the fire risks would be lessened, and lower rates obtainable, but this has proved a failure utterly unwarrantable."

Notwithstanding what Mr. Lech says, the statements of the insurance agents were well founded and have been fully borne out by the results. THE RISKS HAVE BEEN LESSENED AND THE RATES HAVE BEEN LOWERED BY THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE WATERWORKS.

When Mr. Lech was insured at 70 cents there was keen competition between agents. Rates were, in consequence, unduly lowered, and the insurance became an unprofitable and losing business to the companies. The companies sought a remedy for this state of things, and they easily found it in this age of monopolies. They formed a combination, made a new tariff, and put a stop to the underselling. The whole of the fire insurance business is now managed by "The Canadian Fire Insurance Association." This Association, or board, is composed of the managers of the several companies, having a chairman and secretary of its own. They meet regularly, fix rates, and regulate everything in connection with the business, and their action binds every fire company in the Dominion. No agent or company can now take a lower rate than any other. One of their first acts was to classify every city, town and village under the letters A. B. C. D. E., and Peterborough, at that time having only a steam fire engine for fire protection, was classed "D."

I appeared before the Association both in Toronto and Montreal, and explained the altered circumstances of the town, our efficient system of waterworks, and the result was the town was raised to "C," and this classification saves many thousands of dollars to insurers every year.

Mr. Lech's premium of insurance under class "D," and before the waterworks were available, was as follows:—

$4,000 00 at 95 cents .....$38 00
and under present classification "C" is making a saving on this amount of six dollars. These figures bear out the statement of the insurance agents, that rates would be reduced by the construction of waterworks.
$4,000 00 at 80 cents.....$32 00

Then let us go a little further. Mr. Lech says 80 cents is too high a rate, and I agree with him, but that is a matter with which the waterworks have nothing to do. Mr. Lech says, "if it is a monopoly (Mr. Lech should be able to decide whether it is a monopoly or not, as he has had some experience in that line) it is worth while for property holders to consider the matter and find means to protect themselves against such combinations." Mr. Lech has considered, and the result is that he has become his own insurer. Could Mr. Lech so safely take this risk were it not that he is so well protected by the water works "with a hydrant in front of his buildings." Surely Mr. Lech should feel that the water works are beneficial. There are 107 places of business within the fire limits between Brock and Charlotte streets. If we put the average insurance on each of these at $10,000 including the buildings and stocks, which I think is a low estimate, we have $170,000, and the difference between the classifications "C" and "D"—15 cents, is $1500 per annum in the cost of insurance in favor of the assessed. Within this limit there are six hydrants for which the water company receives $300 per annum, for which they water the streets into the bargain. But owing to the establishment of the water works the whole of the town has been raised to "C," and it would not be easy to calculate the amount saved by the ratepayers in general. Since last autumn there have been five fires in those blocks in the centre of the town, not including Mr. Halpin's stables, and these were all flooded out by the waterworks. Very little damage was done, and great conflagrations were prevented. I believe that the water works have saved more property to a greater value since last fall than the whole cost of the water works. The Water-Works have been misrepresented and bitterly opposed without reason, but the company has gone on quietly extinguishing fires outside the fire limits, watering the streets, filling water tanks belonging to the corporation, for which they have never received any remuneration. But there is an end to everything and it must be borne in mind that the Company has water to sell and not to give away.

Yours truly,
W. CLUXTON.

HIDING TALENTS.

To be in possession of a country like that of the North-west, and yet to make no attempt to people it by means of immigration, would be as ridiculous a condition of inaction, as that would be on the part of a farmer who, having ample fields to cultivate, refused to sow them because of the expense of the seed.—London Free Press.

NO PLATFORM.

The "Reform" party is still in want of an effective platform. Mr. Blake is, as all well know, an excellent lawyer, but he is a poor political carpenter. He lacks the faculty of construction; and Cartwright is but a sorry help. The fact is that the Conservative party administers so completely to the wants of the country that it is difficult for any one outside of its ranks to advance anything tending to the public good.—Guelph Herald.

MR. BLAKE HUMBLING HIMSELF.

The only thing about Mr. Blake's Quebec tour is the tour itself. His great anti-Orange, anti-secret society speech of last session was made in anticipation of the present tour. He is now to all intents and purposes an humble suppliant at the feet, figuratively speaking, of the province which he and the other Grit leaders and their organs have been traducing for many years. ## KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ST. JOHN'S DAY.—The Keene Masonic Lodge held an excursion on Tuesday, from the village to Gore's Landing, calling at Idyl Wild. They went on the steamer Dora, and the genial Capt. White did all he could to cause those on board to enjoy themselves. There were about thirty in attendance, composed chiefly of Masons and their families, or which is very much the same those who will probably belong to Masonic families before long. At Gore's Landing, after enjoying a good dinner at the Harris Hotel, of which Mr. L. E. Shipley is manager, the following toasts were honoured:—"The Queen and Craft," "Army and Navy," responded to by Lieut. Campbell and Capt. White; "Our Visitors," responded to by Messrs. T. Mather, J. McNeil, jr., J. Read and W. Reid, and others; "the Ladies," was ably responded to by Messrs. Jas. McNeil, sr., and R. N. English; "Host and Hostess," to which Mr. Shipley responded; "Happy to meet, Sorry to Part, and Happy to meet Again," proposed by Dr. Shaw, was the last toast. They received a pleasant greeting from the Peterborough brethren at Idyl Wild, especially from Commodore Calcutt. They arrived at Keene at about 6.30 o'clock in the evening. The Committee had not spared pains or expense in making the excursion a success, and everyone present appeared to be thoroughly satisfied with the day's enjoyment. The Masonic Lodge held a meeting after the return of the excursion party.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.—The Rev. Mr. Tozeland returned on Tuesday night from the Conference at Napanee. He reports having had a pleasant time in the Assembly of the brethren. The Rev T. Wolsey, of Hiawatha, has been superannuated, and the Rev. Mr. Sexsmith, late of British Columbia, has been appointed to the Hiawatha mission, with the intention of supplying Keene once on each Sunday. Thus giving Keene services twice a day on each Sunday, instead of once as formerly.

WEDDING BELLS.—Mr. Thos. Walker, postmaster at Villers, and Miss Annie West, daughter of Mr. Wm. West, of Oregon, formerly of Otonabee, were on Monday united in the bonds of matrimony. They have our best wishes.

SAVED ARMY.—Large numbers from this village attend the Saved Army meetings in Allandale and Hiawatha.

AN UPSET.—Some young sports from Peterborough were in the village on Sunday evening. One of them drove over a stump about four feet high and upset his buggy, throwing two young ladies and himself into the road. He should give more time to practising driving, or else try not to get excited when in company with young ladies. He had not drunk anything, but intoxication from beauty is often as dangerous as that caused by the flowing bowl.

A RUNAWAY.—Mr. Martin, the egg dealer, met with a misfortune last week. His horse ran away and demolished about a hundred dozen of eggs, besides breaking the waggon and injuring other goods.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Directors of the East Riding Agricultural Society, was held on Tuesday, to making arrangements for helping the annual fall exhibition of the Society in this village.

BOATING.—Boating is largely indulged in, and must be a healthy exercise, as the doctors are going in for it, one having a yacht and another a row boat.

ORANGE CELEBRATION.—Our pic-nic, held on May 24th last, proved such a success that the members of the Orange Society of this township have decided to celebrate the event of the Battle of the Boyne (July 12, 1690,) by holding a pic-nic on the 12th prox. They will use every effort to ensure a grander success than our last. Provision will be made for the enjoyment of those who will be pleased to attend. A grand regatta is contemplated; and we kindly ask our last champions to come out on the field. It is reported that the defeated party in the last race have challenged their victorious opponents to a race over the same course for any stake they will be pleased to set up. We have received intimations that the residents of North Harvey and those living along the Government Road purpose attending also. We welcome them heartily. Believing in the old adage "the more the merrier," we feel assured we can provide a pleasureable time for you, and be repaid in the same manner also.

NEW ENTERPRISE.—Mr. Bigelow, proprietor of the "Port Harvey" mills is doing a rushing business. About 20,000 feet of lumber is cut daily, which may be considered good work for a mill of its capacity. In addition to this business, he has opened out a general store, and would be pleased so accomodate his friends and patrons in this line. Let us encourage "home industry" by giving him a call.

A PLEASANT JAUNT.—Last week your correspondent made an excursion up Pidgeon and Ball Lakes landing at Scott's Mills, where were to be seen the relics of an age when this place was astir with human life and industry, but is now able to boast only of its former name. The crops there are in a sad condition, and suffering greatly from drought, no rain having fallen within the last six weeks. The hay is short and hardly worth cutting. But the most important item of interest is that of the repairs being made on the Government road under the superintendance of Wm. Irwin, J.P., this road is being so constructed as to vie with the roads in the southern townships. A right man in the right place is sure to perform work satisfactory for the interest of the people and we believe there will be such.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Friday June 20th as Mr. Evans, who is advanced in years, was on his way home from the "Saved Army" meeting, he was run over by a horse and buggy and rendered insensible. Dr. Shaw was called in, and under his treatment he is now able to sit up.

SAVED ARMY.—The Saved Army continue to hold their meetings in the Hall under the direction of Miss McCormack assisted by Miss Brown. On Sunday Dr. Harrison, Keene, read a passage of scripture, at their services, and made some excellent comments, previously announcing to the congregation that he should adopt the same course as he does with his bible class. Three persons in the congregation signified their intention of leaving the ranks of the enemy to take the side of truth and right. At the close of the service a protracted meeting was held across the bridge which did not break up till past 1 o'clock a.m. Cannot say whether inspector presided; but, "Silence gives Consent."

RAILWAY COLLISION.—On Saturday afternoon about four o'clock a freight train laden with grain collided with a ballast train standing on the main line of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, about half a mile north of Belleville station. Six cars of the ballast train were completely wrecked and the engine of the moving train badly broken up. Several lengths of rail were thrown out of place, and it was not until 1.30 on Sunday morning that the track could be put in condition for the passing of the Peterborough train. The fireman and engineer escaped injury by jumping.

BUSH FIRES.—Word has reached this city to the effect that bush fires have started in Elginburg, and that farmers in the vicinity are drawing water with which to fight the flames. The fire swept across the farm of W. Irwin and came near reaching the Methodist church.

The Boundary Question.

Now the counsel have sailed to argue the question of the northerly and westerly boundaries of Ontario, with the prospects of shortly having an authoritative decision of that long continued dispute, it may not be amiss to point out the present position of the question, and the steps which have led to it. The question, is now just where it might have been in 1872 or within a few months thereafter if Sir John Macdonald's proposal at that time to send it to the Privy Council had been accepted. That proposal being rejected, the question dragged wearily along till 1878, when the award of the arbitrators was made. When this was finally rejected by the Dominion Parliament, the offer to go to the Privy Council was again made, and again rejected by Mr. Mowat. What his motives were in seeking to keep the question open it is not our present intention to enquire, but he had no desire to get the question of Ontario's rights before the courts is quite manifest from his actions. On several occasions while the disputes were in progress at Rat Portage, Ontario officials were arrested by Manitoba authorities; but instead of boldly questioning the right of the latter to make arrests in territory claimed to be part of Ontario, he allowed his officials to be tried and punished. Manitoba on the other hand, so soon as her chief constable was arrested by Ontario, took steps to test the question of jurisdiction in the courts; and Mr. Mowat at once surrendered and agreed to an arrangement for going to the Privy Council.—Owen Sound Times.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

P. B. C.

It was proposed to have an illuminated parade of canoes this evening, but owing to the "cold wave" making it uncomfortably cool after sunset, it has been decided to postpone the parade for a week. Arrangements will in the meantime be made for a grand turn out. The sailing race will take place this evening—wind permitting.

The Saved Army.

Gen. Lindsay and Capt. Munt visited Keene on Wednesday evening to arrange for the opening of a campaign in that village. The attack will be made on Sunday. It is expected that Capt. Munt will leave Peterborough in about a week. He will lead an attack upon Montreal. It is not known yet who will succeed the Captain in the command at this station.

St. Joseph's Academy.

The twenty-sixth annual distribution at St. Joseph's Academy, Toronto, of prizes and the holding of the usual exercises closing the academical year, took place on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Lizzie Henry, of Peterborough, was awarded the gold medal for English literature in 6th class, presented by His Grace the Archbishop, a prize for French, and a crown of honor for application. We congratulate the young lady on her marked success.

Where to Go.

No doubt the citizens are ever anxious to get away from the hurried city—away from the care and bustle of every-day-life, so to speak—and consequently are constantly on the watch for an opportunity to spend a day of peaceful tranquility in some quiet and shady nook where they can commence with their own thoughts, or enter into the social and frolic-some sports of others. They will have an opportunity of doing either by attending the excursions of the Fire Brigade and Band on Dominion Day to the new Summer Resort at Wallace's Point.

Lacrosse.

A game of lacrosse will be played on the Ashburnham grounds to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 3.30 sharp, between the first and second twelves. The Idyl-Wild Lacrosse Cup.

To show the extent of the enterprise of Mr. Calcutt in presenting a valuable championship cup for competition by Lacrosse Clubs at Idyl Wild, we place before our readers the following letter, which speaks for itself:—

H. Calcutt, Esq.:

DEAR SIR,—In response to the inquiry respecting the Lacrosse cup ordered by you we would say we think beyond question it will be pronounced by all as the finest cup ever offered for competition in Lacrosse games. It is nearly finished and will stand about two feet high. We have spared no pains in which to give complete satisfaction.

Yours very truly,
MERIDEN BRITANNIA CO.
John E. Ruber.

THE ORGAN RECITAL.

A High Class of Music Excellently Preformed and Appreciated.

The programme of the third organ recital held in St. John's Church on Wednesday evening, though designed rather to suit the taste of the dilettante amateur than the critical connoisseur, covered a great deal of ground. Various schools and styles of music were represented, despite the self-imposed limitation, and doubtless the majority of the audience were pleased at the opportunity of hearing once again pieces of such merit that repetition only tends to enhance enjoyment. The performers are to be congratulated on their selection.

The Peterborough public has long since testified to its appreciation of the talent of three out of the four persons who took part in Wednesday's entertainment, viz.: Miss Clara Cluxton and Messrs. Charles Ewing and E. M. Porteous. It will be unnecessary, therefore, on this occasion to say much more than that they again merited the praise that has so often—and justly—been bestowed upon them.

In the nine numbers rendered by Mr. Ewing, that gentleman amply testified to his well known proficiency as an organist of rare ability, and showed, too, by the variety of styles attempted, the versatility of his touch. Portions of Sterndale Bennett's Barcarolle, especially, were extremely gracefully handled, and richly deserved the encore that was requested, and in the Pastoral Fantasia he exhibited beautifully the capabilities of the really fine organ.

Miss Cluxton in her first duett, ("O, Lovely Peace," from Handel's Judas Maccabeus) sang remarkably correctly, and in "With Verdure Clad" showed her possession of a well cultivated voice in which much sweetness is combined with compass and strength.

Mr. Porteous' two solos were certainly a treat; the latter of the two, especially, he sang with much feeling, and probably only the avoidance of applause prevented his favouring his audience with an encore. The excellence of his firm, bold, melodious voice va sans dire. We must not forget, too, to mention his clearness of utterance—by no means an unimportant feature.

Herr Jacobsen was unfortunate in having chosen for his first performance a piece which, not only did not give him fair scope, but which was unfitted to display his own characteristic manipulation of the violin; hence at first he was disappointing. In his after pieces, however, he did much to eliminate this somewhat unfavourable impression. It would, of course, be unfair to compare him as a violinist with men of the stamp of Remenyi or Ole Bull; but Herr Jacobsen possesses youth, and also apparently enthusiasm in his subject. Certainly "Rousseau's Dream," which he gave as an encore, contained some clever variations, and his second encore still further showed his command of the instrument. The andante from Mendelssohn's Concerto in E. Minor too, was well and pleasingly played. But we may perhaps find, Herr Jacobsen some day ranked among players of the very highest class.

The treat of the evening will be judged of by personal predilections. Perhaps to the majority of the audience it was the selection from Bach—solo (soprano), Miss Clara Cluxton, with violin obligato Herr Jacobsen, accompanied by Mr. Ewing on the organ.

On the whole this, the third organ recital held in St. John's Church, was a success, and we may feel proud, not only that we have in Peterborough those who can, without hesitation, offer for the entertainment of the public a very high class of music, but also that there are many, very many, who can and do cultivate and foster these talents by their avowed appreciation of the efforts of those possessing them.

County Orange Lodge.

The semi-annual meeting of the West Peterborough County Orange Lodge was held at Lakefield on Tuesday evening. Arrangements for attending the 12th of July celebration at Cobourg were completed.

Calcutt's Line of Steamers.

Smith's Market.

Strawberries picked and delivered twice a day. Parties can rely on our berries being equal in quality and flavour to any berry grown in Canada, as the growers, Messrs. Rogers, Sheffield and Mills have spared no pains or expense in getting the finest varieties grown. When delivered they are placed in the cooler and thoroughly freed from the heat, thus making them cool and refreshing. Parties, picnics, etc.; supplied in small or large lots to suit at an hour's notice. Cherries will be along in a day or two. Green peas every day, and all other kinds of fruit and green vegetables as rapidly as the season permits. Fresh fish every day.

The Farm Competition.

The judges appointed to award the prizes for the best farms in the counties of Addington Frontenac Hastings, Lenox, Northumberland, Peterborough, Prince Edward, Renfrew and Victoria, were in Peterborough on Wednesday for the purpose of inspecting the farm of Mr. Charles D. Moore of Smith—the only competitor from this county. The other farms entered are those of John Campbell, Woodville; Wm. Noble, Port Hope; Sylvester C. Isaac Baltimore, Platt Hinman, Grafton; John Sharp Bath and John Wilmot, Kingston—making seven in all. The prizes offered are a gold medal for the best farm; a silver medal for the second in the district, and a bronze medal to the best farm in each electoral district when three farmers have competed. The result of the competition will not be announced until the meeting of the association at Ottawa during the exhibition.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents a week.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC RAILWAY.

Commencement of the Regular Passenger Service.

The Globe says that the Ontario & Quebec Division on the Canadian Pacific Railway will be opened for passenger business as far East as Peterborough on Saturday morning next. The first time table on the new road is now in the hands of the printers, and will probably be in hands of the public to-day. At first only two trains each way will be run, one an express and the other a mixed train. The mixed train will leave Toronto (Union Station) at 7.10 a.m., Parkdale at 7.20, and North Toronto (Yorkville) at 7.45 a.m., arriving in Peterborough at 11.20 a.m. The express will leave the Union Station at 4.50 p.m., Parkdale at 5 p.m., and North Toronto at 5.23 p.m., arriving in Peterborough at 8.15 p.m. Coming West the express will leave Peterborough at 7.15 a.m., arriving at North Toronto at 10.10 a.m., Parkdale 10.35 a.m. and the Union Station at 10.45 a.m. The mixed train will leave Peterborough at 2.50 p.m., arriving at North Toronto at 6.25 p.m., Parkdale at 6.50 p.m., and the Union Station at 7 o'clock p.m.

The above arrangements are subject to revision before going into effect, and it is probable that the mixed train will be allowed considerably more time to make her trips, but these were the arrangements made up to Tuesday night.

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1884.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

New Police Cells Wanted—A Conference to be Held with the Butchers.

A meeting of the Board of Health was held on Thursday evening.

There were present—Messrs. A. McNeil, (Chairman), Geo. A. Cox, Mayor, Allen, Paterson, Stapleton, Hilliard, Rutherford, Hartley, and Green.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, and Inspectors Pidgeon and Adams were also present.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

A report was read from the Sanitory Inspectors, stating that they had visited the various slaughter houses inside the town and just outside the corporation limits, and that two of them were in an unsatisfactory condition. They had served eighty notices, and in a great majority of cases they had been complied with. They also reported having secured a nuisance ground.

ACCOUNTS.

An account was received from the Times Printing Company for $11.50, and one from the REVIEW Company for $10.35.

One complaint was also read and received.

SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

It was moved and seconded that all the butchers in the town be requested to meet this Board and discuss the matter of the removal of slaughter houses.—Carried.

THE ITALIANS' DEN.

Inspector ADAMS, in answer to Mr. Allen, said that he had notified the owner of the house on Aylmer street, which had been occupied by Italians, of the condition of the house, and he said that he would have it attended to.

DISPOSING OF ACCOUNTS.

It was moved and seconded that all accounts rendered to the Board and found correct be certified to by the Secretary and the Chairman and referred to the Town Council.

A HOLE TO BE FILLED.

A resolution was adopted instructing the Inspectors to notify owners of land on Crescent street to fill up a hole on their land which held stagnant water.

THE SEWER.

A discussion took place on the sewer, and the need of a better system of sewerage for the town.

THE POLICE CELLS.

The Medical Health Officer reported that the police cells were in an unhealthy situation and condition.

It was moved that the Town Council be requested to provide a suitable place for the lock-up.—Carried.

The Board adjourned for one week.

Dominion Day.

The sports on Dominion Day in the agricultural grounds under the auspices of the Cricket and Boating Clubs promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever held here before. The executive committee have decided that competitors shall have a fair show, and are having a cinder path made on the ground. Men started at the path yesterday, and it will be finished by Monday night. Judging from the entries even at this early date the competition promises to be keen.

An Official Holiday.

In accordance with the proclamation of the Governor General, the banks and government officials will observe Saturday (to-morrow) as a holiday. The merchants and business men in general, will, however, keep their places open and do business as usual. The post office is entitled to the holiday, but as business will be transacted as usual on that day the post office will be kept open for the accommodation of the public.

GOOD THE YEAR ROUND.—At all seasons, when the system is foul and the digestive powers feeble, or the liver and kidneys inactive Burdock Blood Bitters are required.

NO SUCH WORD AS FAIL.—A failure to relieve or cure summer complaints can never be truthfully applied to Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. All dealers sell it.

Baird's Minstrels.

Baird's Minstrels will give an entertainment on the lot on the corner of George and Charlotte streets to-morrow. The Mail of June 17th says of them:—

"One of the finest minstrel performances ever given in this city was presented at the Zoo last evening. In the minds of many in the audience it was actually the best to which seekers after amusements in Toronto have been treated. The vocal and instrumental music was of a high order the jokes and other kinds of witticisms were fresh and new, and the special features introduced were novel, and each excellent to a degree in their several lines. The first part was composed of songs and ballads, probably heard for the first time in this city, and the singing satisfied everybody. The travestie on grand Italian opera was exceedingly funny. The contortionists, Harry Lee and Willie Rugg, performed the most remarkable feats, and certainly cleverer acrobats have not yet visited the city. Altogether, the entertainment is a superior one in every respect, and was a surprise to everyone who expected a mediocre company at this season of the year. The audience which enjoyed the first performance last night was a very large one, filling every seat and standing in hundreds around the crowded benches. The merits of the performance justify a continuance of this patronage, and it is probable that the capacity of the Zoo will be taxed every evening during the present week."

Pencil Points.

—Decoration Day.

—The Oddfellows are favoured with fine weather.

—The sailing race did not take place last night, there being no wind.

—One prisoner, arrested for drunkenness, occupied the cells last night.

—The banks will be closed to-morrow, but the post office will be kept open.

—The City Band wish to offer an apology for not playing out this week. They were prevented from doing so by other engagements.

—Two families living on Simcoe street, near Aylmer, named Taugher and Gage, do not appear to get on well as neighbours. One of the houses presented a sorry appearance this morning, the windows being badly shattered.

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

FRIDAY, June 27.—John Harvey was charged by Constable Adams with having been drunk. He was discovered in a yard at about midnight and lodged in the cells. Harvey acknowledged that he had taken "a little too much," but on promising to leave the town he was allowed to go.

ACQUITTED.

R. Duncan, jr., was charged by Henry Noyes with having stolen a watch. The evidence was not conclusive and he was discharged.

Idyl Wild Sports.

On account of logs at the mouth of the river arrangements have been made by which the Peterborough people wishing to see the great Lacrosse tournament at Idyl Wild on Dominion Day can leave via Grand Junction at 7.30 a.m. and 1.30 p.m. The steamer Whistle-Wing will connect at Keene with both trains, and return in time to connect with the evening train, arriving at Peterborough at 9 a.m. Tickets for round trip, railroad and boat, only 50 cents. ### BELLEVILLE.

THE RACE COURSE.—Rain commenced to fall at an early hour Wednesday morning and did not cease until about noon, when the track was a sea of mud, necessitating a further adjournment until to-morrow. Strangers filled the city to-day, brought in by the various excursions, and their disappointment was great but unavoidable.

Daring Robbery.

MONTREAL, June 25.—One of the boldest robberies that has taken place here for sometime past occurred to-day, on Craig street, as Mr Fuller, a messenger of the Merchants' Bank, was proceeding on his daily rounds, presenting promissory notes for payment. In passing a post on the sidewalk that was decorated with evergreens a branch fell on him, which he proceeded to replace. As he was engaged in the act a horde of American sharpers, who have been here since the carnival picking pockets, surrounded him as if to give him assistance. After his work was accomplished he put his hand in his pocket and found that his book, containing notes and cheques for $3,000, had been abstracted. The documents are fortunately endorsed as payable to the bank, and therefore are of no use to the thieves and it will be no loss to the bank if they are not returned, as payment of them has been stopped. So careful were the bankers here to-day that they would not entrust messengers with money, lest they might be attacked by the notorious pack of scoundrels that have been attracted to the city to reap a harvest from the influx of strangers who are proverbially fleeced when from home. Detective Kellart is said to be on the track of the parties, and if they are not across the lines he is sure to bring them to justice.

The Maine Forest Fires.

MACHIS, Me., June 25.—The losses from forest fires in this neighborhood the past five days are estimated at $100,000.

CALAIS, Me., June 25.—The forest fires which were burning for the past two days in the neighborhood have been extinguished by heavy showers.

This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D., New York City.

MUSIC.

We have noticed at various times within the last few years the progress Peterborough has been making in the many industries in which its citizens are employed. Latterly this progress has by no means been confined to the economic arts: in the adornment of our highways; in the decoration, internally and externally, of our public and private buildings; in the beautifying of our shops; and in many other directions our town has sensibly advanced.

In no one branch has this progress been more conspicuously manifested than in the cultivation and appreciation of musical talent.

There is a story told of a Frenchman who once asked a distinguished pianist to play for him the much-talked-of "Home, Sweet Home." The professor of music complied, beginning with the the air pianissimo, and ending in a variety of astounding fortissimo variations. 'Ah!" said the foreigner, after the finale, "I have comprehended at last your 'Home, Sweet Home;' at the first all quiet, but afterwards what a row in the house."

Our object in narrating this is, not only to point out the style of music in which the generality of audiences delight, and the taste to which musical professors too often pander; but also as a warning to players and hearers that there is a limit both to rendition and appreciation. No amount of the most careful attention to technical details can constitute what is known as expression—the art of so using the instrument, or so rendering a vocal selection as that these shall express the true motives of the composer—any more than do accurate rymes and metrically correct verses constitute a poem.

Again, to the vast majority of people there are reams of exquisite music utterly unintelligible. They take some sort of pleasure out of it no doubt, but the motif—as it is now-a-days called—might as well not exist: the music might be a heterogeneous mass of melodies and harmonies unconnected and purposeless.

And naturally. Music is an art, and as an art ranks—we venture to say—next to poetry in complexity and depth. Only to a few, therefore,—those, not only endowed with highly sensitive organs of sense, but in whom acute emotional nature has been refined by intellectual cultivation—is given the power to understand and enjoy to the full the master-pieces of musical composition.

It is said that a biographer should never be a man inferior to the object of the biography. Carlyle once declared his despair of ever understanding a great man sufficiently to enable him to write his life. If we grant the truth of such utterances as these, we shall readily agree that, fully to enter in the compositions of the master minds of music and song, is not a task to be lightly undertaken. Music, too, is of all the fine arts the most intangible, vague, indefinite. It appeals to the emotions rather that to the intellect. And if we are right in transferring to the sphere of music the saying of Shelley, that the compositions of the genius are the productions of his best and happiest moments, the difficulty of comprehending—and, therefore, of playing—such creations is infinitely increased.

This need not be discouraging. We have purposely taken the highest point of criticism. We have had in mind such pieces as, for example, the more complicated of Beethoven's Sonatas; or of Bach's Fugues; or such works as Der Meistersinger von Nurnberg and Der Ring des Nibelungen, of Wagner.

Just short of this, nevertheless, is a large amount of classical music of the highest order which it is possible to bring within the scope of the comprehension and appreciation of the typical audience. This, of course, must be done gradually, but we may truly say that we have already gone a very long way toward the goal. If, as the followers of the author of "The Descent of Man" hold, even Parsifal, ein Buhnenweihfestspiel is merely the evolutionized form of the scream of the parrakeet or the grunt of the pig, we may say in regard to Peterborough that she is now nearer Wagner's production than she is to the latter. We are delighted to have noticed in our rapidly developing town unmistakable evidences of a growing love of music. The existence of a high class of talent—both instrumental and vocal; the frequency of musical entertainments of a really good character; the increasing number of those who devote many hours a day to the study of singing or the practice of some instrument; and by no means least even the bi-weekly band nights, all tend to show that the progress to which we have drawn attention is not imaginary.

Let us hope that it is a progress that will some day, at no very future date, see the institution of, for example, a musical festival rivalling in character many of those of the great cities of the world.

HOW IT WAS.

Disgusted at the fact of Sir L. Tilley having obtained a price for the new Canadian loan so greatly in advance of the rates under Sir R. Cartwright, the Reform journals are still decrying this successful financial operation. The Globe is especially wild. It makes a strong point of the United States Government securities selling at a higher price than the Canadian loan. It attributes the fact of Dominion securities being no higher, to the imposition of excessive taxes upon the country. Of course it does not undertake to explain how the really excessive taxation in the States, so much heavier than our own, can raise their securities, while a lower taxation depresses those of Canada. We may repeat our own explanation why the price for the recent loan, though so much more satisfactory than Sir R. Cartwright could obtain, did not come up to the figure of the United States, which is that our own neighbors are not cursed with a Globe, which with its friends, is always endeavouring to belittle its own country, and to decry the credit of Canada as long as its party is not entrusted with office.

CUMBERLAND, N. S.

The seat in the House of Commons for Cumberland, N. S., left vacant by the resignation of Sir Charles Tupper, has been filled by the election by acclamation of Mr. C. J. Townshead, a Conservative, as not a Refermer could be found rash enough to contest the constituency. Thus the Reform clamour of a reaction in their favor, especially in the Maritime Provinces, is again silenced for a time. After an interval of silence the more unscrupulous Reform organs will begin again to repeat their falsehoods that Sir Charles Tupper, the strongest possible candidate for the constituency, was afraid to face the electors, and so had to be seated by Act of Parliament—an act, by the bye, that was never passed.

Still Loyal.

Sir Richard Cartwright did not bring forward his new "independence" plank at the Adolphustown United Empire Loyalist celebration. He knew the hardy sons of the loyal pioneers in that district too well. But the occasion did not pass without his receiving an intimation of what they thought of his Toronto utterances. The Lieutenant-Governor, himself a worthy scion of the same loyal stock, said he had heard the question discussed as to whether the time had come when our political status should be changed; it was not for him as Lieutenant-Governor to discuss these matters, but he would say to Loyalists that while others, be they gentlemen of the press or politicians, discuss that question—the descendants of Loyalists can afford to mark time and listen to the discussion. They must recollect that if medicine is given hurriedly the physician should take good care that the death of the patient does not follow. Knowing, continued his Honor, the blessings we have received under the British Constitution, we can afford to remain some time longer at any rate without changing our position. "Aye, hundreds of years!" was the response, which will be echoed by hearts and lips of all true Canadians.—Orillia Packet.

CAMPBELLFORD.

A Fatal Accident.—Mr. Nicholas Miller who had his arm broken by a fall from a waggon lately, died from his injuries on Tuesday. He was 83 years of age.

Low Water.—The water in the Trent has fallen rapidly during the past two weeks, and is unusually low at this time of the year. Last week the rivermen were doubtful whether they could run their season's cut. There are two drives coming from the north.

More Iron for the Bridge.—At the late session of the Counties' Council, Mr. Charles Gillespie, the Reeve, called attention to the condition of the bridge here, and succeeded in having a committee named for an investigation of the structure. These gentlemen came here on Friday, and after completing their work, they decided to have the wooden structure removed and the bridge completed of iron. The length of the new work is 126 feet. It is propose to cover 90 feet of this with an iron span, and the remaining 36 feet is to be filled in. The Canton Bridge Co., of Canton, Ohio, a company in Toronto, and one of Hamilton have been communicated with for cost of construction and the work is to be done this summer.—Herald.

NORWOOD.

School Picnic.—The scholars of the High and Public School here excurred to Healy Falls, on the Trent, on Saturday. An enjoyable time was spent.

About Completed.—The new school building is about completed. The work reflects much credit on the contractor, Mr. Alford, of Peterborough. We understand the new edifice will be opened with imposing ceremonies.

The Village Advancing.—At last we are to have a watering cart—thanks to the liberality of our business men and the energy of Mr. R. Wilson, who has raised the handsome sum of $10 per week for Mr. Roraback, that gentleman having agreed to perform the work for the above amount. The council are talking of lighting the business portion of the town. Verily, Norwood is advancing.

Personal.—Miss Lillian Ford, daughter of our esteemed townsman, S. P. Ford, M.D., who has been attending the Wesleyan Ladies' College, Hamilton, for some time, has, we notice by the papers of that place, besides graduating and winning many valuable prizes, had the degree of M.L.A., conferred upon her. The "John Macdonald Prize," for the best examination in Evidences of Christianity, and the "Alumnæ Prize," for essay, were won by Miss Ford.—Register.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.
VALUABLE IN INDIGESTION.

Mr. Daniel T. Nelson, Chicago, says: "I find it a pleasant and valuable remedy in indigestion, particularly in overworked men."

Unknown to Science.—That preparation is undiscovered which can surpass Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a cure for cholera morbus, dysentery and Summer complaints.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

CHAS. BERGR,
Hoboken, N.J.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning? The signal perhaps of the approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cts., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup or whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's porous plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Another Victory.

A Startling important discovery was made when, after long and patient experiments, the combination of Nerviline was reached. A grand victory indeed, for the suffering have an ever ready, prompt, efficient, and cheap remedy at hand. Do you know that for 10 cents you can buy a trial bottle of Polson's Nerviline and test its great power over pain of every description? Polson's Nerviline cures chills, pain in the stomach, side and back, rheumatism; in fact all pain. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

His Lordship Bishop Cleary returned to Kingston on Wednesday from his visit to the Eternal City, after an absence of nine months. His Lordship was met at the station by a large number of clergy and laity, who formed a procession and escorted him to St. Mary's cathedral, where addresses of welcome were presented.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pare, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

The House of Commons was packed to the utmost on Monday night with persons anxious to hear Gladstone's statement. The Liberals were profuse in their expressions of approval.

Oh! how tired and weak I feel I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

The Governor of Alsace-Lorrains has dissolved a number of workingmen's associations, evening schools, and benefit societies, charging that they were vehicles for the propagation of Socialistic doctrines.

CHAPTER XIX.

Regina, will you touch the bell for Hattie, that she may come and carry all this breakfast, which I have not touched, and the bare sight of which surfeits me? I scarcely know which is the greater hardship, to abstain from food when very hungry, or to impose upon one's digestive apparatus when it piteously protests, asking for 'rest, only rest."

It was twelve o'clock on a bright cold day in December, but Olga was still in bed, and as she raised herself crushing the pillows under her shoulder for support, Regina sewing beside her thought she had never seen her look so handsome.

"Instead of impairing your complexion, late hours seem to increase its brilliancy."

"Regina never dogmatize; it is a rash and unphilosophic habit that leads you to ignore secondary causes. I have a fine colour to-day, ergo the 'German' is superior to any of the patent chemical cosmetics? Are you consumed by curiosity?"

"Not quite; still I should like to know what good fortune has rendered you so happy?"

"Wait until Hattie is beyond hearing. Come take away these dishes, and be sure to eat every morsel of that omelette, for I would be unwilling to mortify Octave's culinary vanity. Hattie say to mamma I shall not be able to go out to-day."

"Miss Regina I was told to tell you that you must dress for the rehearsal, as Mrs. Palma will take you in a carriage."

"Very well. I shall be ready, if go I must."

"Did it occur to you to threaten to break down entirely, burst into tears, and disgrace things generally, if forced to sing before such an audience?

"Of course I could not threaten him; but I told him the distressing truth, that I am very much afraid I shall fail if compelled to attempt a solo in public, for I know the audience at Mrs. Brompton's will be critical, and I feel extremely timid."

"And he dared you—under penalty of his everlasting wrath,—to break down? Forbade you at your peril, to allow your frightened heart to beat the long-roll, or the tattoo?"

"No—though very positive, he was kind, and urged me to exert my will; reminding me that the effort was in behalf of destitute orphans, and the charitatable object should stimulate me."

"Charity! Madame Roland incautiously blundered in her grand apostrophe,—hastily picked up the wrong word to fling at the head of her brutal tormentors. Had she lived in this year of grace, she certainly would have said: 'O Charity! how much hyprocrisy is practised in thy name!' A few ladies dash around in open carriages and sell tickets,—and somebody's daughters make ample capital for future investments, as Charity Angels,—by riding, singing, dancing and eating in becoming, piquant costumes,—for the 'benefit of the afflicted poor,'"

"O Olga! how unjustly severe you are! How exceedingly uncharitable! How can you think so meanly of the people with whom you associate so intimately?"

"I assure you I am not maligning 'our set,' only refer to a universal tendency of this advancing age. I merely strip the outside rind, and look at the kernel,—and therefore I 'see the better my dear,'—horrified little rustic Red Ridinghood!"

Regina smiled and shook her head, and tossing he large strong white hands restlessly over her pillow, Olga continued:

"Indeed I am desperately in earnest, and it is is a melancholy truth that Longfellow tells us: 'Things are not what they seem.' I commend you to the strategy of silence."

"Do not counsel me to be insincere and deceitful. I consider it dishonourable, and contemptible."

"Why will you persist in using words that have been out of style as long as huge hoop-skirts, coal-scuttle bonnets, and long-tailed frock-coats? Once, I know, ugly things and naughty ways were called out-right by their proper, exact names, but you should not forget that the world is improving."

"But it seems to me the line of conduct you advise is cowardly—and that I think I could never be."

"It is purely from ignorance that you fail to appreciate the valuable social organon I want to teach you. Of course you have heard your guardian quote Emerson? He is a favourite author with some who frequent the classic halls of the 'Century,' but perhaps you do not know that he has investigated 'Courage,' and thrown new light upon that ancient and rare attribute of noble souls? Now, my dear, in dealing with Erle Palma, if you desire to trim the lion's claws and crimp his mane, adopt the courage of silence."

"Have you found it successful?"

"Unfortunately I did not study Emerson early in life, else I might have saved many conflicts and much useless bloodshed. Now I begin to comprehend Tennyson's admonition, "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers,' and I generously offer to economize your school fees, and give you the benefit of my dearly-bought experience."

"Thank you, Olga; but I would rather hear about the wonderful piece of good fortune of which you promised to tell me."

"Ah! I had almost forgotten. Wonderful, glorious good fortune. The price of Circassian skins has gone up in the matrimonial slave-market."

Regina laid aside her sewing, opened her eyes wider, and looked perplexed.

"You have not lived in moral Constantinople long enough to comprehend the terms of traffic? You look like a stupid fawn the first time the baying of the hounds scares it from its quiet sleep on dewy moss and woodland violets! Oh, you fair, pretty, innocent young thing! Why does not some friendly hand strangle you right now, before the pack open on your trail? You ought to be sewed up in white silk, and laid away safely under white marble before the world soils and spoils you."

For a moment a mist gathered in the bright eyes that rested so compassionately, so affectionately, on the girlish countenance beside her, and then Olga continued in a lighter and more mocking tone:

"Can you keep a secret?"

"I think so. I will try."

"Well, then prepare to envy me. Until yesterday I was poor Olga Neville, with no heritage but my slender share of good looks, and my ample dower of sound pink and white—strawberry and cream—flesh, symmetrically spread over a healthy osseous structure. Perhaps you do not know (yet it would be remarkable if some gossip had not told you) that poor Mamma was sadly cheated in her second marriage; and after bargaining with Mammon never collected her pay, and was finally cut off with a limited annuity which ceases at her death. My own poor father left nothing of this world's goods, consequently I am unprovided for. We have always been generously and kindly cared for, well fed and handsomely clothed, by Mr. Erle Palma, who, justice constrains me to say, in all that pertains to our physical well-being, has been almost lavish to both of us. But for some years I have lost favor in his eyes—have lived here as it were, on sufferance—and my bread of late has not been any sweeter than the ordinary batch of charity loaves. Yesterday I was a pensioner on his bounty, but the god of this world's riches, i. e. Plutus, in consideration no doubt of my long and faithful worship at his altars, has suddenly had compassion upon me, and to-day I am, prospectively, one of the richest women in New York. Now do you wonder that Circassia is so jubiliant?"

"Do you mean that some one has died and left you a fortune?"

"Oh, no!—you idiotic cherub! No such heavenly blessing as that. Plutus is even shrewder than a Wall Street broker, and has a sharp eye to his own profits. I mean that at last, after many vexatious and grievous failures, I am promised a most eligible alliance—the highest market price. Mr. Silas Congreve has offered me his real estate, his stocks of various kinds, has villa at Newport and his fine yacht. Congratulate me."

"He gives them to you? Adopts and makes you his heiress? How very good and kind of him, and I am so glad to hear it."

"He offers to marry me, you stapid dove!"

"Not that Mr. Congreve who dined here last week, and who is so deaf?"

"That same veritable Midas. You must know he is not deaf from age; oh, no! Scarlet fever when he was teething."

"You do not intend to marry him?"

"Why not? Do you suppose I have gone crazy, and lost the power of computing rents and dividends? Are people ever so utterly mad as that?"

She sat quite erect, with her hands clasped across the back of her head; a crimson spot burning on each cheek, and an unnatural lustre in her laughing eyes.

"Olga, do you love him?"

"Now I am sure you are the identical white pigeon that Noah let out of the Ark; for nothing less antediluvian could ask such obsolete, such utterly dead and buried questions! I love dearly and sincerely, rich laces, old wines, fine glass, heavy silver, blooded horses fast and fiery solitaries, rare camel; and all these comfortable nice little things, I shall truly honor, and tenaciously cling to, 'until death us do part,' and as Mrs. Silas Congreve—hush! Hear comes Mamma."

"Olga!" exclaimed Mrs. Palma, with a warning gesture toward Regina.

"Do you think I could hide my bliss from her? She knows the honour proffered me, and has promised to keep the secret."

"Until the gentleman had received a positive and fiital acceptance, I should imagine such confidence premature."

Mrs. Palma spoke sternly, and withdrew her fingers from her daughter's clasp.

"As if there were even a ghost of a doubt, as to the final acceptance! As if I dared play this heavy fish an instant, with such a frail line? Ah Mamma? don't tease me by such tactics!

"Regina are you ready! I shall take you to Mrs. Brompton's, and it is quite time to start."

Anti-Masonic Sermons.

A series of sermons against Freemasonry have been inaugurated in Montreal in the Catholic churches. The Rev. Father Hamon, S.J., delivered a powerful address in the Church of the Jesuits last Sunday in denunciation of the order, on the ground that it was not Christian. Father Dowd read a letter in St. Patrick's church on Sunday from Mgr. Fabre, stating that the principles of Freemasonry had spread rapidly in this province among Catholics, and especially French Canadians. His Lordship called on all to separate themselves from the society.

French Views on the Egyptian Conference.

PARIS, June 23.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Ferry said that in 1884 France has been quite inactive as far as Egypt is concerned, inasmuch as she declined to take part in the British expedition. It is too late now to think of reviving the scheme of co-dominion. Egypt is neither French or English. Her fate is a matter of concern to all Europe and will always be a European question. Mr. Gladstone's Government recognized this fact, and was the first to propose the neutralization of Egypt. France has the best chance possible to settle the question with the Gladstone Cabinet, and it is necessary that harmony be maintained between the two nations, whose accord is so important to the peace and liberty of the world (Applause.) It is necessary also to limit the English occupation of Egypt, but France has no intention of substituting a French occupation.

M. Gabriel Charmes concludes an article in the Debats as follows:—"The matter at issue between London and Paris is not only the Egyptian question. That question is, no doubt, a grave, nay a capital one. But it is in some sort merged in the greater one of the maintenance, or the final rupture, of the intimate relations of France and England. English opinion, in its violent movements only takes present interest into account; it does not take heed of the future. Still, let it take care. If England lost the friendship of France, where would she, in case of need, find sincere Liberal support? We do not know. In any case it would not come from the power which is at present contending with her for Angra Pequena, which is delivering Merv over to Russia, and which is keeping Constantinople in suspense between two rivals ready to hand it over to the highest bidder.

The Paris Temps says there can be no question as to the reduction of the amount of the Egyptian coupon without offering to compensate the bondholders by giving them increased security. Otherwise the reduction would constitute an iniquity which France cannot accept. The Temps admits that the task of the conference is a difficult one and declares that the task of the French delegates is of an especially delicate nature.

They are Worthy of Support.

The firemen are worthy of all the support the public can give them, for they are ever ready to risk life and limb in the saving of property, and the citizens, no doubt, will take advantage of the means afforded on Dominion Day to show their appreciation of services thus nobly rendered in time of need.

A Temperance Lecture.

On Thursday evening the Rev. J. W. Butcher delivered a lecture on Temperance in the Methodist Church, Ashburnham. The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Yelland. Mr. Butcher's lecture was illustrated by a large diagram representing the following scenes:—Soberland, Pleasant Bay, Point Just-Enough, Tipsy Island, Liver Sands, Whirlpool, Lunatic Asylum, Pirate Ship, Life Boat, Mountains of No Hope, and Lighhouse on Each Place of Danger. The lecture was attentively listened to by a fair sized audience, and was very interesting. The Chairman gave an address during which he referred to the large amount of money spent in the town on liquors. Music was provided by the choir of the Murray Street Church, Peterborough, which was well rendered and enjoyed by the audience.

A Special Meeting of the Peterborough Association—An Interesting Report.

The members and friends of the Young Men's Christian Association met on Thursday night in their rooms to hear reports of the local work and an account of the recent Secretaries' Conference at Montreal given by the Secretary, The President, Dr. Fife, was in the chair and in the opening gave a short address on the work of the Association generally. After singing a hymn he called on the General Secretary, Mr. G. E. Williams, who gave an interesting description of the Fourteenth Annual General Secretaries' Conference which was held on June 11th, to 15th. in the Daniel Morrice Hall of the Presbyterian College Montreal. There were about 200 Secretaries present—or about half the number of those who are giving their whole time to the work among young men on this Contigent, there being at the present time 378 such officers, an increase since four years ago of 209. At the opening session of the Conference short addresses of welcome were given D. A. Budge (Secretary of the Montreal Association), David Morrice (whose name the building in which the sessions were held now bears) and Principal McVicar. Then came the introduction of the Secretaries to each other, which was accomplished by each Secretary rising in turn and announcing his name, residence, office, and length of service. Business was commenced at once after this and one topic was discussed and disposed of before adjournment that afternoon. The following are some of the subjects that came up for consideration. How can asecretary secure the active co-operation of young men in the religious work? Evening classes for secular instructions. Gymnasiums or substitutes for them. Why the best place, time and effort should be given to meetings for young men only? The securing of young men for the office of General Secretary. The general Secretaryship as a profession. The railroad work. The colleges, &c., &c. Each topic was introduced by at ten minutes paper, and then thrown open for discussion; the last ten minutes of the time set apart for each topic being devoted the young Secretaries who had been in the work less than a year. Each session was opened with a devotional meeting lasting from a quarter to half an hour. Bible Readings were given at intervals, and frequently during the sessions hmyns were sung and prayers offered, so that great spirituality prevailed throughout the conference. On one evening between the sessions the Canadian Secretaries met together for tea and to talk over the work of the Dominiom. There were about 30 Secretaries and prospective Secretaries present at this meeting from six Provinces of the Dominion from Manitoba to Prince Edward Island. While supper was being disposed of each Secretary gave a short account of the work in his field, which was supplemented by an address on the Canadian work generally from the Travelling Secretary, Mr. J. S. Cole. The importance of the convention to be held in Peterborough, next October, was dwelt upon by Mr. R. C. Moore of New York and others, and the Canadian Secretaries were urged to see that strong delegations were sent to it. The closing day of the conference was Sunday. A consecration meeting was held in the morning. Many of the church services and religious meeting in the city were conducted by Secretaries. In the afternoon a mass meeting for young men was held in the Orange Hall and a meeting for ladies in one of the churches. After church service in the evening the farewell meeting was held. It was described by Mr. Williams as the most impressive meeting he had ever attended. Some of the Secretaries had been at six or seven services already that day, and yet the two hours that this meeting was held slipped away very quickly. Probably 150 took park. 81 spoke in ten minutes. The most impressive part of the meeting was the closing. The Secretaries all joined hands and sang the favorite association hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds," after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated by all. The conference then adjourned to meet next year probably in either Tennessee or Georgia. After the secretary hand finished his report, a quartet was sung "Must I go and Empty Handed," and the meeting was then thrown open for discussion concerning the local work. Mr. A. W. Jones and Mr. G. M. Roger reported concerning what had already been done by the association. It was shown that there had been encouraging results, in spite of all the difficulties met with. Suggestions were made as to increasing the usefulness of the association, the chief of which was that more personal work among the young men on the part of the members was what was most needed. The Rev. J. Manning encouraged the workers by telling of instances of good work done by the association which had come under his notice. The meeting was closed shortly after ten o'clock, and the workers went away more determined than ever to carry on the work with increasing deligence.

A Serenade

The City Band on Thursday night serenaded Mr. A. D. Faucher, who recently became a married man. The music was enjoyed by many besides Mr. and Mrs. Faucher, as the Band rendered several selections in good style. Mr. Faucher acknowledged the kindness of the Band in thus honoring him by contributing liberally to the band funds.

NO. ELEVEN.

THE FINAL ONE!

Closing September 15th.

A NEW PLAN.

For Persons Residing Anywhere in the World Outside the City of Toronto.

The Largest List, and Most Valuable Ever Offered by any Publisher.

RESIDENTS OF TORONTO INADMISSABLE.

A SMALL FARM FREE.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER!

Four Pianos, Three Organs, Silver Tea Sets, Sewing Machines, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and Innumerable other Valuable Rewards.

DON'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no change, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1.—Where is Gold first made mention of in the Bible?
2.—Where does it first state in the Bible that there was only one language and one speech on the whole earth?
3.—When is Inn first referred to in the Bible? (By the word inn is meant a place of rest and refreshment, commonly known now as an hotel).

Everyone competing must send one dollar with their answers, for six months' subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves, they will find that they have made the best investment of one dollar they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for six months in any case for your one dollar, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided your answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The land mentioned above could be divided up into building lots and sold to great advantage, as there are no vacant houses in the town of Clifton or Niagara Falls, as it is now called. Then, that even the last ones may not feel that they are to be left out, Truth will give a series of

CONSOLATION REWARDS.

The further you live from Toronto the better you can compete for these last or consolation rewards. Bear in mind that it is the last correct answer received at the office of Truth that gets number one in these consolation rewards. The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers one dollar for six months' subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaining a valuable reward in addition to Truth,

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopædia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the last, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exceeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. One dollar only required. Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

SHREDS OF POLICY.

AGAIN the Reformers have been holding one of the meetings by means of which they hope, in default of a policy, to stir up their depressed followers. Their leader, Mr. Blake, spoke, but of course he carefully avoided the coolly received proposition of favouring independence indeed he still had no policy to disclose, but trusted to the usual farango of stale slanders and misrepresentations. Mr. Mackenzie, who has more back bone, plainly condemned the idea of independance as ventilated by Sir Richard Cartwright. He indeed contributed something to the desiderated programme, his contribution being that "he would tear it "(the Senate of Canada)" to pieces to-morrow if he had the chance." We would respectfully suggest to Mr. Mackenzie and his friends, that the people wish to know what their policy would be if they were placed in office, not what it is now while they are in opposition. To judge by experience a Reform Cabinet would not tear the Senate to pieces, but would clamour for the power to appoint more Senators. It is the political complexion, not the constitution of the Senate, to which they object; they are hostile to it because, being nominated by the statesmen chosen by the people to administer their affairs, it represents the views of the majority of the people of Canada.

Mr. Charlton indeed tried his hand at constructing a platform, but it was chiefly composed of vague platitudes such as economy in expenditure, of which they have already given us their version; the public debt, as to which they certainly have experience; opposition to the bargain for building the C.P.R. with a preference of course for their old dawdling, costly procedure; to our land policy, that of the Reformers having been to reserve the land for the Indian and the buffalo; to gerrymandering, rather hard upon that skilful gerrymanderer Mr. Mowat; adoption of reciprocity and reform of the Senate, neither very complimentary to the late Senator Brown, and so forth. To eke out his scanty material he dragged in such old matters as Representation by Population, to which Mr. Mowat paid little attention in his infamous Gerrymandering Act; simultaneous elections, the spirit of which Mr. Mowat vislated when he deferred the Algoma election till the equinoctial storms could come the aid of his disfranchising tools; and honest election law which Mr. Mowat has repealed in favour of Informer Dowling and the fraudulently returned Lyon.

The Reformers will find that they cannot attain power by the merely negative policy of abusing their betters, nor by relying upon the long past deeds of men with whom they have nothing in common but the name to which they pretend as Reformers with nothing to reform.

EAST RIDING AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Important Meeting—The Fall Show—The dog tax and the Destruction of Sheep.

The East Riding Agricultural Society held a meeting on Tuesday June 24th, at the Town Hall at Keene, to make arrangements for holding the fall show and for raising the prize list.

It was resolved that the show should be held at Keene on Thursday and Friday, October 2nd and 3rd.

The only important changes in the prize list were the addition of prizes for General Purpose Mare and foal, for Heavy Draft mare and foal, and for Blood mare and foal to take the place of the former prize for mare and foal without particular description. The article in ladies' works that received commendation last year were added to the regular prize list. Prizes were also adopted for Indian work, for free competition by the Indians of Hiawatha, and Alderville.

Arrangements was made to secure the service of the Keene Band at the Fall Exhibition.

The Society then passed a resolution to ask the County Council to reimpose the dox tax, the motion being carried unanimously after many instances had been given of the destruction of sheep by dogs.

ANSWER TO MR. CLUXTON'S LETTER.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Your editorial remarks on my letter, I have read with gratification and pleasure as being in full accord with my own views, but not so with the remarks of Mr. Cluxton's criticisms. The argument in showing that rates are cheaper now, demonstrates that 80 cents are less than 70 cents, and is worthy of a boy who never went to school. How absurd is such a statement that insurance companies took risks before the waterworks were constructed at rates ruinous to themselves. Should they have been so long in the dark about their losses and only have discovered their error by the time when the construction of waterworks demanded lower rates? My store built in 1869, being at that time insured for 75 cents, a few years later the rate was reduced to 70 cents. Could they make a reduction and do business for so many years at ruinous rates without injury to themselves? No business could stand losses in succession for so many years. Their motive must have been purely philanthropic. If on the other hand all is true that Mr. Cluxton states, insurance companies have themselves to blame only for such a state of affairs, and no raising of rates will accomplish the results that they aim at. The over exertion of agents to take risks on representations of fictitious values, thereby offering a premium to incendiarism, is the cause of great losses to insurance companies, as cases of such kind have their illustration in mysterious fires. Let insurance companies reduce their agents, and have their valuator whose duty it is to get positive proof of goods insured, and let the insured himself bear a certain amount of risk, and less mysterious fires will happen. But if Mr. Cluxton finds only a remedy for the evil in monopoly, it is in vain to appeal to his philanthropic principles.

About the monopoly I am in possession of, as Mr. Cluxton puts it, I acknowledge the corn but is it a fault of mine, when several who tried to break what Mr. Cluxton calls a monopoly, have failed in the attempt, and why is this so, will Mr. Cluxton kindly investigate?

If it is a monopoly surely it is not kept up by high rates and combination, but by the manufacture of a superior article against wholesale made up goods.

Mr. Cluxton feels horrified at the mere mention of waterworks, nothing antagonistic has appeared in my letter to account for the bitter feelings he exhibits in his letter, as I have in my former letters always been in favour of waterworks with the one difference that the town should own them and make them a source of revenue.

Yours, &c.,
W. LECH.

STEAM WHISTLING.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Referring to the correspondence which has appeared in your paper concerning the above, I have now had an opportunity of ascertaining what is being done elsewhere, and find that it is contemplated by the City of Toronto to pass a by-law prohibiting all steam whistling within the limits of that city, and if the Mayor of Peterborough will obtain a copy of this by-law, and have a similar one passed for our city, the Grand Trunk Railway Company will be very glad to conform to it.

I am, sir,
Yours, etc.,

U. E. LOYALISTS OF CANADA.

The following sermon in regard to "The United Empire Loyalists of Canada," was preached recently at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, by the Rev. R. S. Forneri, B. D., Rector of Adolphustown. In a note as to that "historic locality," Mr. Forneri says:—"Adolphustown—'than which no township is more rich in historic matters pertaining to the U. E. Loyalists. Here settled a worthy band of refugees whose lineage can be traced back to noble names in France, Germany and Holland; here was the birthplace of many of Canada's more prominent and worthy sons, and here repose the ashes of a large number of the devoted pioneers,' Dr. Canniff's History, Page 245. There could not be a more suitable place for a memorial church":—

I Peter II. 17. Honour all men; Love the brotherhood; Fear God; Honour the king.

I am permitted to address you this morning upon a subject which to the patriotic Canadian is full of pride and interest, viz.: concerning those American Colonists of the last century whose loyalty to the unity of the British Empire amid extreme sufferings and losses earned for them the title of the United Empire Loyalists, par excellence; and also to appeal to you in behalf of an object which I have at heart, the erection of a Memorial Church in that historic locality in which my lot is cast, to those faithful and heroic lovers of their sovereign and country.

And in connection with such a subject, no text, it seems to me, could be more appropriate than that which I have just read, for the duties of which it speaks are those virtues which were regnant in the character of the old Loyalists, and which made them fit men, under God, to lay the foundation of a young nation—its political, educational and religious institutions, and to graft in the hearts of their children and children's children those lofty principles of loyalty and morality which to this day distinguish the Canadian character—principles which are indespensible to the true progress and prosperity of a people.

In this first part of my discourse I shall proceed to show that the conduct of the U. E. Loyalists, as it appears upon the page of history, exemplified in an eminent manner the obligations enforced by the Apostle in the text, and that thus, though dead, they yet speak to us and say "Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the King."

Reversing the order of these precepts for the convenience of consideration, let us see, first, how these fathers of our country Honored the King.

It was not because they were the blind and fanatical advocates of the doctrine of the "Divine right of Kings," as it is called, that they were the opponents of the rebellion which arose in their midst. It was not, as has been asserted, that they were office-holders under the British Government, which led them to assume the role of Loyalists, for the vast number of them were not servants of the crown at all. It was not that their illiteracy rendered them incapable of taking an intelligent view of the controversy between the mother country and their own, and that on this account they were ready servilely to acquiesce in any act of British tyranny or injustice against the colonies, for it is well known that the great bulk of the educated and refined, and the professional classes; the leading lawyers, the prominent medical men, the greater number of the clergy were all Loyalists; and so far from upholding the course of England, they deprecated her infatuated policy which had brought about so cruel a conflict; much less was it, as has been maliciously alleged by their spoilers, that they were cowards and would not stand up with them for their colonial rights. Was it the part of cowards to take sides with the minority? to expose themselves and families by their profession of attachment to the throne of England, to mob violence, to confiscations, imprisonment, banishment, and even death on the scaffold? Was it like cowards to buckle on their swords, as thousands of them did, and stand up nobly in defence of their King and Fatherland? No, the Loyalists did not "Honour the King," because they were without understanding or feeling, religion or courage; but rather because they possessed these qualities in a high degree, and from their exalted standpoint of duty and intelligent conviction, believed that under the circumstances to rebel was wrong, immoral, that it was wicked unnecessarily to plunge the colonies into the horrors of a fratricidal war, wrong to sever themselves from the British Empire, unnatural and wrong, for temporary grievances, to foreswear King and Country and the old flag under which they had been born and lived, and which had thrown its protection over them in the land of their adoption.

Such were some of the considerations which animated the Loyalists with unflinching patriotism, and nerved them in the midst of raging enemies, and in the face of untold losses and persecutions to "honor the king," and so to leave us an example that should arm us with the same mind.

And this leads me to observe in the second place that these Loyalists were in the main men who "feared God." From the nature of the case it must have been so, for such fidelity to principle as they exhibited could have had its root in nothing but in true religion—and history supports this conclusion. Dr. Canniff remarks, "their feelings of loyalty were strengthened by their spiritual instructors." And again he says: "The fires of patriotism were kept aglow in many a heart by the minister's earnest prayer." And no wonder, if the clergy in general were such men of God as the Rev. Chas. Inglis, first Bishop of Nova Scotia, and the Rev. John Stuart, first Rector of Kingston, both refugee clergymen. Of the former it is related that at the beginning of the revolution, with the courage of a confessor, he persisted in praying for the King and Parliament, in the face of a company of armed rebels, who had entered his church for the purpose of silencing or of shooting him; while the latter never for a moment shrank from avowing his allegiance to his sovereign or from repeating the appointed state prayers in divine service, till, after a long course of injury and ill-usage, he was compelled at last by threats of imprisonment to leave his beloved Mohawk flock and to seek an asylum in Canada. In the conscientious discharge of their duty to their country, the fear of God in these devoted men raised them above all fear of man! No wonder, if with such examples before their eyes their people became animated with the same steadfast spirit.

But the strength of their religious principles is shown by their conduct in the wilderness.

It must be admitted that their circumstances as settlers in the bush were by no means favorable to religious habits. Their struggle for the necessaries of life, their separation from social restraint, from the ordinances of worship and from pastoral oversight, were all conducive to laxity of morals and indifference to the obligations of religion. But to the credit of the Loyalists be it spoken that, though for years there was the greatest dearth of clergy, and the ministrations of religion in their midst, deeds of lawlessness and immorality but rarely occurred among them.

But more than this, we have ample proof that they prized and welcomed the ordinances of worship whenever they were offered them, and lamented their absence. In a letter to a friend in England written in the year 1784 by the Rev. Dr. Stuart before mentioned, whose name will ever be fragrant among you and among all Canadian churchmen as "Father of the Church in Upper Canada," he says: "I must not omit to mention the anxious desire of the loyal exiles to have clergymen sent among them; and they look to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in their present distress."

The report of this venerable society for the year 1788-9 bears the same testimony.

The Rev. Mr. Wiswall, the Society's missionary at Cornwallis and Wilmot, N.S. thus writes: "Since your Society has allowed a catechist for the Township of Wilmot, the people have expressed their grateful sense of the favour by immediately purchasing a cleared acre of land for his use, and building upon it a log house 22 x 20, for a school and chapel of ease. Mr. Cropeley, an elderly man and suffering loyalist, has undertaden the charge. He opened his school on the 1st of November, 1787, and he reads to the people the liturgy and suitable tracts on such Sundays as your missionary is engaged in other parts of his mission."

The same report refers to the labours of another missionary who ministered to the pioneers about our own bay, the Rev. Mr. Langhorn. "He is now settled," it states, "at his mission at Ernesttown and Fredericksburg. But he has since Oct. 1787 visited and baptized many children in various places that lie contiguous to the Apanee river. Capt. Hawley, of Ernesttown, has written also to the Society to thank them for their attention to the spiritual wants of the poor people." Only two years after this these settlers, poor as they were, set about erecting two churches, one at Bath and the other at Fredericksburg; the former yet stands, the latter has been replaced by a neat brick church.

But let me add, the honor of erecting the first church in Upper Canada undoubtedly belongs to the refugee Mohawks, who settled in the Grand River. In it the Rev. Dr. Stuart preached in the summer of 1784 to his old flock from whom he had been so long separated, and received from them such an affectionate and touching welcome.

Such, brethren, are a few of the facts and considerations which must lead the candid mind to conclude, without any desire of exaggerating their claims to sanctity, that the Fathers of Canada were on the whole men of religious principles were deep and sincere, who valued the Gospel and the ordinances of worship, and being such, they are not unworthy to be held up to this and succeeding generations of their children as examples of those who "feared God" as well has "honored the King."

We come now to the third in the triad of duties enjoined by the Apostle in the text, viz: "Love the brotherhood" i.e., in the words of Bishop Wordsworth, "Sympathizing with them in their griefs, succouring them in their troubles, rejoicing with them in their joys, as there is the same blood in the veins of all, the same head of the whole brotherhood, the same spirit knitting together all in one."

We have to enquire how the Loyalists fulfilled this obligation. Was this the mind and disposition which they exemplified?

An answer direct comes to us in the words of Dr. Canniff: "It is a remarkable fact, he says, that the Loyalists who planted Upper Canada, not only honored the King and Feared God, but in a very eminent degree, fulfilled the commandment to ove one another."

And was it not natural that people animated by the same patriotic feelings, and the same determination to live and die under the old flag of England: that companions in arms as many of them had been, and companions in suffering as they were; that coming together as refugees in the wilderness, having to undergo the same difficulties, privations and toils in creating homes for themselves, and providing subsistence for their families, and needing, as they did, each other's society, comfort and help, was it not natural that they should be knit together in the closest bonds of fellowship and brotherly regard!

The necessity for the interchange of labor and for the combination of hands to erect their log constructed habitation and to clear away the forest, gave rise to those hearty and happy gatherings called "Bees." The popularity of these re-unions for labor and pleasure, and the multiplication of pretexts for holding them are indications of the neighbourly feeling which prevailed.

I have been informed that the first yield of apples in Adolphustown was the occasion of a very remarkable "Bee." The whole township was invited to it, and after supper a committee was elected to divide the small heap of apples among the company. Amid much mirth and jollity the task was accomplished, everyone sharing alike, the owner of the apples receiving no more than the others.

In the dreadful year of famine, known as the "Hungry Year", which followed the withdrawal of the Government rations, a common calamity cemented the settlers more cordially together. Many, at the risk of future want to themselves, gave away day after day to their more needy neighbours. With some few exceptions the last loaf was divided, and when provisions were sold, it was at fair, not "famine prices."

But what need to multiply instances? No fact is better known, none is more frequently recalled among those who are wont to lament the present decay in the spirit of fellowship in the community, than that the noble band of Loyalists, like the primitive Romans. "Were like brothers in the brave days of old."

But to what end, brethren, am I directing my remarks? For what purpose do I illustrate the virtues, and recall the worth of the Loyalist patriots?

Before broaching the main object which I have in view, I desire, in a few more words, to hold up these high principled men, as worthy of our admiration and imitation. Religion, Loyalty, Fraternity, these were their principles, and they are the Pillars of the State, the Corner Stones of Society, the foundation of all manly and passive virtues. They were the source of that steadfastness, devotion and self-sacrifice which our fathers displayed in the hour of trial, and what, at such a time, would become of a state without qualities like these?

I desire also, to lead you to a sense of devout thankfulness to the Almighty Ruler, for peopling this country with men of such chosen virtue. It is indeed a favour and distinction which we cannot prize too highly that the foundations of our Dominion were laid in Peace and Righteousness. Rome was founded by Romulus in the blood of his brother Remus. English history begins with the landing of Hengist and his war-band in blood and fire, murder and pillage. The neighbouring Republic was born red-handed, with the blood of her mother's sons and of her own sons and brothers. In happy contrast to these and to most nations, the foundation of our country was laid in peace, by men devoted to the highest principles, for which they willingly suffered the loss of all things and counted not their lives dear unto them. For this proof of Divine goodness it well becomes us to be grateful, especially as it has been the cause, I believe, of many blessings to Canada in time past, and will be the well spring of countless others in time to come. As a recent writer observes: "If the seeds of disloyalty were sown in the New England Colonies from the beginning, so it is equally certain that the seeds of loyal connection with the crown and Empire of Britain were similarly sown in Canada and have ever borne the noblest and most glorious fruits. The settlement of this country by the expatriated Loyalists of America, was the leaven that has leavened the whole lump of Canadian nationality and made this country what I trust it will ever remain, the most loyal, orderly, and progressive part of Britain's Empire."

But the main purpose I have in view in making the United Empire Loyalists the theme of my discourse, remains to be stated, and must now be presented very briefly.

Can any one contemplate the character of the devoted pioneers; consider their conduct in their trying hour when they were required on pain of losing property, liberty and even life itself, to forswear their king and country; can any one view their brave and self-sacrificing, though alas, vain exertions in behalf of the unity of the British Empire: can any one follow them as they made their painful pilgrimage through tangled thickets, from the land which had cast them out, from their ruined and pillaged homes, to the soil where the old flag of England yet waved, albeit it was an unbroken forest, and behold how with stout hearts and high purposes they began that battle which was to turn the wilderness into into fruitful fields: can any one realize that these patient toilers, these suffering settlers, were the making of their adopted country, the founders of her present prosperity and growing greatness; and that the noble impulses which stirred their bosoms, their attachment to their soverign and British institutions, their love of the country and love of justice and charity and freedom and honour, have entered deeply into the character and sentiments of the Canadians, and have been felt for good in every national movement and development; can any one, I say, consider these things without lamenting the scant justice which as been done to the memory of these worthies, not to speak to their cruel vilification by those who drove them from their midst; and without astonishment that no monument exists to commemorate their deeds, and services to the land of their adoption? A document in the Dominion Library, relating to Brock's monument, states that "that monument stands in remembrance of him who sacrificed his valuable life in duty to his King and in defence of our Canadian homes." But what more, I ask, did that gallant patriot do, than the U. E. Loyalists, for whom no memorial has ever been reared? It may, indeed, be declared with truth and pride "si quaris monumentum circumspice." If a monument ye seek, look around you on your country—but the glorious truth herein embodied only heightens the ingratitude complained of. There are storied urns and pictured windows to the memory of the gallant few who fell in the Fenian Raid, but to commemorate a band of men who, after exhibiting a noble example of suffering patriotism, became the patient founders of a Province, hewn out of the wilderness, and lastly the defenders of their adopted country, no monumental pile, as I have said, exists, while their names are passing from our remembrance, and their very graves are trodden under foot. Such neglect and insensibility on the part of their countrymen, their own flesh and blood, is truly incomprehensible—heathen Rome would have called it impious!

Moved by such considerations and feelings as in this discourse I have endeavoured feebly to express, when the Lord Bishop of the diocese appointed me last autumn to the Rectory of Adolphustown, I immediately broached the idea of a U. E. Loyalist Memorial Church. The age and dilapidated condition of the present church built by the sons of Loyalists, gave me the opportunity; the approaching Centenary of the landing of the pioneers suggested an appropriate time. An inspection of the old records and memorials of the parish also inspired me at once with greater ardor for the undertaking, for I found the old parish registers and churchyards full of names well known and revered in the traditions of loyalism. I was particularly impressed to beholding the ruinous state of the old pioneer Cemetery, its crumbling monuments and untended graves. It occured to me then that not only the church itself might be made monumental, but that those precious names over which oblivion was fast creeping, and others as worthy might be preserved to lasting remberance and honour, by engraving them upon rows of mural tiles, or tablets within the sacred building. From that moment I began to work out my scheme. I found that the idea commended itself to gentlemen occuping the highest positions in the country, especially, his Honour the Lieut Governor of Ontario. In a word so far I have met with nothing but kindness and encouragement in my project. The parishioners, few in number as they are, willingly seconded my efforts and subscribed the sum of $2,200 towards the building fund. An earnest parishioner has in addition to his subscription given a beautiful and elevated site for the church, in full view of the Bay. Other kind contributors have raised the subscription list to about $2,500, but $7,000 at least are required to build a stone edifice of moderate dimensions and suitable character. Will you, brethren, hold up your hands and contribute to the good work I have undertaken? Ample time will be given to subscribers, no immediate payment being required. For although my endeavours are directed to have the corner stone laid by his Honour the Lieut-Governor with all proper ceremony on the 16th day of June next, we shall proceed no further this year than the foundation of the building in order that I may have the necessary time to secure subscriptions to the full amount required? Will you help me, brethren, to success? You will, I know, if indeed you have the same mind as the writers of the following words extracted from their own letters upon the subject. His Honor the Lieut.-Governor says, "The U. E. Loyalists deserve the recognition suggested by the Rev. Mr. Forneri, and to it I will gladly give my patronage, time or money," and again, "I shall be with you if I can to lay the corner-stone of the church, and if of any importance to your undertaking you can tell your friends of my wish and intention to be there if possible." Chief Justice Wallbridge writes, "I esteem it a privilege and an honor to be associated in so good and pleasant a work. You may rely on me for $100." While Dr. Canniff remarks, "In regard to the Memorial Church in honor of the U. E. L. pioneers of Upper Canada, you have my warmest sympathy, and warmest hope for a successful result of your timely action."

What now will you do for this work of God, and for the honor of those brave men and women who settled around the shores of our beautiful Bay, just one hundred years ago?

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

CHAPTER XIX—CONTINUED.

Mrs. Palma looked impatiently at Regina, and as the latter rose to get hat and wrappings from her own room, she saw the mother lean over the pillows, saw also that the white arms of the girl were quickly thrown round her neck.

Soon after she heard the front door bell ring, and when she started down the steps, Olga called from her room:

"Come in. Mamma has to answer a note before she leaves home. When you go down, please ask Terry to give a half-bottle of that white wine with the bronze seal to Octave, and tell him to make and send up to me as soon as possible, a wine chocolate. Mrs. Tarrant's long promised grand affair comes off to-night, and I must build myself up for the occasion."

"Are you feverish, Olga? Your cheeks are such a brilliant scarlet?"

"Only the fever of delicious excitement, which all young ladies of my sentimental temperament are expected to indulge, when assured that the perilous voyage of portionless maidenhood is blissfully ended in the comfortable harbour of affluent matrimony. Does that feel like ordinary fever?"

She put out her large well-formed hand, and, clasping it between her own, Regina exclaimed:

"How very cold! You are ill, or worse still, you are unhappy. Your heart is not in this marriage."

"My heart? It is only an automatic contrivance for propelling blood through my system, and so long as it keeps me in becoming colour, I have no right to complain. Did you ever read the account of Iduna's captivity in the castle of Thiassi in Jotuncheim?"

"I never did, and what is more, I never will, if it teaches people to think as harshly of the world as you seem to do."

"You sweet, simple blue-eyed dunce! How shamefully your guardian neglects your education! Never even heard of the Ellewomen? Why, they compose the most brilliant society, all over the world. I have an abiding faith that they had Borgia hair, hazel eyes, red lips, and sloping white shoulders just like mine. They have peopled the world; a large colony settled in this country, we are nearly all Ellewomen now, and you are an ignorant wretched little Iduna, minus the apples, and must get rid of your heart at once, in order to smile constantly as we do."

"Olga, don't libel yourself and Society so unmercifully. Don't marry Mr. Congreve. Think how horrible it must be to spend all your life with a man you do not love!"

"I assure you, that will form no part either of his programme, or of mine."

"But Mr. Palma is not married, and when you are Mr. Congreve's wife, of course, instead of going to his club, your husband will expect to remain at home with you."

"That might be possible in the old-fashioned parsonage where you imbibed so many queer outlandish doctrines; but I assure you, we have quite outgrown such an intolerable orthodox system of penance. As for sitting up as a rival to the 'Century,'—female vanity never soared to so sublime a height of folly! and if Erle Palma were married forty times, his darling Club would still hold the first place in its flinty affections. It must be a most marvellously attractive place,—that bewitching 'Century,'—to magnetize so completely the iron of his nature."

During the drive, Mrs. Palma was unusually cheerful, almost loquacious, and her companion attributed the agreeable change in her generally reticent manner, to maternal pride and pleasure in the contemplated alliance of her only child.

"Then Farley must take you home, after I get out at Mrs. St. Clare's. The carriage can return for me about four o'clock."

"That will not be necessary. I wish to go and see Mrs. Mason, who has been out of town since July,—and I can very easily walk. She has changed her lodgings."

"Have you consulted Erle on the subject?"

"No Ma'am, but I do not think he would object."

"At least it would be best to obtain his permission, for only last week when you stayed so long at that floral establishment he said he should forbid your going out alone. Wait till to-morrow."

"To-morrow I shall not have time, and all my studies are over for to-day. Why should he care? He allows me to go to Mrs. Mason's in the carriage."

"It is entirely your own affair, but my advice is to consult him. At this hour he is probably in his office; drive down and see him, and if he consents, then go. Here is Mrs. St. Clare's. Farley, take Miss Orme to Mr. Palma's office, and be sure you are back at half past three. Don't keep me waiting."

Never before had Regina gone to the Law-Office, and to-day she very reluctantly followed the unpalatable advice; but the urgency of Mrs Palma's manner constrained obedience. When the carriage stopped, she went in, feeling uncomfortable and embarrassed, and secretly hoping that her guardian was absent. At a large desk near the door, sat a young man intently copying some papers, and as the visitor entered, he rose and stared.

"Is Mr. Palma here?"

"He will be in a few moments. Take a seat."

Hoping to escape before his return, she said hastily:

"I have not time to wait. Can you give me a pencil and piece of paper? I wish to leave a note."

She went in, sat down before a desk, where a number of papers were loosely scattered, and took up a pen lying near a handsome bronze ink stand.

How should she commence? She had never written him a line, and felt perplexed. While debating whether she should say: Dear Mr. Palma, or My Dear Guardian,—her eyes wandered half unconsciously about the apartment, until they were arrested by a large portrait hanging over the mantelpiece. It was a copy of the picture her mother had directed painted by Mr. Harcourt, and which had been sent to Europe.

This copy differed in some respects from the original portrait; Hero had been entirely omitted, and in the hands of the painted girl were clusters of beautiful snowy lilies.

Surprised and gratified that he deemed her portrait worthy of a place in his office, she hastily wrote on a sheet of legal cap:—

"DEAR MR. PALMA:—Having no engagements until to-morrow, I wish to spend the afternoon with Mrs. Mason, who has removed to No. 900 East —— Street, but Mrs. Palma advised me to take your permission. Hoping that you will not object to my making the visit, without having waited to see you, I am,

"Very respectfully,

"Your ward,

"REGINA ORME."

Leaving it open on the desk, where he could not fail to see it, she glanced once more at the portrait, and hurried away, fearful of being intercepted ere she reached the carriage.

"Drive to No. 900 East —— Street."

The carriage had not turned the neighbouring corner when Mr. Palma leisurely approached his office door, with his thoughts intent upon an important will case, which was creating much interest and discussion among the members of the bar, and which, in an appeal form, he had that day consented to argue before the Supreme Court. As he entered the front room the clerk looked up.

"Stuart, has Elliott brought back the papers?"

"Not yet, sir. There was a young lady here a moment ago. Did you meet her?"

"No. What was her business?"

"She did not say. Asked for you and would not wait."

"What name?"

"Didn't give any. Think she left a note on your desk. She was the loveliest creature I ever looked at."

"My desk? Hereafter in my absence allow no one to enter my private office. I did not consider it necessary to caution you, or inform you that my desk is not public property, but designed for my exclusive service. In future when I am out keep that door locked. Step around to Fitzgerald's and get that volume of Reports he borrowed last week."

The young man coloured, picked up his hat and disappeared; and the lawyer walked into his sanctum and approached his desk.

Seating himself in a large revolving chair, his eyes fell instantly upon the long sheet, with the few lines traced in a delicate feminine hand.

Over his cold face swept a marvellous change, strangely softening its outlines and expression. He examined the writing curiously, taking off his glasses and holding the paper close to his eyes; and he detected the alteration in the "Dear," which had evidently been commenced as "My."

Laying it open before him, he took the pen, wrote "my" before the "dear," and drawing a line through the "Regina Orme" substituted above it "Lily."

In her haste she had left on the desk one glove and her small ivory porte-monnaie, which her mother had sent from Rome.

He took up the little pearl gray-kid, redolent of Lubin's "violet," and spread out the almost childishly small fingers on his own broad palm, which suddenly closed over it like a vise; then with a half smile of strange tenderness, in which all the stony sternness of lips and chin seemed steeped and melted, he drew the glove softly, carressingly over his bronzed cheek.

Pressing the spring of the purse it opened and showed him two small gold dollars and a five dollar bill. In another compartment, wrapped in tissue paper was a small bunch of pressed violets, tied with a bit of blue sewing silk. Upon the inside of the paper was written:

"Gathered at Agra. April 3th, 18—"

He knew Mr. Lindsay's handwriting, and his teeth closed firmly as he refolded the paper, and put the purse and glove in the inside breast pocket of his coat. Placing the note in an envelope he addressed it to "Erle Palma," and locked it up in a private drawer.

Raising his brilliant eyes to the lovely girlish face on the wall, he said slowly, sternly:

"My Lily,—and she shall be broken and withered,—and laid to rest in Greenwood,—before any other man's hand touches hers. My Lily,—housed sacredly in my bosom,—blooming only in my heart."

FARM AND GARDEN.

DRYING HERBS.—Herbs for drying for future use should be cut just before the time they are coming into Power. Dry them in the shade, and after sufficiently dry to put away, tie them in bunches, and hang in a cool shed or place them loosely between the paper and stow away in cupboards or drawers; the last mode is by far the cleanest and most approved plan with the best housekeepers. Some, indeed, powder the leaves at once after drying, and put them away in bags ready for use.

MILCH COWS EXHIBITION.—The Industrial Milk Society of St. Hyacinthe are about holding an exhibition of milch cows of Canadian breeds. The society offers a prize of $100, the Hon. W. W. Lynch offers a prize of $50, and the citizens of St. Hyacinthe offer a prize of $25.

TO PREVENT FIRES IN HAYSTACKS.—To prevent haystacks firing, scatter a few handfuls of common salt between each layer. The salt, by absorbing the humidity of the hay, not only prevents its fermentation and consequent heating, but it also adds a salty taste to this forage, which all cattle like; besides, it stimulates the appetite and assists their digestion, and so preserves them from many diseases.

WHEN AND HOW TO HARVEST WHEAT.—It is the experience of the best wheat growers in our own and other countries, that a superior quality of grain is obtained by harvesting the crop when the berry is in the soft or "doughy" state; that is, when the grain may be readily crushed between the thumb and finger. It is claimed that more bushels per acre, and a greater amount of flour of a better quality per bushel is thus obtained. Starch and gluten are the most valuable constituents of wheat, and the quality of these is diminished by over ripening, while the per cent. of woody fibre is increased. Every farmer can readily make a practical test of this question by cutting a part of his wheat earlier than the rest, threshing, weighing and grinding the grain separately. The method of harvesting the grain has much to do with its quality. One of the greatest sources of loss arises from the careless and hurried manner of shocking the bundles. If the shock becomes thoroughly wet, as it is sure to be in "catching" weather, if not properly made and protected, the grain begins to grow, and only and inferior bread can be made from it. There are several methods of arranging bundles in the shocks; they may be set in pairs, forming a row of ten or twenty, or in round shocks. The long stocks expose a board surface to the winds, and may be blown down, when the well-set round shock would stand the storm. The latter form also more readily admits of "capping." A secure small shock may be made of three pairs of bundles set closely and firmly, with two more bundles upon each side of the double row. The heads of the bundles are brought up together, and a capsheaf placed over all. This cap is an ordinary bundle, with the band placed six or eight inches from the but, and the top bent into the shape of a funnel. A larger round stook consists of four pairs of bundles, with three sheaves on each side, making fourteen, upon which two cap sheaves are placed, each made as above described, with one side of the funnel left open where the two sheaves join on the shocks. A boy may aid in bringing the sheaves into piles, but it is no economy to employ him to shock them. It is a common practice to cut and bind until night-fall, and afterwards set up the sheaves in the quickest way possible. Of all harvest work, the shocking of grain should be done with the greatest care; otherwise a hard storm may convert the poorly made shocks into piles of decaying straw and growing and nearly useless grain. —American Agriculturalist.

A FLORAL DECORATION

OF THE GRAVES OF MEMBERS OF THE ORDER OF ODDFELLOWS.

The Stores Closed in Honor of the sion —A Procession—The Ceremony at the Little Lake Cemetery.

That the members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows take an interest in the welfare of each other while alive is well known, and that they do not forget the friends of brethren who depart from this life is also an established fact. The inauguration of the Decoration Day, when they decorate the graves of brethren, shows also that they do not fail to remember those who have been the pioneers in their Order, and those with whom they have met in the lodge room, but who are now sleeping in the "City of the Dead." The ceremony was first introduced in Peterborough last year, and on Friday afternoon it was repeated.

A HALF HOLIDAY.

The Oddfellows received strong testimony of the approval felt by the people generally of their act. It was observed, as far as business was concerned, as a general holiday. The stores were all closed from 2 o'clock until 6 o'clock, and a very large number of persons visited the cemetery to witness the ceremony.

THE PROCESSION.

At about two o'clock the members of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, assembled at their halls. Soon after the order of procession was formed, each member of one Lodge having a member of the sister Lodge at his side. The procession was headed by the Fire Brigade Band, which played religious airs, and the members came next, followed by the Guards, Scene Supporters, Supporters of the V. G. and of the N. G., Conductors and Wardens, Secretaries, Treasurers, Vice Grands, Noble Grands, and Past Grands. The Marshals of the day were Bro. R. J. Lee, P.G., and Bro. W. Ross, P.G. There were about ninety members in the procession, which was about twenty more than there were last year, and each member, besides his rosette and badge, carried in his hand a large bouquet, while several floral crosses were borne by members.

AT THE CEMETERY

a large arch had been erected over the largest gate and two smaller ones over the smaller gates. On the largest arch there were three mottoes, "Blessed are the Dead that Die in the Lord," "The Memory of the Just is Blessed," and "Rejoice in Him." The smaller arch on the right hand bore the motto "Abide With Me," and that on the left "Glory to God in the Highest." Having entered the cemetery, the members formed in a circle near the chapel, and, accompanied by the cornets, sang, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Bro. James Stevenson, N. G. of Otonabee Lodge, called on the chaplain to offer prayer, and Bro. W. J. Minore, Chaplain of Otonabee Lodge, invoked the Divine blessing.

DECORATING THE GRAVES.

The brethren then proceeded to decorate the graves of their departed brethren, commencing at the last resting place of Sheriff Conger. The Noble Grands entered the lot, accompanied by two brethren, and while the members deposited the flowers on the graves the Noble Grand said, "In grateful remembrance of Bro. Sheriff Conger we deposit these flowers." The same ceremony was repeated at each grave, until all had been decorated, and each member had assisted in the ceremony by placing the flowers he carried on some brother's grave.

The Oddfellows have one lot in the cemetery, in which are interred brethren who have no friends here. Two brethren now rest in this lot, and upon their graves were placed large floral crosses in addition to the bouquets.

On the last Decoration Day, June 28th, 1883, thirty-four graves were decorated, and this year the brethren had one more brother to remember in this way, namely, the late Dr. Bennett, who was a member of Peterborough Lodge. The following are the names of those whose graves were decorated:—

Sheriff W. S. Conger, M. P., second N. G. of Otonabee Lodge.
Col. Alex. McDonnell, M. P., Otonabee Lodge.
Sheriff James Hall, M.P., Otonabee Lodge.
Samuel W. Albro, Otonabee Lodge.
Alex. Baptie, Peterborough Lodge.
Wm. Hall, Otonabee Lodge.
James Hamilton, Otonabee Lodge.
W. H. Wrighton, Clerk of the Peace, Otonabee Lodge.
George Jenkins, Otonabee Lodge.
Augustus Sawers, Otonabee Lodge.
F. Ferguson, Otonabee Lodge.
James Ferguson, Otonabee Lodge.
W. H. Scott, M.P.P., P. G. of Peterborough Lodge.
James Harvey, Otonabee Lodge.
J. B. Buckett, Peterborough Lodge.
James Martin, Peterborough Lodge.
John Robinson, Otonabee Lodge.
Charles Perry, M.P., Otonabee Lodge.
Thomas Fortye, Otonabee Lodge.
Judge G. B. Hall, first N. G. of Otonabee Lodge.
J. L. Hughes, Otonabee Lodge.
W. A. Allen, Peterborough Lodge.
Dr. Bennett, Peterborough Lodge.
— Tully, Otonabee Lodge.
David Carlisle, Peterborough Lodge.
Dr. James Bird, Otonabee Lodge.
Walter Beal, Peterborough Lodge.
Wm. H. Vizard, Otonabee Lodge.
John Read, Otonabee Lodge.
Dr. John McNabb, Otonabee Lodge.
Samuel White, P.G. of Peterborough Lodge.
James Foley, M.P., Otonabee Lodge.
F. W. Rubidge, Peterborough Lodge.
John Haggart, Otonabee Lodge.
Capt. A. S. Fraser, Otonabee Lodge.

After the conclusion of the ceremony, the members of the Order again assembled near the chapel. The band played "Memories of Galilee," and the well known hymn "the Sweet By-and-By," was sung. Bro. Andrew McFarlane, N.G. of Peterborough Lodge, delivered an address, and Bro. J. D. Tully, chaplain of Peterborough Lodge, offered prayer.

The procession was then re-formed and the members proceeded back to Otonabee Lodge Hall, were short addresses were delivered by Bro. J. Stevenson, N. G., Bro. A. McFarlane, N.G., Bro. J. C. T. Lacey, P.G., Bro. Charles Noyes and others.

GRAVES GENERALLY DECORATED.

The people generally appeared to have partaken of the same spirit as the Oddfellows, for there was a very large number of citizens at the cemetery, and there was hardly a lot or a grave that was not radiant and redolent with the floral tributes of affectionate remembrance.

The Committee desire to acknowledge the following contributions:—Mrs. Benj. Cooney, two handsome crosses for the Oddfellows' lot, hand bouquet, and a number of button-hole bouquets for members; the Rev. and Mrs. Clementi, a basket of bouquets; Mrs. E. J. Toker, a basket of roses; Mrs. Eastland, a bouquet and button hole bouquets for the band; Mr. A. Moffat, triple links for Oddfellows' lot, decorated with flowers; Mrs. J. D. Tully, decoration of the triple links on the arch at the entrance gate; and bouquets from Mr. P. Connal, Mrs. Lech, Miss White, Mrs. Dr. Pigeon, and Mrs. F. Rubidge.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversasion proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

CHAS. BERGR,
Hoboken, N.J.

GREAT NEGLIGENCE.—There is great neglect with most people to maintain a regular action of the bowels, which causes much disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills, compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, costiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning? The signal perhaps of the approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cts., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough it never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup or whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's porous plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY.—The July number of Harper opens with a very timely and interesting paper on "The Nile," by Dr. A. Frantvetter, with numerous illustrations among them being several reproductions of sketches of heads by Sir Fred. Leighton, President of the Royal Academy. Annie Howell's Frechette, takes us to a very different but no less important river, in her vivid descriptions of "Summer Resorts upon the St. Lawrence," profusely illustrated. Montz Busch contributes a description of "Prince Bismarck in Private Life," and there is an excellent likeness of the great German statesman. Joseph Hutton gives an account of "Harrow on the Hill" with its celebrated school and its beautiful scenery, both being ably illustrated. Col. Higginson's paper on America, has this time for its subject "Old Hickory," General Taylor, President of the United States, whose portrait and that of Daniel Webster are given. In "The Silent Schools of Kendall Green," Santa M. Brady gives an account of the rise and progress of that institution for the education of deaf-mutes. Alice Comyns Carr has a chatty paper on "The Professional Beauties of the Last Century," whose portraits, by some of the greatest painters of the day, are presented. A. Wainwright describes the various "Approaches to New York," views of them being given in "Beef from the Range to the Shambles." C. Pomeroy Keese, gives an account of the great cattle ranches of the far west, the system under which they are carried on, and the marketting of the stock. The two novels, "Judith Shakespeare," by Wm. Black, and "Nature's Serial Story," by E. P. Roe, progress with increasing interest. Some lively short tales and some charming poems with the editorial miscellanies complete a number, which accomplishes the almost impossible, by being even more full of interest and readable than Harper usually is.

MARGIE'S MISSION.—The second volume of "The Young Folks' Library," published by D. Lothrop & Co., of Boston. Margie's Mission by Marie Oliver, is as interesting and healthy reading as its predecessor. The young people are delighted with it, and cannot fail to be benefitted by it. Amid so much trivial and even noxious literature for children, it is a boon to have books of so excellent a character published in such an attractive form.

THE STEAM WHISTLE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Oblige me with sufficient space to thank Mr. A. White for his letters of the 24th and 27th instant. They are brief but very much to the purpose.

It now remains to be seen whether or not the Town Council will avail themselves of the offer contained in the second communication, and pass a By-law forbidding the sounding of the steam whistle within the limits of the corporation. Such a By-law is rendered the more necessary in consequence of the night disturbance on the O. & Q. Railway. Last Saturday the whistle was being blown until after midnight, and we were awakened again by its shriek at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning.

A PROPERTY OWNER.

Peterborough, June 30, 1884.

COBOURG.

FORTUNATE.—Miss Eliza Robertson, of Coldsprings, we are informed, has fallen heir to $25,000 through the death of a relative.

FIRES.—On Friday night the old building in the hollow opposite the Dunham House, and owned by Mr. William Pomeroy, was discovered to be on fire, the work evidently being that of an incendiary. The fire spread rapidly to the adjoining building, the property of Mr. H. Mackechnie, and it was thought the whole row would be reduced to ashes, but the fire brigade were equal to the emergency and worked with a will, and the small damage sustained shows that the boys know how to place a damper on such things. Another fire occurred on Tuesday morning in an old empty frame tenement house, known as the "Corktown terrace," near the lake shore, in the eastern part of the town. It was entirely destroyed.—Sentinel-Star.

FRANCE AND CHINA.

RESULT OF A CABINET COUNCIL.

After the Cabinet Council, held to-day, the Government telegraphed to Gen. Millot to suspend the departure of troops from Tonquin. Admiral Courbet's squadron has been ordered to join Admiral Lespes, commander of the French squadron in Chinese water. Immediate measures will be taken to obtain satisfaction for the defeat at Langson.

A CHINESE OPINION.

The Chinese legation assures M. Ferry that the Chinese Government was entirely innocent of the attack upon French troops at Langson. The Chinese ambassador believes the assailants were irregulars and deserters belonging to bands afraid to return to China and wishing to retain the lands which they occupied.

NORTH-WEST NOTES.

SATISFIED WITH THE COUNTRY.—Mr. J. C. Phelps, a gentleman of means from St. Catharines, Ont., has been in Winnipeg for the past ten weeks, is registered at the Brunswick, on his way to Ontario to bring out his family. Mr. Phelps has made extensive trips through the west, and expresses himself more than satisfied with the country, and intends investing heavily here.

THE M. & N. W. R.—The question of having the terminus of the Manitoba & Northwestern Railway removed from Portage la Prairie to Winnipeg is receiving considerable attention, and at a recent meeting of the Council it was resolved that a committee be appointed to wait on Mr. McArthur and the Directors of the Manitoba & Northwestern Railway with a view to have the terminus of that city located in Winnipeg.

END OF THE TRACK.—Master Mechanic Reid, of the C. P. R. returned recently from the end of the track. He states that the road is now constructed as far as twelve miles beyond Lagan and that the construction work is proceeding at the rate of one mile per day through the Rockies. He says that there is an innumerable company of men of every nation engaged on the road but more are required. The crops all along the line are in good condition and there is every prospect of a beautiful harvest.—Winnipeg Times.

Disinfecting Toulon.

Fires are burning in the streets of Toulon for purifying purposes. A post-mortem of two bodies has been made. In each case there were signs of Asiatic cholera.

Brutally Assaulted.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 27.—Dr. Vartan, a naturalized British subject, was brutally assaulted recently at Nazareth. As the local officials refused to give him redress, Earl Dufferin the British Ambassador, has appealed to the Porte.

A Seditious Notice.

DUBLIN, June 27.—A seditious notice has been placarded at Donerailе, County Cork. It threatens the murder of Lord Donerailе, and says an end must come to Rossmoreism and landlordism. It summons the Invincibles to meet to-day to arrange for the removal of Lord Donerailе.

Defeat of El Madhi.

The former Bedouin, lieutenant of Hicks Pasha, has arrived at Wadihalfa. He reports that El Madhi made the attact on Khartoum but was repulsed with heavy loss. The date of the attack and particulars are not given. Hostile tribes are massing in the vicinity of Dongola. The Nile is rising rapidly.

The Boundary Case.

A despatch to the Globe dated London, June 27th, says:—Her Majesty in Council to-day granted an order for the reference of the Ontario Boundary Question to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The petition from Ontario and Manitoba making the request was laid before Her Majesty in Council yesterday. The hearing of the question was fixed for the 15th of July next.

The Bailiff and the Sewing Machine Agent

A bailiff in Hamilton who, acting under instructions from a sewing machine agent, removed from the house of the purchaser a machine on which all the installments had not been paid, has been fined $2 for trespass. The Magistrate held that a division court bailiff could not remove goods from one citizen's house on the sole authority of another citizen. The case will be appealed, and agents who sell sewing machines and musical instruments on weekly payments will probably have their way of doing business more clearly defined.

A New Survey.

Dr. Selwyn, F. R. S. C., director of the Geological Survey, Ottawa, has arranged an expedition for the exploration of the almost unknown country lying between Lake St. John and James' Bay. The expedition will ascend the Bersimis river, and after exploring the height of land and the basin of Lake Mistassini, will continue down the Rupert river to James' bay. The labours of the party will occupy from fifteen to eighteen months, and will likely prove of great value to this Province and the Dominion. The heads of the party are Mr. A. P. Low, as geologist, and Mr. John Bignell, as surveyor.

The Eno Case.

QUEBEC, June 26.—This action at length seems to be approaching an end much to the relief of all concerned. The prosecution have no more evidence to produce, and the case is so favorable to the accused that his counsel have decided to call no witnesses. The time of the court was principally taken up this morning with the reading over and singing the depositions, which are very voluminious, especially that of Mr. Cashier Roberts, the principal witness. His evidence is rather favourable than otherwise to the accused. The argument of the case is fixed for to-morrow. Eno has now been under surveillance nearly a month, and a good deal of the proceedings certainly look vexatious, and brought more to worry the accused than with any chance of succeeding. However, Eno seems again near obtaining his liberty, but there are vague rumors of further proceedings.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25 cts.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

A marvellous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth, and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by J. D. Tully wholesale, retail agent.

LONDON, June 29.—The Egyptian conference will meet in the Foreign Office to-morrow. Only formal business will be transacted at the first session.

AN ENGLISH STEAMER SEIZED.

LONDON, June 29.—A despatch from Gibraltar says a Spanish revenue cutter seized a British steamer a mile from the batteries. The cutter subsequently released the steamer, but took a passenger to Algeciras as a hostage. The Governor of Gibraltar has ordered an enquiry.

CHOLERA AT TOULON.

TOULON, June 29.—There have been seven deaths from cholera here since last night.

LATER.—The latest news regarding the cholera is contradictory. The Government Sanitary Commissioners doubt whether the disease at Toulon is Asiatic cholera, while telegrams from the stricken town unhappily point in the contrary direction. It now oozes out that the first fatal case occurred ten days ago at Toulon on board the transport Montebello, and that through neglect of the officers the deceased man's clothes were not destroyed.

THE EGYPTIAN CONFERENCE.

LONDON, June 29.—The Egyptian Conference met in London on Saturday afternoon. The Turkish ambassador to England was present.

A Mail special says:—It is reported that Count Von Munster, the plenipotentiary attending the Egyptian Conference as the representative of Germany, has already effected a combination with Count Karolyi the Austrian representative, and Chevalier Nigra, the Italian plenipotentiary, in opposition to the understood arrangement existing between England and France. Nothing was done at the first meeting beyond an exchange of introductions, civilities, and credentials. The conference then adjourned over, and will probably not re-assemble for ten days. Contrary to expectation the meeting was unattended by any political excitement. Indeed, it may be said to have fallen flat.

TAX ON IMPORTED CEREALS.

LONDON, June 29.—A despatch from Antwerp says the agitation against the proposed tax on imported cereals is increasing. It is alleged such a tax would ruin the port of Antwerp.

PRE-EMPTION LAWS.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The action of the House of Representatives upon the repeal of the pre-emption laws creates great excitement among settlers in the Northwest. Protests are being sent to Washington from all directions.

LACROSSE.

The Match Between the Torontos and Shamrocks for the Championship.

The match for the championship of the National Amateur Lacrosse Association, played on the Toronto Athletic Ground in Rosedale on Saturday, was won by the Torontos in some time inside two hours, including all intervals. The Torontos won the first, third, and fourth games in 2, 20, and 18 minutes respectively. The Shamrocks took the second game in 17 minutes of actual play. It is estimated that nearly 5,000 people witnessed the match. The weather was all that could be desired but for the heat. The play was energetic throughout, the ball most frequently being at either end of the field—generally nearest the Shamrocks' goal. The Shamrocks' defence play is said to have been demoralized by the constant attacks of the Toronto home. The defence of the Torontos', on the other hand, when such was necessary, was admirable. The following is a list of the games:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| First game | Torontos, | 2 min |
| Second game | Shamrocks, | 17 " |
| Third game | Torontos, | 20 " |
| Fourth game | Torontos, | 18 " |

SPRINGBROOK.

A NEW ELEVATOR.—An elevator is being built by a joint stock company at Springbrook on the Central Ontario Railway. The foundation is laid, and 100,000 feet of lumber has been purchased at Marmora, which men and teams are busy hauling. The building is to be 30x50, and will be ready for next fall's grain trade. It will prove a great convenience to the farmers of north Rawdon and Marmora, saving them the labor of drawing their grain several miles further.—Stirling News-Argus.

SOME HISTORICAL FACTS.

WITH total disregard for truth, and in that abusive strain which it has several times found result so unpleasantly for itself, the Port Hope Guide takes us to task for stating that the greater part of the money advanced by Sir Hugh Allan in 1872 was spent in furthering the interests of Reform candidates. It accuses us of giving the historical facts a wide berth. Well we will give some undoubted historical facts and see how the Guide and its friends will like them.

The Guide quotes Sir Hugh Allan as the authority for the statement that he spent nearly $400,000. As the sums advanced to the members of the Ministry amounted to $162,000, there is a deficiency of nearly $240,000 to be accounted for. We will let the Guide's own witness account for it. Sir Hugh Allan says:—

"A railway from Montreal to Ottawa through the French country, north of the Ottawa River, has long been desired by the French inhabitants; but Cartier, who is the salaried solicitor of the Grand Trunk road, to which this would be an opposition, has interposed difficulties, and by his influence prevented its being built. The same reason made him desirous of giving the contract for the Canadian Pacific into the hands of parties connected with the Grand Trunk Railway, and to its end he fanned the flame of opposition to us; but I saw, in this French railway scheme, the near approach of the general elections, when Cartier as well as others, had to go to their constituents for re-election, a sure means of attaining my object, especially as I propose to carry it through to the terminus of the Pacific. The plans I purpose are in themselves the best for the interests of the Dominion, and in urging them on the public I am really doing a most patriotic action. But, even in that view, means must be used to influence the public, and I employed several young French lawyers to write it up in their own newspapers. I subscribed a controlling influence in the stock, and proceeded to subsidize the newspapers themselves, both editors and proprietors. I went to the country through which the road would pass, and called on many of the inhabitants. I visited the priests and made friends of them, and I employed agents to go among the principal people and talk it up. I then began to hold public meetings and attended to them myself, making frequent speeches in French to them, showing them where their true interest lay. The scheme at once became popular, and I formed a Committee to influence the members of the Legislature. This succeeded so well that in a short time it had twenty-seven out of forty-five on whom I could rely, and the electors of the ward in this city, which Cartier himself represents, notified him that unless the contract for the Pacific Railway was given in the interests of Lower Canada, he need not present himself for re-election. He did not believe this, but when he came here and met his constituents, he found to his surprise, that their determination was unchanged."

Again in his affidavit Sir Hugh says:—

"As may be gathered from the letters in question, I considered it to be my policy to strengthen my position as far as I possibly could with my own friends and fellow citizens in the Province of Quebec, and more especially in so far as related to the Montreal Northern Colonization Railway, which I conceived would be at some day the outlet from the Canadian Pacific to the port of Montreal. And a consider able portion of the money referred to in those letters was expended by me in furtherance of that project in many ways."

Thus the only evidence we have of the manner in which nearly $240,000 out of the nearly $400,000 was spent, is given by the Guide's own witness, for the slanderers, letter thieves and blackmailers skulked away when called before a Royal Commission, appearing to draw the line at perjury. Sir Hugh tells us how he spent this money in opposing Sir George Cartier and his Quebec followers. History tells us that he succeeded so far that Sir George Cartier lost his seat, and his following was reduced to an unprecedented extent, so that but for Sir Hugh's intervention Sir John Macdonald could not have been ousted from office by the slanderers, thieves and purchased members. It is true that Sir Hugh Allan subsequently endeavored to undo the mischief by contributing the smaller sum of $117,000 to the Conservative election fund for the Province of Quebec, but it was too late to counteract the hostile influence which he had evoked as he describes. It is also true that he subscribed $45,000 for the Ontario fund, an amount less than was proved in the election courts to have been spent by two or three Reformers, and which had little effect against Reform "Big Pushes" and other human devices.

It is now well known that Mr. Huntington's slanderous statements that foreigners had bought the charter, that their money was used to corrupt the electorate, or indeed that a charter was sold at all, was only the first clumsy attempt at fiction of one who has since turned out to be a full fledged romancer, and who then shrank pusilanimously from attempting to substantiate his inventions. The Guide itself shows that Sir Hugh Allan, who was only one of thirteen directors, without even the presidency, might well have other than corrupt motives for sustaining the Government, by quoting his words: "I was also interested as being largely interested in the carrying trade, and I saw that my interest was to support the present Government in their position." Sir Hugh had the foresight to see that the policy of the Macdonald Administration would build up the Montreal shipping interest, in which he had so great a stake, and that the so-called "Reformers" would greatly delay this advantage, as in truth they did when by falsehood and corruption they crept into power. Why, nearly a third of their Cabinet was purchased, just as they bought the letter thief Norris. Even their Speaker was hired as he sat in the chair of the House of Commons.

But history will do justice to these men.

STEAM WHISTLES.

The letter of Mr. A. White on the subject of steam whistles will be read with satisfaction as showing the readiness of himself and his company to meet the reasonable wishes of the the public. His suggestion that they are willing to accept a by-law similar to that of the City of Toronto, prohibiting all steam whistles within the municipal limits, can hardly be consider unfair, as the railway companies cannot be expected to submit cheerfully to restrictions not imposed upon others.

The unpleasant railway whistling, which has certainly greatly increased of late, till it has exhausted the patience of those who by their proximity are most exposed to it, is caused by various motives. In the first place it is used as a warning to people crossing the lines in vehicles or on foot, the object of course being to avoid fatal accidents. This probably could with advantage be superseded by the ringing of the engine bell, which, at the slow pace to which trains are restricted within the town limits, should give ample warning, better in fact than the whistle, for by its continuons sound it shows where the cars are approaching or receding from the hearer. Then there are such signals to the train hands as "down breaks," and we cannot say whether an efficient substitute can be readily adopted. At all events for these two objects whistling should not be absolutely prohibited in cases of emergency, especially when life is at stake.

But whistling for these reasons, might have been endured with equanimity, were it not for the recent increase of nuisance due to other causes. One of these is that owing to the work that has been effected on both lines construction trains have been frequent, and the whistle has been used as a call and to give notice of their departure. Another reason of the increased whistling is due to the fact that a considerable amount of through freight has been diverted through Peterborough, thus augmenting the number of trains and incressing the necessity for shunting, &c. It is to be feared also that some of the whistling, far from being necessary, is on some occasions merely used for private signals and calls by the train hands, if not even sometimes indulged in from mere bravado.

From the manner in which the complaints made have now been recognised by Mr. White for the Grand Trunk Railway Company, we may hope that the cause for them will now soon be removed or greatly abated.

The Montreal Fete.

MONTREAL, June 25.—The great festival of St. Jean Baptiste yesterday was sadly marred by the heavy down pour of rain. Despite the frequent showers, however, the procession turned out in greater strength than was ever known before. Immense crowds of visitors, mostly French Canadians, thronged the streets and the stores and houses were one mass of gay bunting. On the exhibition grounds elaborate preparations had been made. About 11.30 Lieutenant-Governor Robitaille arrived in a carriage with Mrs. Robitaille, Capt. Sheppard, A.D.C., and his worship Mayor Beaudry, A salute was fired. The President of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, the Hon T. J. J. Loranger, and invited guests soon followed, after which Mgr. Fabre arrived, a new salute being fired. This was followed by renewed cheers. Corps of Papal Zouaves closely followed, headed by the Fall River brass band. Sergeant-Major Prendergast commanded the Zouaves, who carried before them their old papal flag. Most of the amusements however and the grand procession have been postponed until to-day, when the greatest procession of the celebration week takes place.

A Gypsey's Bride.

For some time past there has been a number of tinkers camped out at Cote St. Paul, and not long since a strapping young Scotch gypsey named Williamson, who is one of the tribe, solicited the aid of the police, pouring into the ear of Detective Cullen a piteous tale to the following effect: While driving through a certain street, not a hundred miles from Chabolliez square, one day some little time ago, Williamson was attracted by the bonnie face of a Scotch lassie, and he managed to scrape up an acquaintance with her immediately, and before two weeks passed he succeeded in taking her out as his wife to where the 'black tents' stood on the green. The rest of the community had a big time and made a big noise, welcoming the newly married pair. The bride seemed much pleased with her new life and new quarters for about a week; then she cleared out, leaving her husband disconsolate indeed. Hence his application to the police. By the aid of the detectives the missing bride was found; but although the husband and all the tribe endeavoured to persuade her to return, she says she will not, and so matters stand.

THE CLOSING EXERCISES

OF THE SCHOLASTIC YEAR OF THE CONGREGATION DE NOTRE DAME.

A Choice Programme by the Pupils—Presentation of Prizes to the Pupils of the Separate and Select Schools—Names of the Prize Winners.

The closing exercises of the scholastic year of the Congregation de Notre Dame took place on the afternoon of Friday last. His Lordship Bishop Jamot presided at the exercises, and a number of parents and friends of the pupils were present.

An excellent programme had been prepared and was admirably carried out by the pupils. The first number was a Grand March, Misses A. Henry and B. Cowie presiding at the piano, and Miss A. Delaney at the organ. This was followed by a song and chorus, "We Come with Joy to Greet You," the solos being sung by Misses A. Dunn and M. Tierney. Miss A. Redmond sang "Dreaming of Home and Mother." This young lady possesses a good voice and sang very nicely. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss E. Crummey, a young girl of eleven years of age. A piano solo, "Semiramis de Rossini," by Miss A. Delaney followed. Miss Delaney's ability as a pianiste is so well known that comment on her performance is unnecessary. The next event on the programme, though of a different character, was a very pleasant one. It was the distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Separate School. Instrumental music "Viccolo Galop," by Misses M. Stratton and B. Fairweather, followed, and the music was admirably rendered by these young ladies. "I'll Remember You in my Prayers," was a vocal solo by Miss J. McIlmoyle, accompanied on the guitar by Miss A. Delaney. A company of little ladies each presented His Lordship with a floral offering, at the same time reciting verses expressive of their love for himself and for the school. Those who took part in this were Misses. L. McCarthy, M. A. Lehane, E. Muncaster, A. Wyer, E. Timbers, E. Donegan, M. Garvey, M. McCabe, M. F. Sullivan, May Kelly, P. Gauthier, K. Lynch, J. McIlmoyle and M. O'Sullivan. Miss A. Delaney gave a piano solo, "Love's Young Dream." The prizes were then distributed to those who had won them in the junior course of the Select School. A vocal solo with guitar accompaniment by Miss Delaney followed, and the prizes were distributed to the pupils of the senior course of the Select School, including a gold medal presented by His Lordship Bishop Jamot for proficiency in music and awarded to Miss Annie Delaney. The next number of the programme was a duet composed for the occasion by Miss A. Delaney, "Souvenirs de Mon Convent," which showed that that young lady was proficient in musical composition as well as performing on musical instruments. A song and chorus followed, "Farewell," the solos being sung by Misses M. Tierney, A. Redmond and A. Dunn. An address to his Lordship was read by Miss Annie Dunn, and responded to, and Miss Mary McMulen, a little girl six years of age, also asked His Lordship's blessing. Miss Annie Delaney, who had completed her studies in the school, then came forward and thanked His Lordship for the handsome prize presented by him and awarded to her, and, in bidding farewell to the school, returned thanks to the Lady Superior for the kindness she had received while pursuing her studies. The entertainment, which was an excellent one, was concluded by the singing of the National Anthem.

We subjoin a list of the names of those who were awarded and received prizes.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

SOME remarkable murders have been committed in various parts of the United States by mere children recently, but the latest reported eclipses all others, being the beating to death with a stick by a nine-year-old girl of her sister, aged five, in a North Carolina village.

CHAPTER XX.

Dismissing the carriage at the corner of the square, near which she expected to find Mrs. Mason located in more comfortable lodgings, Regina walked on until she found the building, of which she was in quest, and rang the bell.

The door was opened by a girl apparently half-grown, who stated that Mrs. Mason had rented the basement rooms, and her visitors were admitted through the lower entrance, as a different set of lodgers had the next floor. She ...d to show Regina the way, and knocking ...ement door, the girl suddenly remembered that ...he had seen Mrs. Mason visiting at ... directly opposite.

"...iss, and I will run across and call ...

...at the lower door, and partly ...t of steps leading to the ...aw a figure advancing ...—a tall figure whose ...takable; and as the ...e next house in the ...e bell, Regina stepped for...

A gust of wind then ... the thick brown veil that concealed the ...ance, and showed, for an instant only, the strongly marked yet handsome profile of Olga Neville.

The door opened; her low inaudible question was answered in the affirmative, and Olga was entering, when the skirt of her dress was held by a projecting nail, and in disengaging it she caught a glimpse of the astonished countenance beneath the steps. She paused, leaned over the balustrade, threw up both hands with a warning gesture, then laid her finger on her lips and hurried in, closing the door behind her.

"The lady says Mrs. Mason was there, but left her about a quarter of an hour ago. What name shall I give, when she comes home?"

"Tell her Regina Orme called, and was very sorry she missed seeing her. Say I will try to come again on Sunday afternoon if the weather is good. Who lives in the next house?"

"A family named Eggleston. I hear they sculp and paint for a living. Good-day, Miss. I won't forget to tell the old lady you called."

Walking leisurely homeward, Regina felt sorely perplexed in trying to reconcile Olga's plea of indisposition and her lingering in bed, with this sudden appearance in that distant quarter of the city, and her evident desire to conceal her face, and to secure silence with regard to the casual meeting.

The day, though cold, was very bright, the sky a cloudless gray-blue,—the slanting beams of the sun filling the atmosphere with golddust; and in crossing the square to gain the street beyond, Regina was attracted by a group of children romping along the walk and laughing pleefully.

One, a toddling wee thing, with a scarlet cloak that swept the ground, and a hood of the same warm tint drawn over her curly yellow hair and dimpled round face, had fallen on the walk unheeded by her boisterous companions, and, becoming entangled in the long garment, could not get up away. Pausing to lift the little creature to her feet, and restore the piece of cake that had escaped from the chubby hand Regina stood smiling sympathetically at the sport of the larger children, and wondering whether all those rosy-cheeked "olive branches" clustered around one household altar.

At that moment a heavy hand was passed on her shoulder, and turning she saw at her side a powerful man, thickset in stature, and whose clothing was worn and soiled. Beneath a battered hat drawn suspiciously low, she discerned a swarthy, flushed, saturnine countenance, which had perhaps once been attractive, before the seal of intemperance marred and stained its lineaments. Somewhere she certainly had seen that dark face, and a sensation of vague terror seized her.

"Regina, it is about time you should meet and recognize me.

The voice explained all; she knew the man whom Hannah had met in the churchyard, on the evening of the storm.

She made an effort to shake off his hand, but it closed firmly upon her, and he asked:

"Do you know who I am?"

"Your name is Peleg—and you are a wicked man—an enemy of my mother."

"The same, I do not deny it. But recollect I am also your father."

She stared almost wildly at him, and her face blanched and quivered as she uttered a cry of horror.

"It is false! You are not—you never could have been! You—Oh! never—never!"

So terrible was the thought that she staggered and sank down on an iron seat, covered her face with her hands.

"This comes of separating father and child, and raising you above your proper place in the world; but I have waited as long as I can bear it, and I intend to assert my right. Who do you suppose is you father? Whose child did she say you were?"

"She never told me,—but I kuow,—Oh, God have mercy upon me! You cannot be my father! It would kill me to believe it!"

She shuddered violently, and when he attempted to put his hand on hers, she drew back and cried out almost fiercely:

"Don't touch me! If you dare, I will scream for a policeman."

"Very well, as soon as you please, and when he comes I will explain to him that you are my daughter;—and if necessary will carry you both to the spot where you were born and prove the fact. Do you know where you were born? I guess Minnie did not see fit to tell you that, either. Well—it was in that charity hospital on —— Street, and I can tell you the year and the day of the month. My child, you might at least pity—and not insult your poor unhappy father."

Could it be possible, after all? Her head swam—her heart seemed bursting; her very soul sickened, as she tried to realize all that his assertion implied. What could he expect to accomplish by such a claim, unless he intended and was fully prepared to establish it by irrefragable facts?

"My girl, your mother deserted me before you were born, and has never dared to let you know the truth. Do you think your name is Orme? My dear child, it is untrue,—and I,—Peleg Patterson, am your father."

"No—no! my mother, my beautiful—refined mother never—never could have loved you! Oh! it is too horrible! Go away,—please go away! or I shall go mad."

Born in a hospital,—owning that repulsive countenance there beside her,—as parent!

Heavy cold drops oozed out and glistened on her brow, and she shivered from head to foot, rocking herself to and fro.

Almost desperate as she thought of the mysterious circumstances that seemed to entangle her mother as in some inextricable net,—the girl suddenly started up and exclaimed:

"It is a fraud, a wicked fraud,—or you would never have left me so long in peace. My father was,—must have been—a gentleman,—I know,—I feel it! You are—you—Save me, oh Lord in heaven,—from such a curse as that!"

He grasped her arm and hissed:

"I am poor and obscure, it is true, but Peterson is better than no name at all,—and if you are not my child,—then you have no name. That is all;—take your choice."

Rallying, she forced herself to look steadily at her companion.

"You say that your name is Peleg Peterson;—why did you never come openly to the Parsonage and claim me? I know that my mother was married in that house, by Mr. Hargrove."

"Because I never could find out where you were hid away until my aunt Hannah Hinton told me the week before the great storm. You know the license was burned by lightning, else I would show it to you."

"Proving that you are my mother's legal husband?"

"Certainly,—else what use do you suppose I had for it."

"Oh no! You intended to sell it. Hannah told me so."

"No such thing. Minnie does not want to own me now, and I intended to show the license to the father of the man for whom she deserted you and me. She has followed him to Europe, though she knows he is a married man?"

"It is false! How dare you! You shall not slander her dear name. She is my mother, and God's own angels would go astray as soon as she."

He comprehended the nature with which he had to deal and after a pause, said suddenly:

"Minnie does not deserve such a child, and it is hard that you, my own flesh and blood, refuse to recognize me. Regina, I am desperately poor or I would take you now, forcibly if necessary,—and if Minnie dared deny my claim I would publish the facts in a court of justice. If you can help me a little now I will try to be patient, and leave you where you are, in luxury and peace—at least till I can hear from Minnie, to whom I have written."

"I have very little money, but to-morrow I will send you through the Post Office every cent I possess. How shall I address it?"

He shook his head.

"That would not satisfy me, I want to see you again,—to look at your sweet face. Do you think I do not love my child? Meet me here this time to-morrow."

THE COW IN MIDSUMMER.

On farms where the dairy is an important part of the husbandry, provision is made by sowing soiling crops, to supplement the diminished pasturage in midsummer. Those who keep only the "family cow," or at most two or three cows, find the flow of milk to decrease, and often without any green crop provided for keeping it up. The territory of those who keep but a single cow, is often restricted to a small pasture and a vegetable garden. The garden should be made to supplement the pasture, and this may be done to some extent by securing for the cow much from the garden that usually goes to waste. Every one who has a garden, tries to have an abundance of green peas. After the vines have yielded their last profitable picking, instead of allowing them to remain upon the ground until that is wanted for another crop, feed the vines to the cow while they are still green and succulent. So with sweet corn. When the last ear is plucked from a stock or hill, do not wait until the whole patch or row can be cleared, but pull up the stocks that have been deprived of ears, a few at a time, and feed them while in their best condition. The outer leaves of early cabbages, and the leaves of beets, carrots, and turnips, carefully saved, will make an important item in the succulent food for the cow. If there is a space in the garden, from which an early crop has been removed, and it is not needed for a late garden crop, it should be growing something for the cow. Sweet-corn may be sown thickly in rows for "fodder corn," and afford welcome feed. It is well to have an abundance of cabbage plants of a large late variety, and set them out wherever there is room, and far beyond the needs of the family. An occasional cabbage next winter will be a treat to the cow. Experiments made a dozen years ago with some twenty varieties of the Southern Cow Pea showed incidentally, that, even at the North, if they did not ripen their seeds, they would give an enormous weight of herbage upon a small area. This pea is highly valued for animals in the South, both fresh and as hay, and seems to be worth trying in the Northern localities, as a soiling plant. Where there is room, even a few square yards, it may be well to sow either Hungarian grass, or one of the plants called Millet, for late summer feed for the cow. If the soil is rich, an abundant crop may be cut. Besides summer feed in the garden, if there is room there or elsewhere, it is well to think of Jerusalem Artichokes as a winter treat. It is late now for a large crop, but with the tops, which are highly relished, the tubers, being crisp, succulent and highly nutritious, will be most acceptable as an addition to dry fodder. When one once fairly undertakes to produce the greatest possible amount of cow food from a small area of land, he will be surprised at the results that he obtains, especially those seen in the pail.—American Agriculturalist.

A Bride of Twelve Years of Age.

A despatch from Wheeling, West Virginia, says:—"Monongahela county, known as the Anthens of West Virginia, is agitated over a novel elopement. The families of Wm. Jones and Mrs. Jas. McCormick, a widow, are residents on adjoining farms. The former had a son aged sixteen and the latter a daughter aged twelve. Jones is wealthy and Mrs. McCormick is poor. Young Jones conceived a violent passion for Miss McCormick, which was encouraged by her mother, and arrangements were made for eloping to the nearest town beyond the border of the State into Pennsylvania. The girl first disappeared, and the mother gave it out that she was lost. The neighbourhood turned out to search for her. The boy secured a horse from his father on the pretence of joining in the search. He followed the girl to a pre-arranged hiding-place, and went to Pennsylvania, where they were married.

"They came home the next day with the marriage certificate. The father cut a switch and gave the boy a thrashing. He then sent him away to a military school at St. Albans. The girl's mother instituted a suit again Jones in behalf of her daughter for damages, laying the suit at $5,000, and alleging the alienating of the husband's affection. A license is not required in Pennsylvania for marriage. Jones claims that it is a scheme to mulct him. The girl is pretty, but illiterate. The boy intelligent and popular."

Strawberry Festival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church will hold a strawberry festival in the grounds of the church on Thursday evening, July 3rd, at 7 p.m. Strawberries and cream, cake and other refreshments will be served. Music by the Fire Brigade Band. Admission to the grounds ten cents.

Railway Notes.

A ballast train was put in this morning on the Midland, drawing ballast from the pit between Garden Hill and the Summit, and working between Millbrook and Garden Hill.

The turntable at Havelock, on the Ontario and Quebec railway was used on Saturday evening.

A Journey in Canoes.

The Rev. Thos. Manning and Mr. J. W. Flavelle left for Lindsay this morning. At that town they will be joined by Messrs. W. Flavelle and J R. Dundas, and Mr. R. W. Chambers, of Rochester, and the party will return to Peterborough in canoes. We wish them a pleasant trip.

Don't Forget it.

The public are again reminded of the excursion of the Fire Brigade and Band to Faucher's new summer resort at Wallace's Point, to-morrow, Dominion Day. It will be one of the most enjoyable and pleasing events of the season, and those who attend will not regret it. The celebrated band of the brigade will be on board during the entire day.

About the Worst.

Bicycle accidents are, of course, very numerous. But about the worst one yet reported occurred in the south part of the town. A 'cyclist was going at a rapid rate, when suddenly he beheld a baby carriage in his way, and before he could stop his vehicle, or turn it aside, he ran into the carriage. The unfortunate little one was thrown out, but it was little injured. The escape, however, was a narrow one, and a more frightened party than the mother and the bicyclist could not easily be found.

Championship Cups.

The championship cups to be competed for at Idyl Wild on Dominion Day were on exhibition in Mr. Melville Millar's window to-day. The cups are three in number, for the lacrosse tournament prize, for single sculling and for paddling in single canoes. They are elegant trophies. The lacrosse cup is of the same design as the Brown Championship Cup. It stands two feet high, is elegantly ornamented, and is one of the finest trophies ever brought into Peterborough for such a purpose. The other cups, for the sculling and paddling championships, are really fine, and such as any amateur sculler or paddler might be proud to possess. Mr. Calcutt has given proof of his liberality, and of his desire to encourage sports, by providing such handsome and valuable prizes for competition.

DOMINION DAY.

How Our National Holiday is to be Celebrated in Peterborough.

The citizens of Peterborough appear to have made up their minds to make Dominion Day emphatically a day of sport. The fun begins at 8 o'clock in the morning, when the Cretes and the Young Canadian lacrosse clubs cross sticks for the junior championship of the town. The Silver Star and Maple Leaf base ball clubs will play a match on the grounds near Mr. E. Burnham's at about the same hour. The Peterborough base ball club send a team to Lindsay to play a match with the club of that town, and the Independents (junior lacrosse) go to Norwood to play a match with a junior lacrosse club of that village.

THE LACROSSE MATCH.

The first event announced on the posters takes place at 10.30 o'clock, namely, the lacrosse match between the Peterboroughs and Torontos. We have published the names of the players who will compose the teams, and those who have taken an interest in the lacrosse matches in the Dominion know that the team of the Torontos is a good one. The match will therefore be very interesting, and it is probable that better playing will be seen than was ever witnessed in Peterborough. Play will commence at 10.30 and continue until 12 o'clock. The Grand Stand has been repaired and seats will be reserved for ladies.

ATHLETIC SPORTS.

At 1.30 o'clock, p.m., a long programme of athletic sports will be carried out in the Agricultural Grounds. A large number of entries, the Secretary informs us, have been made, and as the events are open to amateurs only very interesting and exciting contests may be expected.

CONCERT AND FIREWORKS.

At 7.30 o'clock, p.m., a promenade concert will be held in the drill shed, the music for which will be furnished by the City Band. The programme for the celebration in town, which is under the auspices of the Cricket and Boating Clubs, will conclude with a brilliant pyrotechnic display.

FIREMEN'S CELEBRATION.

One of the most pleasant ways of spending the day will be by attending the celebration at Wallace's Point, under the auspices of the Fire Brigade and Band. The steamer Golden-Eye will run three excursions to the Point, at 8 o'clock a.m., and at 1 o'clock and 7 o'clock p.m. A good quadrille band will be on board the boat and furnish music for dancing at the Point. A programme of athletic sports and games will be carried out at the Point. No doubt many will attend this excursion to enjoy the day at the picnic grounds. On the last return trip in the evening of the Golden-Eye there will be a display of fireworks on the boat.

IDYL WILD.

At Idyl Wild there will be a "big day." There will be a lacrosse tournament, for a cup valued at $150, boating races, &c. Steamers will run from different places to these famous picnic grounds, and persons going from Peterborough will leave on the Grand Junction train, either at 7.30 a.m. or 1.30 p.m. The first twelve of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will leave here on the 1.30 train to take part in the tournament.

Our National Holiday.

There are more entries in the 100 yards, one mile, quarter mile, and half mile races than ever before. Don't fail to see them.

To the Ladies.

Don't fail to visit the "Golden Lion" for superb millinery, every table filled with most exquisite designs in Hats, Bonnets, Ostrich Feathers, Ribbons, etc., in every shade and pattern.

Y. M. C. A. Bible Class.

This class will be held to-morrow evening as usual notwithstanding the holiday. The Rev. A. Munro has returned and will conduct the class. A large map of Bible Lands is being secured and will probably be here to-morrow.

A Gift to Capt. Dion.

Mr. Thos. Kelly has presented two Dominion ensigns to Capt. L. Dion, the popular captain of the steamer Golden-Eye. They will be seen floating on the steamer. This is a proof of the Captain's popularity with all who have patronized Mr. Calcutt's line of steamers.

Personal.

Mr. Yarker, of the Toronto branch of the Bank of Montreal, who is well known in Peterborough, has been appointed General Manager of the Federal bank.

The Rev. A. H. Munro returned on Saturday from a visit to Louisville, Ky., and occupied his pulpit in the Baptist Church on Sunday.

Mr. James Howden, who has been seriously ill for a couple of weeks, is, we are pleased to learn, recovering.

A Sad Accident.

On Sunday night Mrs. Hamilton Lackie, of Emily, died from the effects of injuries received by an accident on Wednesday. On that day she was coming into town to consult a physician, as she was in poor health, and just after arriving in town a wheel of the buggy ran off, Mrs. Lackie was thrown out and injured on the head and shoulders. She was taken to the residence of her sister, Mrs. Mahood, but the injuries she had received, together with her frail health, resulted in death on Sunday night. She was taken home and her funeral takes place on Tuesday.

Smith's Market.

Strawberries picked and delivered twice a day. Parties can rely on our berries being equal in quality and flavour to any berry grown in Canada, as the growers, Messrs. Rogers, Sheffield and Mills have spared no pains or expense in getting the finest varieties grown. When delivered they are placed in the cooler and thoroughly freed from the heat, thus making them cool and refreshing. Parties, picnics, etc., supplied in small or large lots to suit at an hour's notice. Cherries will be along in a day or two. Green peas every day, and all other kinds of fruit and green vegetables as rapidly as the season permits. Fresh fish every day.

Fresh Fish.

Bodega.

Arm Broken.

The First Trains.

The first regular passenger trains over the Ontario and Quebec Railway passed over that line between Havelock and Toronto this morning. They were well patronized, the morning express taking a large number of passengers from Norwood. The first car load of goods for Peterborough brought over the line was received this morning by Mr. George Stethem.

Baird's Ministrels.

Baird's Ministrels gave two entertainments here on Saturday in a tent on the corner of George and Charlotte streets, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening. The attendance in the afternoon was not large, but it was better in the evening performance. The company is a large one, and the programme is very entertaining. It is certainly the best troupe of Minstrels that has travelled this way in a long time.

Idyl Wild Sports.

On account of logs at the mouth of the river arrangements have been made by which the Peterborough people wishing to see the great Lacrosse tournament at Idyl Wild on Dominion Day can leave via Grand Junction at 7.30 a.m. and 1.30 p.m. The steamer Whistle-Wing will connect at Keene with both trains, and return in time to connect with the evening train, arriving at Peterborough at 9 a.m. Tickets for round trip, railroad and boat, only 50 cents. Parties leaving here at 1.30 p.m. will reach Idyl Wild at 3. p.m. and remain till 6.30.

A Splendid Change

To buy Millinery and Mantles at greatly reduced prices. W. Fairweather & Co., have resolved to clear out the whole of their stock at sweeping reductions. Besides the regular stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods special lines are worth the notice of all buyers. Good Black Silks at 50, 75 and 90 cents; good Colored Dress Silks at 35, 50 and 75 cents. A splendid variety of fine Black Goods for mourning. Rich Silk Mantles and Pattern Millinery Bonnets, Ostrich Feathers, Flowers and Laces at half price.

The Brown Championship Cup.

The championship cup, presented by Mr. Ed. Brown of the Little Windsor Hotel, to the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, to be competed for by clubs between Toronto and Montreal, is on exhibition in Mr. W. A. Sanderson's window. The cup is really a fine trophy. It stands eighteen inches high. The base is of silver, ornamented with gold, and two silver lacrosse sticks assist in supporting the cup. The cup is gold lined, and on the outside is richly ornamented with gold inlaid. There is a representation on one side of a player on a field catching a ball, and on the other side a space for the inscription. It is surmounted by a player in uniform leaning on a lacrosse. Mr. Brown, by presenting this cup has done much to add to the interest taken in lacrosse, and the players, as well as those who take an interest in the national game, will feel gratified to him for it. The rules will be prepared at once, and the Peterborough Club will make an effort to have the Brown championship cup finally come into their possession, as did the Gildersleeve cup.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating thar he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

POLICE COURT.

ONLY ONE CHANCE.

MONDAY, June 30.—John Harvey appeared in a charge preferred against him of having been drunk. He was before the Court on the same charge last week, but he is a good talker and his eloquence prevailed to such an extent that he was allowed to go. He tried hard to pay the penalty in talk again, but he did not succeed, and he was compelled to purchase his liberty by paying $2 in Court.

WINDOW BREAKING.

Michael Tougher, small boy, was charged by Mrs. Coursey with having broken glass in a window of her house. The evidence soon showed that he had broken one light, and that not intentionally. His mother paid for it and he was discharged.

Bass' English Ale.

It must be strictly understood that no one will be admitted inside the ring except the officials of the sports. No delay will be made if competitors are not ready at the start.

WHERE MEN GATHER TO BUY.

Be sure they're sure to get just what suits them. It's only a test, we know, but the number of young men drawn to favour us by a common interest shows that our stuffs, clothing, ways and prices are endorsed by enough buyers of Men's and Youth's clothing to keep our House in the first place in the Retail Clothing Trade of Peterborough. It'd be queer if this majority in our favour were not satisfied. If not already in, you'd better join the crowd, hadn't you? It is often a problem with mothers what to do for Clothing for the Boy. This style "We had Last Year," and the other "He Does not Look well In." Among our assortment of Ready Mades something to please will surely strike you—and, if we hav'n't it, we'll make it.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating thar he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

AROUND AND ABOUT US.

DOMINION DAY DOINGS IN DIFFERENT PLACES NEAR TOWN.

The Firemen's Excursion to Wallace's Point—The Day at Idyl Wild—Base Ball at Lindsay and Lacrosse at Norwood.

Many persons took advantage of the holiday on Tuesday to take a trip out of town. Quite a number availed themselves of the cheap rates on the railways to visit Toronto and see the semi-centennial celebration, besides which there were several local excursions.

THE FIREMEN'S EXCURSION.

At about 8 o'clock the fine music of the Fire Brigade Band was heard on the street, which gave notice that the first excursion party was about to leave on the steamer Golden-Eye for Wallace's Point, Mr. Faucher's summer resort. The firemen, headed by the band, marched through the streets and to the wharf, and there was a good number on the boat on her first trip down. The steamer made a second trip to the Point at one o'clock, when she carried a still larger number, and at seven o'clock she made the third trip to the Point. These excursions were run under the auspices of the Fire Brigade and Band, and, as far as attendance was concerned, was fairly successful. At the Point the people enjoyed themselves in usual picnic style, dancing, boating, etc. An exhibition of club swinging was given by Jimmy Hannah, and was well appreciated. The only thing that occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion was a disturbance caused by some men who had imbibed too freely. When the Golden-Eye returned at six o'clock, quite a number came home on it, but the steamer did not arrive at her wharf on the last return trip until about one o'clock a.m.

IDYL WILD.

At Idyl Wild there was a large number of people from Hastings, Norwood, Keene, Peterborough and other places. The Peterborough lacrosse club team went down in the afternoon via the Grand Junction train to Keene and the steamer Whistle-Wing across the lake. The Norwood and Hastings lacrosse clubs played a match during the day, and at the conclusion the Norwoods claimed the cup. When the Whistle-Wing arrived the captain of the Peterborough team stated their willingness to play for the cup, but as no club offered to compete with them they claimed that they should be credited with having won it once, which was allowed. The Peterboroughs played an exhibition match, which was a very good one. There were no entries for the boat races, although the cups (and beauties they were) were on the grounds as advertised. An orchestra furnished music in the dancing hall during the day, and the amusement was thoroughly enjoyed. The Peterborough and Keene excursionists returned on the Whistle-Wing and arrived at Keene at about 8 o'clock, and the Peterborough party came home on the Grand Junction evening train, apparently all well pleased with their trip.

LACROSSE AT NORWOOD.

The Independents, a junior lacrosse club of the town, went to Norwood and played a match with the Tuscaroras, a junior club of that village. The teams were composed as follows:—

| Independents. | | Tuscororas. |
|---|---|---|
| J. Phelan | Goal | J. Kempt |
| J. McDonald | Point | W. Douglas |
| C. Robinson | Cover Point | F. Stephenson |
| J. Wilson | Defence Field | T. Searight |
| F. Goyette | " " | R. Phillips |
| T. Meagher | " " | W. Ackerman |
| G. Martin | Centre Field | D. Rahall |
| W. Kelly | Home Field | J. McKelvie |
| J. Allen | " " | C. Brennan |
| F. Trainer | " " | H. Pearse |
| O. Watson | 2nd Home | W. Hendron |
| F. McNaughton | 1st Home | F. Reynolds |
| J. Shevlin | Field Captain | F. O. Brennan |
| W. McNamara | Umpire | W. Stephenson |

A. McPhaul acted as referee. The first game was won by the Tuscaroras in 40 minutes, W. Hendron putting the ball through. The second game lasted 32 minutes, and Watson secured it for the Independents. The third game the Independents won in 20 minutes, Trainer making the winning shot, and the same team also won the fourth game in 45 minutes, McNaughton putting the ball through. The boys report that the Norwood boys acted "like gentlemen," and they enjoyed their trip splendidly.

BASE BALL AT LINDSAY.

A team of the Peterborough Base Ball Club went to Lindsay and played a match with the club of that town. Mr. J. G. Macdonald acted as referee. The Lindsay Club won the match by 42 runs to 6. The Peterborough boys were met at the station by a committee of the Lindsay Club and taken to the Daly House. They were well pleased with their trip, with the exception, of course, of the result of the match, but the treatment they met with from the Lindsay boys did much to make them forget their defeat.

REVIEWS.

WAGES AND TARIFFS.—We have received a pamphlet on "Wages and Tariffs," being an address delivered before the Brooklyn Revenue Reform Club, by E. J. Donnell, and published by the Wilcox & O'Donnell Co., of William Street, New York. It is a little untrue in discussing our own tariff, in consequence of the wide difference of the circumstances in the States where they aim at raising a large revenue to meet their war expenditure. The propriety of doing this is a question quite apart from the advantage of protection or free trade. Their large inland revenue and their taxation of raw materials, has nothing to do with protection, or rather is the very reverse of protection. Mr. Donnell errs in several ways through not appreciating this distinction; for instance he ascribes the depression of ship building in the States to protection, though it is really due to to the want of protection for that industry. He describes forcibly the strong protective measures formerly adopted by Great Britain, though he fails to see that by this means our mother country built up its industries, till it could pretend to offer pretended free admission to foreign manufactures which did not come. He owns that it was the Southerners who formerly caused the reduction of the tariff, but he fails to see that protection has built up manufactures in the Southern States, till they are now by no means so much in favor of free trade. One maxim he quotes as supporting his views: "All taxes on raw materials are laws in favor of foreign, and opposed to home industry," will be readily endorsed by protectionists.

PICTURESQUE CANADA—The recently delivered parts of Picturesque Canada, Nos. 31 and 32 are devoted to New Brunswick. The busy ports and shipping, the rich forests, the grand rivers with their falls and rapids, the picturesque scenery, and the sporting life of the Province are all illustrated in the numerous and beautiful engravings. The letter press contains the usual graphic descriptions of the country interwoven with its history. Here again we read of the early French settlers, the noblesse priests and the hardy fishermen from Normandy and Brittany. Again at a late date we find the U. E. Loyalists making their new homes under the old flag, and forming a most valuable accession to the population. In more modern times we learn that progress is being made in many directions, and that New Brunswick will hold its own in the friendly competition between the different provinces of our wide Dominion.

DOMINION DAY.

THE celebration of our national festival—the anniversary of the day that linked together the scattered provinces of British North America into the Dominion of Canada, has just been appropriately observed, and should not be allowed to pass without a word of comment.

Our beloved Dominion is still young, but we have every reason to be satisfied with it progress. Fortunately, for the greater portion of the time since Confederation, Canada has been under the administration of those who brought about and carried out the establishment of the Dominion. As Bismarck is regarded as the founder of the Empire of Germany and Cavour as the founder of the Kingdom of Italy though the valuable assistance of others is not ignored, so History will regard Macdonald as the founder of the Dominion of Canada. He was ably aided by his colleagues and even by political opponents, for the late Hon. George Brown, whatever his faults had not the petty spirit which distinguishes his successors in the leadership of the Reform party and in the control of their chief organ. But with due credit to those who thus aided him, it is Sir John A. Macdonald who will have the chief glory of founding and consolidating our Dominion. It is for this reason that the self-styled Reformers have such an antipathy to Canada, not openly avowed, but manifested in all sorts of petty ways at every possible opportunity. For this they supported the cause of the manufacturers, the machanics, the railways of other countries against those of Canada—for this declare that the central authorities act unconstitutionally, and when shown that the constitution has been strictly observed they clamour for its amendment—for this they foster sectional feelings and stir up each Province in turn to regard the Dominion as a foreign power—for this they declare that Confederation is a failure and do their utmost to make it so. They have failed in their efforts.

Under the able administration of the founders and friends of the Dominion of Canada, its progress has been great. A sensible fiscal policy is building up our home industries, is enlarging the home market for our farmers and augmenting interprovincial trade. A judicious but vigorous railway policy is linking together our provinces, and combinad with a liberal land policy is rapidly peopling our great western prairies. And all this is being done without the people being so sensibly burdened, as in the short interregnum of deficits and stagnation. Our progress was impeded for a time, but having recovered from this check, is now proceeding with accelerated rapidity.

This anniversary sees the Dominion of Canada flourishing and prosperous, and with the brightest prospects for the future, if its people are true to themselves, and worthily fulfil their destiny.

THE CANADIAN CONSTITUTION.

AN important contribution to the discussion on the limit of jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada and the Legislatures of the Provinces respectively, has been made by Mr. J. Travis, L.L.B., of the New Brunswick Bar, a writer of repute on legal subjects. He has published at St. John, N.B., "A Law Treatise on the Constitutional Powers of Parliament, and of the Local Legislatures under the British North America Act of 1867." Our author handles the subject fearlessly and vigorously, not hesitating to criticise the opinions and decisions of politicians and of judges, even including our highest Court of Appeal, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He draws very clear and plainly expressed conclusions as to where the line is to be drawn in determining the question of the validity of legislation by Parliament or the Legislatures. This he does with apparently absolute impartiality, condemning alike those who would unduly strain and exaggerate the powers of the Dominion on the one hand and of the Provinces on the other. Incidentally, he brushes away the sophistries of those who have confounded judicial decisions as to proprietory rights with the determination of legislative jurisdiction, as in the Mercer escheat case.

Mr. Travis first considers, fully and carefully, our written constitution, the B. N. A. Act of 1867, especially sections 91 and 92, with their lists of matters with the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada and the Provincial Legislatures respectively. He dwells particularly upon the explanatory clauses at the beginning and the end of Section 91, as having been frequently neglected, misquoted or misunderstood, though in them is really to be found the clue in cases where the construction of the Act is doubtful.

He proceeds to review in very great detail the judgments of the courts in such cases, especially those of the Supreme Court of Canada and of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. In discussing the decisions of the Provincial Courts, he confines his attention almost wholly, as is natural, to those of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, promising, however, to take up hereafter the similar cases in the other Provinces of Canada.

In his thorough examination of these cases he condemns without hesitation, and for reasons which he puts very plainly, the decisions of these courts and the judgments of individual judges, when he finds them to be erroneous. He shows equally clearly why he considers that the right tests have been applied in the great majority of decisions which he holds to have been well founded.

The tests to be applied in the consideration of the validity of a Provincial Act are :—

First—Does it affect some matter enumerated in Section 92? If not it is invalid.

Second—If it does affect some matter included in section 92, is the matter also covered by the matters enumerated in section 91? for if so, in case of conflict, it is over-ridden by an Act of the Parliament of Canada ; though so far as not in conflict with the Dominion Act the Provincial Act is valid if within the subjects enumerated in section 92.

In considering the validity of a Dominion Act the test is :—

Is it legislation for the peace, order and good government of Canada not included in the matters enumerated in section 92? and if it affects some matter enumerated in section 92, is it bona fide legislation on one of the matters enumerated in section 91.

In the concluding portion of his treatise Mr. Travis attacks the judgment delivered by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the cases of Dobie v. The Temporalities Board, and Russell v. The Queen. He held that they err, and would improperly enlarge the powers of the Parliament of Canada by laying down the rule that if an act would be ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature, it would necessarily be intra vires of the Dominion Parliament. It is obvious that he is correct in asserting that this would enlarge the powers of the Central Parliament in a manner never contemplated in the B. N. A. Act. For instance, as neither the Quebec nor the Ontario Legislatures could pass an act affecting both Provinces, under such a rule the Canadian Parliament would only have to couple them in some Act, on a matter without its jurisdiction, to make its legislation valid, a manifest absurdity.

As Mr. Travis does not shrink from criticising the highest authorities, he cannot object to being criticised himself. We would venture to suggest that in dealing with these last two cases he does not touch upon a difficulty which is of some importance. In the case of an Act passed by the United Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, it may be impossible for either Province to deal with the matter without affecting the other Province, which clearly would be without its jurisdiction. For the Dominion Parliament to act in such a case certainly could not be fairly described as including two Provinces in the measure in order by a subterfuge to usurp jurisdiction which should be Provincial. If the Dominion Parliament could not deal with such a case what power could? Would not legislation by both Provinces and then by the Dominion be the solution?

While criticising we would suggest that in a second edition a full index would be a valuable addition. There are a few trivial and hardly dignified expressions that might be removed, and in some instances inverted and rather cumbrous sentences mar the generally lucid exposition of his meaning.

This work should be read by all who have to deal with such matters, or who desire to master the difficulties connected with the interpretation of our written constitution. It is a subject of far-reaching importance, and this contribution to the elucidation of the subject might enlighten many who discuss the subject with very little knowledge.

BREACHES OF TRUTH.

Mr. Blake is still uttering at the Reform picnics, either the nonsense if it arises from ignorance, or the falsehood if it springs from malice, that the poor man is being taxed more heavily for his clothing than the rich man. If a poor man buys Canadian made woollens and cottons he is no more taxed by the duties on imported woollens and cottons that a kilted Highlander would be taxed by a duty on boots and breeches.

Bismark in The Reichstag.

BERLIN, June 27.—In discussing the steamship subsidy scheme in the Reichstag yesterday Bismarck expressed regret that a portion of the House did not place the necessary confidence in him. It was not a question now of pursuing a Colonial policy by subvention and protection, nor of entering upon a utopian scheme of founding new provinces, but Germany could not withhold protection from Germans abroad where it was demanded. Refusal to grant such protection would be equivalent to a declaration of insolvency, and Germany could not afford to assume such a position. Bismarck reminded the House that some time ago an outbreak and second war with France were generally expected, and that the inclination therefor was excited everywhere. Nevertheless members must bear witness that he did not allow it to come to pass. The Governments of France since 1870 had maintained confidence in Germany. Germany's relations with France were as confidential and amicable as wtd any other country. There existed complete trust in the reciprocial treatment and in the mutual honor of both.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

INSIDIOUS ATTACKS.

"This result is one for general congratulation, showing that the credit of this country has now grown to a strength to enable it to dispose of the insidious attacks which it has of late had unquestionably to encounter."—Montreal Shareholder (Indep.).

A CANTING GANG.

"We ask in all seriousness what the business men, what the workingmen think of the canting gang who, masked behind the Globe, are doing their best to discredit this country. For years they have been prophesying falsely, imploring heaven to send a hurricane."—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

A GLOBE ABSURDITY.

It is absured for the Globe to repeat the silly charge that Sir John Macdonald has "well-known inclinations towards annexation." His inclinations are not well-known to be towards anything of the kind. There is probably no man in Canada who is more attached to the motherland than Sir John Macdonald.—Toronto Telegram. (Indep.)

ONLY TO KEEP IT DOWN.

If this be to be vile we can only say that we are prepared to be still more vile. We have too great faith in Canada to believe that it is necessary to lie in order to keep up her credit.—Toronto Globe (Reform)

AN OLD STORY.

The Reform party has a history, but we reiterate that it has not a policy.—Toronto News (Indep.).

INIMICAL TO CANADA.

Nothing can be more unfair than the course taken by the Opposition press on the question of reciprocity. That course is clearly inimical to Canadian interests, and is obviously taken to subserve the interests of the political party opposed to the Government.—Journal of Commerce, (Indep.)

CARTWRIGHT AND EDGAR.

The plea has been set up that as the representation of a constituency is a matter which affects only the constituency itself, the people in it have a right to dispose as they will of their own. We deny that assumption! The constituency owes a duty to the Dominion at large and that is to express its opinion at the polls, and to send to parliament that candidate whose favour wins the majority approval. Let us suppose that this principle of a compromise were applied to every constituency, what would be the result?- Ottawa Free Press (Ref.)

A "LEADING" JOURNAL.

There was a time when the Globe would have led public opinion on such a subject. But that time has gone, and instead of the Globe leading public opinion, it is now usually found at the tail end of the procession with its ears pointing forward and its tail between its legs, the picture of hesitancy and despair.—Toronto Telegram (Indep).

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE SAVED ARMY.—An attack was made in force by the Saved Army upon Keene on Sunday afternoon and evening. Lieut. Ed. Webb was in command, Lieut. Rush having to leave to attend the death bed of her father in Trenton. Lieut. Ada Brown took the vacant place as second in command. The first services were held in the Town Hall at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when Mr. K. Mark gave the Bible reading and four left the ranks of the enemy forthwith. There were over three hundred present, who displayed great interest, but in spite of the manifest excitement, the proceedings were very orderly. There was a second service at the Town Hall in the evening at 7 o'clock when Lieut. Webb gave the Bible reading: The Hall was packed, though it holds about 400, and at least a hundred were unable to obtain admittance having to content themselves with a glimpse through the door and windows.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—On Sunday evening the Rev. Francis Andrews gave a review of the Sabbath School lesson for the past quarter in the Presbyterian Church.

METHODIST CHURCH.—The Rev. John Tozeland, has returned from the conference at Napanee, preached in the Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon. He announced that on two from that day there would be both morning and evening service in the church.

SCHOOL FESTIVAL.—On Tuesday evening June 26th, Miss Spence, Missionary Teacher, conducted the closing school festival at the Hiawatha mission. The Rev. T. Woolsey was in the chair, and delivered the opening address. There were recitations, singing, &c., which were much enjoyed by those preseut, especially the "motion songs" by the children.

LINDSAY.

A FINE CALF.—Mr. David Hay, near Dunsford, has purchased from Mr. Rankin of Wyebridge, a well-known breeder, a very fine thoroughbred bull calf three weeks old. The calf weighing 115 lbs. when only three days old, and is now a very promising youngster. It is of a dark red with white. Mr. Hay's enterprise is commendable. South Verulam should have more fine cattle, and ahis is the way to have it.

ACCIDENT.—What might have been a very serious accident happened to an eight-year old son of Mr. Wm. Skitch, carriage-maker, one day last week. The little fellow, it appears, was running, when he tripped and fell, the corner of his left eye coming in contact with the end of a scantling, and inflicting a ragged gash about three quarters of an inch long extending along the eye-brow. Had the wound occurred a fraction lower the boy's eye must have been destroyed.—Post.

A Large Contract.

It is stated on the north Pacific coast that the Pine Manufacturers' Association, with headquarters at San Francisco, which controls all the large mills in the Puget Sound region, has made a contract to saw and deliver 15,000,000 feet of lumber at South American points, the stock to be cut to order. The different mills in the association share in this contract. It will be a slight relief to the dullness prevailing at Puget Sound mills, and take a quantity of lumber from the overcrowded San Francisco market. The method of combination pursued by the Pacific coast lumbermen has a tendency towards pushing out for new markets as avenus of relief; for the two associations are bound to keep up the market price at San Francisco if they have to dump their surplus in foreign ports.—Northwestern Lumberman.

RAISING SEED.

We ask why we do not encourage people to raise their own seeds, instead of buying them every year. Seed-raising is an art, and requires more care than the average farmer can afford to give to it. Seedsmen have their seeds raised by men who make a business of it, who grow but one variety of a kind, and avoid all chance of 'mixing' or crossing, One who has a garden can hardly be persuaded to select his first ripened tomatoes or Lima beans for seed; he wishes these for the table. Unless a vegetable can be kept up to its best condition it will deteriorate. Take tomatoes for instance; the plant should be raised expressly for seed. As soon as they come into bearing, every plant that does not have fruit quite up to the best of its kind in form and productiveness, is to be pulled up, and all malformed fruits on those that are left, are cut away. Then only the earliest clusters are allowed to ripen, those which set late are cut off, and the whole strength of the plant directed to ripening the first fruit that is set. Take squashes for another example, and it is the same with melons, cucumbers, and of all the family. Few who have gardens content themselves with a single variety of squash. They are few plants so likely to mix, through the agency of bees. We know of a case in which the Hubbard Squash had been grown in the same garden with other squashes for several years, and the seed was yearly saved and planted. At the time we saw the squashes, they were mostly yellow, and instead of the pointed end, so characteristic of the Hubbard, many of them had the broad, flat, blossom end belonging to other kinds; indeed there was not a typical Hubbard in the lot. If seeds are to be raised, that should be the leading object for which the plants are grown. It is poor economy to sow seeds of doubtful purity in order to avoid a small outlay for those of good quality.—American Agriculturalist.

BURNING DOWN TREES.

In the Southern States, especially Florida, the pine trees are usually burned down when clearing the land. This practice could often be advantageously followed at the North. A hole about twenty inches deep and two and a half feet square is dug on the leaning side of the tree, so that when it falls the opposite roots if any remain unburned will be pulled out. The lower part of the trunk thus exposed is struck a few times with the axe, and left a short time for the pitch to exude. A fire is kindled in the hole. Trees ten inches in diameter are burned off and the roots burned out below the plough line in twenty to thirty hours. A more expeditious way is also given. A hole is dug as before described, also removing eight or ten inches of the earth from the opposite side. With an inch and a half or two inch augur, a hole is bored through the tree at an angle of 45 degrees. For this purpose a ship augur is used, or a long shank may be welded to a common one. The hole thus bored acts as a chimney, and soon not only the side of the tree is on fire, but the chimney part as well. The tree is burned down in less than one-third of the time required by the old method. A strong man can bore nearly fifty of these holes in a day. Stumps are removed in the same manner, and if dry, in a considerably shorter time than trees.—American Agriculturalist.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you own at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25 cts.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."

Sensible Maxims

Never be idle. If your mind cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live, (misfortune excepted) within your income. Do business only with men that have one price, any man that will ask you 50cts. and take 40cts. will cheat you or your neighbour. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during tne day. Make no haste to be rich. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it, and when you want value for your money go to KELLYS. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow unless you cannot possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. Read the above maxims at least once a week.

RAILWAY MATTERS AGAIN BEFORE THE MUNICIPAL FATHERS.

Brock Street Junction and Yelland's Siding—The Mechanics' Institute—Fire Protection in No. 4—The Court House Park—Miscellaneous.

At 8 o'clock on Monday night there was not a quorum of the members of the Town Council present. The Mayor therefore announced the meeting adjourned until Wednesday. At 8.15 o'clock, however, several more members having come in, the Mayor again took the chair.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

A deputation from the Mechanics' Institute was introduced.

Mr. POUSSETTE said that it had been the custom of the Council to grant $100 to the Institute. Last year they asked for an increase, because the institute was larger, and they wished to keep the fees low. They therefore asked the Council to increase this grant to $200.

YELLAND'S SIDING AGAIN.

Councillor DOUGLAS moved, seconded by Councillor GREEN,—That the petition of Thos. Bradburn and others be granted.

Councillor MILLAR said that the motion was to prevent Mr. Yelland from getting his siding, and he would oppose it.

Councillor DOUGLAS said the owners of the property on the street were the best judges of whether their property would be injured.

Councillor GREEN supported the motion.

The MAYOR said that the siding would be a benefit to the public as well as to the railway. They should not put a stone wall around their lots.

Councillor YENLAND said that the siding would not cross Murray or McDonnell streets, and he owned the property on which the siding would run. The By-law provided for the payment of property owners for any damage done to their property.

Councillor DOUGLAS said that the Council, in passing other By-laws granting permision to put in sidings, had provided for the payment of property owners for damage done to their property. It came with bad grace from the Mayor to talk of putting stone walls around half-acre lots as he had diverted the line of the Midland Railway from its proper course past his lot to Bethune lot.

The MAYOR said he would not reply to that remark. It was absurd. He was not an engineer and did not locate the railway.

Councillor MILLAR moved in amendment, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That a By-law to repeal By-laws 469 and 470 be now read a first time.

Councillor MILLAR's amendment was carried on the following division:—

YEAS.—Councillors Davidson, Allen, Kelly, Millar, Rutherford, Menzies, Kendry, Hartley and the Mayor.

NAYS.—Councillors Green and Douglas.

The By-law was read a first time, and the Council went into Committee of the Whole on its second reading. Councillor Hartley in the chair. The By-law repealed By-laws granting the Grand Trunk Railway permission to put in a siding on Bethune street, and granted the same permission to William Yelland. The By-law provided for the appointment of arbitrators to determine the amount of damage done to property. The Committee rose, after considerable discussion, and reported the By-law read a second time with a slight amendment. The By-law was read a third time.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor Douglas,—That the Street Inspector have the front of Mr. Lund's store properly planked,—Carried.

THE BROCK STREET JUNCTION.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor KELLY.—That whereas the claim of Mr. Kingan for damage done to his property on Bethune street, by the construction of the "Missing Link," was referred by consent to arbitration, and such arbitration has been held and an unanimous award made, it is resolved that this Council instruct the Clerk, and he is hereby instructed to notify J. Hickson, Esq., President of the Midland Railway Company and Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, that if the amount of the award so made is not paid to Mr. Kingan on or before 31st July next, the Council will have the rails connecting the Missing Link with the line to Lakefield taken up out of the way and will not permit them to be laid down again.

The MAYOR said that the award had not been lifted, and the railway had received no notice of the result of the arbitration.

Mr. R. KINGAN was heard and argued that the matter was one with which the town should deal, as the offence was committed in the street. He read a letter from the solicitor of the Grand Trunk stating that he would not agree to pay $1,000 for damage done to his property and would not pay the costs of the arbitration. The solicitor offered $400 or $500 to settle the matter in full.

The MAYOR—Did you write saying that you would take $1,000, or did your solicitor suggest that they offer it?

Mr. KINGAN said he did not offer to accept it. This resolution was to bring the railway to the point, and cause them to decide what they would do.

Councillor KENDRY said that Mr. Kingan should be protected. This matter had been before the Council for a year and a half, and should now be dealt with.

The MAYOR said that the motion, if adopted, would make the Council a laughing stock. If Mr. Kingan would authorize him to-night to accept $1,000 to settle the matter, he would guarantee to get it for him. Mr. Bell's repudiation of the agreement did not amount to anything.

Councillor YELLAND said that the best way out of the difficulty was for Mr. Kingan to say what he would take.

Councillor KELLY thought it would be better to modify the resolution regarding the taking up of the rails.

The MAYOR ruled the motion out of order because it proposed to do something that they could not do.

The resolution was amended so that the concluding part after "31st July" read as follows: "The Council request the Grand Trunk Railway Company to take up the rails connecting the Missing Link with the line to Lakefield, and will not permit them to be laid down again until arranged."

The motion was carried on the following division:—

YEAS—Councillors Davidson, Allen, Kelly, Green, Millar, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Kendry and Hartley.

NAYS—Councillor Menzies and the Mayor.

CHARITY.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor GREEN,—That the ladies of the Home be requested to send Willie Manning to the hospital for sick children in Toronto, and that the Council make such grants from time to time as the ladies of the Home may deem necessary for his maintenance.—Carried.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That the request of Mr. Denne for a hydrant be granted.

Councillor DAVIDSON said they should present a petition in the usual way.

Councillor MENZIES moved that a tank be erected on that part of George street, north of Smith street, as asked for by Mr. Denne and others.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved that the matter be referred to the Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

Mr. POUSSETTE said that at the north end of George street there was no protection from fire, and the people were entitled to some protection. It would be more economical to put in a hydrant than it would be to build a tank.

Mr. DENNE said that a house there had been burned and nothing could be done to save it, as there was no water near enough. They were assisting to support the fire department, and received no benefit from it, which was not fair.

The matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

SIDEWALK WANTED.

Councillor KELLY moved, seconded by Councillor GREEN,—That a three plank sidewalk be laid on Downie street.—Referred to Street and Bridge Committee.

RAILWAY WHISTLES.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS,—That the Clerk be authorized to obtain from Toronto a By-law passed by the Council of that city to prevent railway abuses.—Carried.

SURVEYING WATER STREET.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor ALLEN,—That the resolution authorizing the Town Engineer to survey Water street, from Sherbrooke to Wolfe street, be referred to Messrs. Rogers & Denison, and that they be authorized to do it.—Carried.

COURT HOUSE PARK.

Councillor MILLAR asked whether anything had been done, or whether anything was required to be done, in regard to opening the Court House Park.

The Mayor explained the action of the County Council.

Councillor MILLAR moved, seconded by Councillor HARTLEY,—That the standing joint committee of this Council be appointed to confer with the special committee of the County Council with a view to the placing of the Court House Park and old burying ground at the disposal of the public, under the management of a Park Commission to be instituted for that purpose.—Carried.

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said there were complaints among the merchants about men peddling tea.

Councillor MENZIES,—And books.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said that it was time that Mr. Beavis put a stop to this. He also said that the billiard rooms were not closed at 7 o'clock on Saturday nights, as required by law.

Mr. BEAVIS said that the man to whom Councillor Rutherford referred did not peddle tea in the town, and that he visited the billiard rooms to see that they were closed.

A communication from the secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners, informing the Council of the amount ($7,290) required to pay interest on debentures.—Finance Committee.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the new watering cart be continued at work until the next meeting of the Council.—Carried.

Councillor YELLAND asked whether there was no way to make Mr. Leary do his work better.

Councillor DOUGLAS.—Mr. Mowat is the man to do that.

Councillor YELLAND said that he was told that Mr. Leary met a man from the country and said to him, "I hear you are selling liquor out there. I am going out some of these days to see what you are doing." They did not want an Inspector to act in that way.

The MAYOR said they might also have the Cow By-law enforced better, and there were complaints of corner loafing.

Councillor DOUGLAS thought this was the time to have the creek cleared out.

The Council adjourned at 11.30 o'clock for four weeks.

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubboraly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

A notice of the closing exercises of the Separate Schools, and the list of prizes awarded to the pupils is held over until to-morrow, on account of the press upon our columns to-day.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for the district for the following twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Winds mostly west and north, fine cooler weather.

P. B. C.

Canoeists will remember that to-morrow (Thursday) evening is to be a special evening on the water. All members who own canoes are requested to turn out and to provide themselves with Chinese lanterns for the purpose of an illuminated parade.

The Sanitary Law.

Dr. Clark, Medical Health officer, has gone to Toronto for a few days and will consult with the sanitary authorities of that city in regard to the various matters connected with the proper administration of the new Public Health Act. Dr. Fraser will attend to his duties during his absence.

Personal.

Mr. E. C. Hill departed on Tuesday on a tour through Albany, New York, Philadelphia and other cities, advertising the summer resorts of our back lakes, with a view of inducing tourists who desire cool and refreshing breezes to make them a visit. During his absence orders in his line left at Mr. T. Menzies' will be promptly attended to.

Midsummer.

Cool and refreshing at the "Golden Lion." Chaste millinery in endless variety. Beautiful Pacific lawns. Fine silk and wool zephyr wraps. Broche Grenadines. French Fans. Silk Fichus. Mousquetaire Gloves. Silk and Satin Paragon Parasols, Umbrellas, &c. So very cheap and attractive, as to induce you all to repair at once to Fair, VanEvery & Co.'s for a most superb outfit.

An Accident.

When the the third heat of the hundred yard race was being run at the drill shed grounds on Dominion Day, S. G. Wright, who had run in one heat, was standing behind the winning post, and one of the contestants, Corpl. McDonald, of Toronto, ran against him. He was knocked down and stunned, and was unsconcious for several minutes. The blow and fall, however, were not followed by any serious results.

Junior Lecrosse.

A lacrosse match was played on the morning of Dominion Day by the Cretes, of the town, and the Young Canadians, of Ashburnham, for the Sanderson cup. The first game was won by the Cretes in 20 minutes, and the second, in about half a minute, F. Metheral putting the ball through both times. The Cretes took the third game in ten minutes, F. Sherwood making the winning shot. The Cretes thus won three straight games.

Maple Leafs and Silver Stars.

The Maple Leaf and Silver Star Base Ball Clubs played a match on the grounds near Mr. E. Burnham's on the morning of Dominion Day. The Maple Leafs won the match by 19 runs. The score was as follows:—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Maple Leafs | 3, 5, 5, 1, 13, 6 | 32 |
| Silver Stars | 3, 2, 7, 0, 1, 0 | 13 |

Majority for Maple Leafs.....19

The Silver Stars claim that they wished to play the regulation nine innings, but that the Leafs stopped at the end of the sixth innings.

"Little Tommy" Sold.

Peterborough has lost its well-known and favorite trick horse, "Littly Tommy," as H. C. Winch has sold him to Mr. C. T. Smith, of Toronto. "Little Tommy" has entertained the people of Peterborough on several occasions, and if the gentleman who has purchased him has as much success with "Tommy" as his favoured owner had he will have reason to be satisfied with his purchase. We understand that he was bought with the intention of giving exhibitions. The price paid for him was a good one.

OUR NATIONAL HOLIDAY

THE CELEBRATION IN TOWN OF THE ANNIVERSARY OF CONFEDERATION.

The Peterborough-Toronto Lacrosse Match a Draw—The Athletic Sports—Promenade Concert and Display of Fireworks.

The seventeenth anniversary of the birth of the Dominion of Canada was fittingly celebrated by the people of Peterborough. Many went out of town in the morning, but a large number remained in town to witness the between the Peterboroughs and a team of the Torontos. The weather was fine, though a little too warm, and was favourable for the celebration.

LACROSSE MATCH

The Toronto team had arrived on the evening previous, and it was composed of players whose names were familiar. They were known to be good players, and few thought that the home club had any chance of winning the match—in fact, the boys who were to play shared that opinion. At about 10 o'clock the City Band appeared before the Little Windsor and played a tune, after which the clubs marched across the river to the grounds, where the contest was to take place. Mr. T. J. Crean, of Montreal, was chosen referee, and the teams took up their positions on the field as follows:—

| Peterborough. | | Toronto. |
|---|---|---|
| J. Giroux | Goal | T. Mills |
| P. Myles | Point | A. Martin |
| M. Tierney | Cover Point | W. Robinson |
| J. Howden | Defence Field | C. Henderson |
| M. Halpin | " " | Corpl. McDonald |
| W. J. Scott | " " | T. Henderson |
| J. Sheehy | Centre Field | Sam Struthers |
| A. Yelland | Home Field | P. Jarvis |
| R. Kelly | " " | J. Irving |
| C. Rutherford | " " | F. W. Hayes |
| W. Rudkins | 2nd Home | F. Dixon |
| G. Giroux | 1st Home | J. Meharg |
| J. Coughlin | Field Captain | W. Donaldson |
| John Corkery | Umpire | C. Smith |

It was nearly eleven o'clock before the ball was faced by Sheehy and Struthers. Sheehy had a fine player against him, but he got the ball on the face. It was soon, however, thrown down to the Peterborough goal, where it did not stay long, as it was sent out to centre. Back it went again, but Tierney secured it, and sent it flying over the field. It was played close to the Toronto goal, but again travelled to the Peterborough side, when Scott threw it out. Some play took place on the field, but the sphere was not allowed to remain long in centre, as it was soon sent to either one side or the other. The next time it appeared in the vicinity of the Peterborough goal, Sheehy, by a good play, sent it out. Again it returned, and Scott threw it to Sheehy, who sent it out. The ball was thrown out of bounds, and a "face" took place. Soon after Kelly got the rubber and made a good run, dropping it in front of the Toronto goal, and it was nearly passed between the stakes. The Torontos had an excellent defence, and it needed good play indeed to get the ball past Mills. After some play at the Toronto goal one of the players on that side made a good throw toward the Peterborough goal, but the ball was neatly caught by Howden, who lost no time in sending it back. Yelland, Rutherford and Kelly then showed up in admirable play, and the Toronto flags had another narrow escape. The playing was very even on both sides, and the whole field was kept in lively motion. Myles did excellent work on point, and Joe Giroux stopped some good throws on the goal. Halpin also made good play on the defence. Rudkins and G. Giroux assisted in well directed attacks on the Toronto goal, but the defence appeared to be almost impregnable. Finally the ball appeared close to the Peterborough goal, and three rapid shots were made on the flags, Joe Irving succeeding in getting the ball past Giroux by the third one, and the Torontos had won the first game in 23 minutes.

After a short interval the second game was commenced. As in the first game the ball soon made its way to the Peterborough goal, but was caught and sent out. This game was a brief but interesting one. Five times the rubber was thrown down the field by the Peterborough defence, and as often a good attack was made on the Toronto goal, but they were not successful. After 4 minutes playing Flem. Hayes made a successful shot on the Peterborough goal.

The third game was the shortest of the match. Five times the ball passed over the full length of the field. Finally it was held near the Toronto goal. Rudkin's dropped it in front of the flags, but it was knocked out. Rutherford did the same, with a similar result. Rudkins again got the ball and gave it to Sheehy, and he gave it to Geo. Giroux, who passed it between the the flags. Time, 3 minutes. This result was received with applause and cheers.

At 12 minutes to 12 o'clock the fourth game was commenced. Yelland soon got the rubber and, making a good run down the field, threw it on the Toronto goal. It was secured by a Toronto player, who gave the spectators another exhibition of good running and threw it to the other side of the field. Both teams played in excellent form, and they were so nearly matched that a splendid exhibition of lacrosse was given. One Toronto player dropped his stick on the south side of the field and he then kicked the ball, when a short of "foul" was raised. The ball was soon faced, however, and the game went on. One very close call was made on the Peterborough goal, but it was finely stopped by Jos. Giroux. Finally Rutherford secured the rubber and, neatly dodging two players who tried to check him, gave it to Rudkins, who passed it through the goal, winning another game for Peterborough. Time, 14 minutes.

Twelve o'clock, when it was agreed to cease playing, had arrived, but both teams agreed to play till 12.15. Sheehy again got the ball on the face, and the playing at once became lively. The game, if won, would decide the match, and both sides did their "level best." The Peterborough goal had a couple of narrow escapes, and the Toronto goal was frequently in danger. Finally the ball was thrown out from in front of the Toronto goal over the fence at the side, and just then "time" was called and the players ceased. The match thus resulted in a draw.

The Peterborough boys are to be congratulated on the result. A better lacrosse match was never seen on the grounds, and it was the general opinion that the Peterboroughs never made better play. They had a strong team against them, but they fought well and came out of the contest with honors. The following is a summary of the games:—

| | |
|---|---|
| First game, Torontos | 23 mins. |
| Second game, Torontos | 4 " |
| Third game, Peterborough | 3 " |
| Fourth game, Peterborough | 14 " |
| Fifth game, not finished | 8 " |

The usual cheers were given, and the clubs returned to town. The Toronto players, and they were a fine company of young of young men, departed for Toronto on the Ontario and Quebec train at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The City Band was in the grounds, and enlivened the proceedings with good music. The match was witnessed by a large number of spectators.

THE ATHLETIC SPORTS.

The athletic sports took place in the drill shed grounds in the afternoon, under the auspices of the Boating and Cricket Clubs. There was a small attendance of spectators. The committee had made ample preparations for the events, the track being in good condition and everything being well arranged. Messrs. H. T. Strickland, John McClelland, and W. H. Budden acted as Judges, and Messrs. R. B. Rogers and G. W. Hatton as starters. The following is a list of the events and the prize winners:—

Mannell and J. T. Brydon. The Clubs won the first pull, the Band the second and the Clubs the third.

Quoit Match.—Contested by D. Galletly and A. Rose. Mr. Galletly won by five points, the score being 41 to 36.

All the events passed off very pleasantly, and as they were all closely contested, they were very interesting. The City Band rendered a good programme of music during the afternoon.

CONCERT AND FIREWORKS.

In the evening a promenade concert was held in the drill shed. It was not very largely attended, although the attendance was better than in the afternoon. The music was furnished by the city Band, and they did themselves credit. The programme they had prepared was an excellent one, and, during the whole day, they rendered the music in a manner that could not fail to be pleasing. The display of fireworks was a good one. The shower of rain in the evening was against them, but the display gave satisfaction. The clubs had made arrangements for a good entertainment during the day, and it is a matter for regret that the sports and concert were not better patronized. They certainly deserve credit for the manner in which they had prepared for the day, and also for the way in which the programme was carried out.

WHERE MEN GATHER TO BUY.

Be sure they're sure to get just what suits them. It's only a test, we know, but the number of young men drawn to favor us by a common interest shows that our stuffs, clothing, ways and prices are endorsed by enough buyers of Men's and Youth's clothing to keep our House in the first place in the Retail Clothing Trade of Peterborough. It'd be queer if this majority in our favour were not satisfied. If not already in, you'd better join the crowd, hadn't you? It is often a problem with mothers what to do for Clothing for the Boy. ### POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

WEDNESDAY, June 2.—The holiday appeared to have been too much for six men, or at least the quantity of liquor they drank on Dominion Day was too much for them, and Constables Pidgeon and Adams brought them into Court this morning. They were George Bishop, James Lacey, Henry Barker, John Harvey, James Twomey and Michael Crough. They were each fined $2 or ten days in gaol, and they all paid their fines, with the exception of Barker.

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE.

Wm. Bell was charged by Elizabeth Kemp with having used insulting and abusive language towards her. He pleaded not guilty, but after hearing the evidence the Magistrate fined him $5 and $4.95 costs.

THE LICENSE LAW.

THURSDAY, June 3.—Joseph Young was charged by Edward Connors with having sold liquor on Sunday, June 29th. He pleaded not guilty. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for Mr. Young.

E. CONNORS testifield that he had purchased and drunk four glasses of liquor in Young's hotel on Sunday, and that he had seen the proprietor of the hotel give liquor to others.

Mr. YOUNG was called for the defence and denied having given Connors any liquor. He said that the only liquor he had sold was to guests, at noon, before dinner, when he had given it to them in a room adjoining the dining room. Mr. Leary, the inspector, had told him that he could give liquor to his boarders when they wanted it.

The MAGISTRATE said that he was at liberty to believe either of the witnesses. However, Mr. Young admitted having sold liquor to his boarders, and he did it before dinner, not at dinner, and, without raising the question of how far the Dominion Act was in force, this was contrary to that act. He imposed a fine of $20 and costs.

Mr. Young said that he would appeal the case.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

THE RAILWAY WORLD.

The Canadian Pacific to Have an all Rail Route to Chicago.

The Canadian Pacific has been exceedingly successful so far in all its extensive moves, the latest being an arrangement with the Michigan Central for a direct all rail route to Detroit, Chicago, and all points west south-west and north-west. The new line through will be composed of the eastern division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, from Montreal to Smith's Falls via Ottawa, and the Ontario & Quebec, to Toronto thence by the Credit Valley to St. Thomas where connections will be made with the Michigan Central Railroad. The route is a trifle longer than by the other competing road but the company will remedy this defect by running trains at a high rate of speed. It will probably open for passenger traffic about the 15th prox. From the preparations being made there is little doubt that the train service will excell all others. Two through fast express trains with the finest equipment of passenger coaches, elegant parlor day cars and luxurious sleepers will run through daily without change. The company has gone to considerable trouble to look after the comfort of their patrons. Dining halls without equal in Canada will be located at convenient stations along the route. The entire line from Montreal to St. Thomas will be controlled by the Canada Pacific Railway. A prominent official of the road informed a Star reporter that no attempts will be made at rate cutting or pooling, but it is expected the opening of the new route will prove a great source of competition to the roads.—Montreal Star.

THE CHOLERA PANIC.

THE INFLUENCE ON TRADE.

The panic caused by the appearance of cholera in the south of France is naturally exercising a depressing influence. Few tourists will venture within range of the plague-stricken districts, and hotel proprietors and railway companies complain of lack of guests and passengers.

INFECTED MAIL MATTER.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The post-office department is informed that the French mails brought to this county by British steamships are not disinfected. The matter will be brought to the attention of the Cabinet, as may become necessary to take steps to prevent the importation of cholera.

PRIESTS IN CHOLERA DISTRICTS.

ROME, July 1.—The Pope has ordered the members of the priesthood in all cholera infected districts to remain at their posts. He has placed a fund at the disposal of the bishops in urgent cases.

STEAMER QUARANTINED.

TOULON, July 1.—The steamer Mistral has arrived from Marseilles with a case of cholera aboard. She has been quarantined. The captain and entire crew of the steamer, including the man who is sick of cholera, have abandoned the vessel and taken refuge in the woods. Gendarmes are after them.

CHOLERA IN THE FRENCH NAVY.

Vice-Admiral Peyron, Minister of Marine, has issued a circular asking for a subscription fund for the relief of cholera sufferers belonging to the navy.

A Row in the Camp.

An incipient but veritable combat between a couple of Battalions took place in the Volunteer camp on Wednesday. At midnight the camp was quiet, but a couple of hours later the tent cutting began in the lines of the 77th. Several unimportant fights occurred, but about four o'clock it was again given out that the offenders belonged to the 12th battalion. This was quite enough for some who were anxious for a fight and was accordingly taken advantage of to incite the others. A bugler sounded the "assembly" and the men turned out by scores. The artillery sentries hearing the row, feared their corps was the one about to be attacked, as there was a grudge between one of the batteries and the 77th, the result of a fight when going into camp two years ago. Their guard was at once trebled and sentries placed with drawn swords on the beats. Word was sent to the main guard of "C" company, Infantry school, and they, to the number of 31, doubled up to the scene of action. The officer in charge ordered the 77th to their tents, but they refused. They were going to "lick" the 12th, and didn't care for the guard. Without waiting to give them a chance to get their arms the guard was ordered to fix bayonets, and on the 77th refusing for the second time to disperse, the word was given to charge. The 77th hardly expected this, and when they saw the bayonets coming down upon them they broke into a run, and were soon in their tents. Unfortunately, two or three were slightly wounded. One man was arrested, and fought like a demon, but he was quickly overpowered, handcuffed and treated to a "frog's march" to the guard tent. This put an end to the disturbance, and shortly afterwards the 77th marched out of camp, where a Grand Trunk special awaited them, and they were soon en route for home. They left their tents standing, as they were too damp to strike at the time.

Collision on the Grand Trunk.

GUELPH, July 2.—A collision occurred on the Grand Trunk about a mile east of here shortly after five o'clock this morning between a freight train coming west and No. 9 passenger train, going east. They met on an embankment thirty feet high, and a frightful accident was only averted by the engineers seeing each other in time to reverse and reduce the speed considerably before jumping for their lives. Fortunately the passenger train had several cars attached to it, which reduced the shock to such an extent that the passengers escaped with only a few bruises. No one was seriously hurt. Both the engines are badly wrecked, and the draw-heads smashed nearly the whole length of both trains. It is said the conductor of the west bound train is to blame for running on the passenger train's time.

IF you suffer with sick headache, constipation, sour stomach or bilious attacks, Flint's Mandrake Pills will relieve you, sure. They have no superior. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist, Price 25c.

Another Victory.

A Startling important discovery was made when, after long and patient experiments, the combination of Nerviline was reached. A grand victory indeed, for the suffering have an ever ready, prompt, efficient, and cheap remedy at hand. Do you know that for 10 cents you can buy a trial bottle of Polson's Nerviline and test its great power over pain of every description? Polson's Nerviline cures chills, pain in the stomach, side and back, rheumatism; in fact all pain. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

RADICAL PEERS.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

PARIS, July 2.—A despatch from Panama says:—Heavy rains have seriously injured the canal works on the Colon Side. Hundreds of canal laborerers in Colon are out of employment, and three hundred more will be discharged in a few days, there being no work since the rains set in. De Lesseps' announcement that the canal would be opened in 1888, and that he will be here to pass from ocean to ocean is highly amusing in view of the fact that fifty-nine million dollars have been expended on the surface and not one-thirteenth of the cutting done.

THE O'BRIEN LIBEL TRIAL.

DUBLIN, July 2.—The trial for libel brought by Mr. Cornwall, post-office secretary, against Wm. O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, began to day. The libel consisted in charging Mr. Cornwall with abominable offences against morality. Mr. Cornwall denies the charges. He said he has been employed in the post-office 44 years and had been married for 25 years.

France is not disposed to sanction this scheme.

REPRESENTATION BY PURCHASE.

IT is evident that the Reform party in the Dominion is very hard up for officers, to judge for the shifts to which they are put in order to secure as leaders even the men who have been rejected by the people. Sir Richard Cartwright, celebrated for his constant deficits and for his disastrous policy while Finance Minister, though cashiered by the people of Canada had to be called by Mr. Blake to his aid for want of a better financier in the Reform ranks. As he could not be elected in his own constituency, where he is too well known, another seat had to be found for him, so Mr. Blake, with his fondness for borough-mongering, called upon one of his creatures, a man whose very political life depended upon Mr. Blake's breath, to vacate his constituency in favour of Sir Richard.

And now we have another instance of this borough-mongering. Mr. Wheler, as we are informed by the Globe, has resigned his seat for West Ontario, in order to make room for another light of the Reform party who had been rejected by the elector. This time it was not a question of one of Mr. Blake's led captains, to be ordered out of Parliament at his pleasure, but another influence had to be used. This was supplied by Mr. Mowat, Premier and Attorney General of this Province, who hired Mr. Wheler to efface himself in order to make room for some subaltern for Mr. Blake. Of course Mr. Mowat was not so recklessly extravagant as to pay the purchase money out of his own pocket. Too canny for that, he has bought this assistance for the titular leader of his party in the Dominion by payments out of the Treasury of Ontario, and Mr. Wheeler is to be maintained by the people of this province in order to get him out of Mr. Blake's way. The old Reform condemnation of mutual aid between Dominion and Provincial politicians, is evident held only to apply to Conservatives.

An attempt will doubtless be made by Reform journals to represent that the appointment of Mr. Wheler, the vacancy in West Ontario, and the necessity for looking for a candidate, occurred in the national order of things and not in any exceptional and improper manner. But this pretence would come too late, for the Globe has already "given away" the plot. It announced the resignation of Mr. Wheler in order to make way for someone whose assistance was needed by the Reform leader in Parliament. Thus the Globe confessed the motive for the resignation, but it did not care to confess the means by which it had been brought about. It postponed the announcement that Mr. Wheler had been bought by Mr. Mowat, who created a new office in order thus to purchase at the cost of the people of Canada a member of the Dominion Parliament who stood in the way of Mr. Blake's schemes.

It is possible that Mr. Wheler will not be yet gazetted to the office which is the price of this seat he resigns, but if the completion of the jobbery is deferred on account of the protests it has excited, it will not be abandoned and he will get his stipulated hire. When it was necessary to buy a seat for Mr. Blake, some little time elapsed before Mr. Mowat handed over to Mr. Burke the price for which he sold his constituency. This new Reform device for manipulating representative institutions, is so thoroughly opposed to the spirit of our constitution that these corrupt traffickers, endeavour to mask their objectionable operations.

Who the Reform politician may be for whose benefit this job has been perpetrated, is not yet positively known. The two candidates whose names have been mentioned have several things in common—they are both closely identified with the Toronto Globe, they are both out of the House because rejected by the electors, and they are both heroes of previous jobs.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents a week.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

FOND OF DISALLOWANCE.

The Liberals have disallowed as many Provincial acts as the Conservatives, which, in view of the shorter time they had to do it in, is equivalent to saying they are fonder of exercising that power.—Sherbrook Gazette.

NOT A CLEAN RECORD.

At the Grit picnic at East York, a speaker declared that the Dominion of Canada was today badly, corruptly and dishonestly governed by men who had proved destitute of all principle. Such an assertion should come from a man with a clean record. It is enough to say that it came from Timothy Warren Anglin.—Winnipeg Times.

SAT DOWN UPON.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie sat down somewhat heavily on the ex-Finance Minister at Parkdale, last Wednesday, when he said: "He loved the Dominion, but he could not forget the associations of the motherland. As to severing our connections with the mother country, I would not consider it for one minute."—Montreal Gazette.

PERSONAL POWER.

The constitution of the United States clothes the President with an amount of personal power, at which an English or Canadian Liberals would shudder.—The Manhattan.

MOWAT'S LOAN, AND TILLEY'S.

The Toronto Globe is creating an uproar because Sir Leonard Tilley did not place a three per cent. loan instead of a three and a half per cent. It, however, has nothing to say about Mr. Mowat floating a loan at 4 per cent. Ontario is so well governed, and its finances in such splendid shape, while the Dominion is hopelessly involved in debt—as the Globe says—surely Mr. Mowat could place a loan at a lower rate than Sir Leonard.—Winnipeg Times.

A FOOL'S WAGES.

Another of the noble band of patriots who was sent up to the disputed territory, G. R. Pattullo, has been receiving $5 a day and his rations. As "handsome George" has been loafing round this town since last December it will be in order for some explanation of why he receives such a salary.—Woodstock Times.

TEARING UP THE SENATE.

In fact, it is the providential "lack of power" that prevents the Grit leaders from tearing most of our interests into shreds. When they had the "power" in 1873-78, they tore up and ruined generally, and now stamp and rave because sensible people do not want any more of that kind of a thing in Canada, at least. No more tearing up, thank you, Mr. Mackenzie.—London Free Press.

IN AND OUT OF OFFICE.

When the Reformers are out office they are strongly opposed to the Senate. They are so strongly opposed to the Senate that Mr. MacKenzie says that if he could have his way he would tear it to pieces, When the Reformers are in office, however, they are not so brave. Like the bees which alight on the flower they immediately become dumb the moment they enjoy the sweets of office.—Toronto Telegram Indep.)

CHEAP AND NOISY

The London Advertiser presists in saying that but for the Canadian Pacific Mr. Pew would have built miles of railroad this year in Southern Manitoba. The Advertiser might as well contend that but for his being unseated by Mr. David Mills, Mr. J. J. Hawkins would have bridged the St. Clair river for the benefit of Bothwell. Mr. Pew is one of the cheap and noisy "Boomsters" that have sprung up in the Northwest by the score. They project a railroad and start off to England to float the bonds, as though English capitalists were the simplest of fools; and come back and say they have succeeded. But the money never arrives. Mr. Pew could not build a mile of street-car track if given the material and right of way. The Advertiser cannot make anything in the shape of political capital by painting him as a crushed patriot.—Winnipeg Sun.

REVIEWS.

THE MANHATTAN.—The July number of Manhattan has for its frontispiece a fine portrait of the Earl of Dufferin, engraved from a photograph by Topley, of Ottawa. An account of our ex-Governor General by J. L. Whittle, does justice without exaggeration to his great abilities. "Fair Verona," the beautiful city of Romeo and Juliet, of Dante and the Scaligers is described in a pleasant manner by J. W. Davis, numerous engravings illustrating the letter press. The same is the case with a paper on nearer scenes, those of "Riverside Park" by Martha J. Lambe. In "The Ancient Water Supply of Constantinople" Margaret P. Janes shows, with the aid of Frank Waller's illustrations, the attention that the Romans paid to this important subject, even to the extent of magnificently ornate architecture.—J. Parker Norris makes out a strong case for an answer in the affirmative to his question "Shall we Open Shakespeare's Grave?" Louise Chandler Moulton gives an appreciative account of the life and works of "Arthur O'Shaughnessy." Frank Vincent, Jr., discourses learnedly on the timely subject of "White Elephants." The interesting "Retrospections of the American Stage," by John Bernard are continued. The powerfully written serial tale "Trajan" progresses, and in this number gives an interesting sketch of the American colony in Paris. "Plain Fishing" is an amusing little story by F. R. Stockton. As usual in this magazine the excellent poetry is an important feature. The reviews of "Recent Literature" and "Town Talk" complete an admirable number.

The Conservative Peers.

LONDON, July 1.—There was a large meeting of Conservative peers this morning at Lord Salisbury's residence, to consider what action should be taken on the Franchise bill and the Egyptian question. It was unanimously decided to support Lord Carnavon's motion censuring the Egyptian policy. The question of taking a division on the motion will depend on Lord Granville's reply. The policy to be pursued towards the Franchise bill was left to the party leaders.

The Soudan.

CAIRO, July 1.—Col. Kitchener has returned to Assouan. The country is quiet. He denies that the Bisharenes have joined the Mahdi Sheiks now assembled to decide what course to pursue. He says the gravity of the Mahdi movement has not higherto been grasped. The rebels have issued a fresh warning that they will give no quarter. Their threats have created great terror. Col. Kitchener expects heavy fighting after the feast of Ramadan.

Orange Celebration in Newry.

DUBLIN, July 1.—The Orangemen to-day celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne at Newfy. Bonfires were lighted; a procession, preceeded by bands, marched through the streets carrying an effigy, marked "The Traitor Lundy," which was afterwards burned. The police dispersed the crowd of Nationalists which was stoning the procession.

LADIES' JOURNAL

Bible Competition No. 7.

Closing September 11th,

The Leading Rewards are Lot 50 x 150 at Toronto Junction, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Tea Sets, &c.

The proprietor of the Ladies Journal now announces a magnificent list of rewards for correct answers to Bible questions. It is surprising how little is known of the Bible. The questions are not so difficult this time as last, and we should be glad if there was a hearty response so as to encourage the proprietor of the Journal to persevere in his good work. It was announced in the June issue of the Ladies' Journal that the competition which closed last month would be the last for the present, but it has been decided to try one more.

All money must be sent by post office or express. No information will be given to any one more than is stated here. So send on answers, and don't waste time writing. Do not send postage stamps unless six cents is added for the discount. Remit by postoffice order, scrip or small coin.

THE BIBLE QUESTIONS:

1.—Is Diamond referred to in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

2.—Is Emerald made mention of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

3.—Is Sapphire spoken of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

These all refer to the precious stones.

Now, any one having a knowledge of the Scriptures ought to be able promptly to answer these questions with a little study, and so secure some one of those rewards. Bear in mind every one competing must send FIFTY CENTS with their answers for which the Ladies' Journal will be sent one year to any address. If you answer each of the questions correctly and your answers are in time you are sure to secure one of these costly rewards.

All letters are carefully numbered as they arrive, and there can be no mistake. If your answers are correct, and they reach there in time, you will surely get some reward in addition to the Ladies' Journal, which alone is big value for the half dollar. If you don't get anything but the Journal you will be well pleased with your investment, as it consists of 20 pages of fashions illustrated, short and serial stories, poetry, newest music, household hints, etc., etc.; in fact, just the paper to suit every lady.

By subscribing in a club with your neighbors you will secure some considerable advantage—that is, there must be at least thirty of a club, and all who send correct answers to the Bible questions may have their choice of a handsome ring, heavily gold-plated ladies' gold brooch, which retails at about one dollar and a half, or a triple-plated butter knife. Either of these you may wish will be sent postage paid. You will thus secure to a certainty one or other of these two presents, and in addition will have as good an opportunity of gaining some one of the other large rewards in lists given above just as well as though you had sent in singly. This is simply an inducement to get up clubs. We are sure our readers could not do better than to try their skill in hunting up these questions and competing for these rewards. Everything will be carried out exactly as promised.

Prizes in last competition went all over Canada and to many parts of the United States.

Address, Editor LADIES' JOURNAL, Toronto, Canada.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25 cts.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successfu Cough Medicine we have ever sold, A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster! Sold by J D. Tully.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SAVED ARMY.—The meetings on Monday and Tuesday evenings were well attended and were conducted by Lieut. Webb and Miss McCormac. The Rev. J. Tozeland gave the Bible reading on Monday and Lieut. Webb on Tuesday. There will not be any more meetings here until Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, and then on Sunday at 4 and 7 p.m., and each evening at 8 p.m.

ORANGE.—A special meeting of Keene Lodge will be held on Saturday evening next, to make arrangements for the 12th. A full attendance is requested. The Otonabee district lodge met on Monday night and gave each lodge permission to go where they wished on the 12th.

DOMINION DAY.—The excursion to Idyl Wild was a grand success in every way. A light shower fell while they were on the lake, returning, but the rest of the day was very fine. The steamer Whistle-Wing took about one hundred excursionists in the morning, and in the afternoon another large party who arrived by the train from Peterborough. All arrived safely in the evening, shortly after 8 o'clock, and well pleased with the trip and the genial manners of Capt. Carson.

OTONABEE SCHOOL PICNIC,

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—On Thursday last the friends of S. S. No. 8, Otonabee, held their social picnic at Idyl Wild, and spent a very pleasant day indeed. The weather was all that could be desired by pleasure seekers, the attendance was large, and the arrangements were complete and well carried out. We arrived home in good time and no mishap occurred to mar the sports and pleasures of the day. Through the columns of your widely circulated paper the trustees desire to express their hearty thanks and are requested to convey the thanks of the managing committee as well to Captain R. W. Carson, of the Whistle-Wing, for his kindness to the pupils, his gentlemanly and obliging conduct to all the passengers, and his able and efficient management of his steamer during the difficult trip, while the river contained seventy thousand logs. And we hope Mr. Calcutt will always find the services of Capt. Carson so remunerative in connection with his line of steamers as to warrant him in retaining Captain Carson another year, that the friends of S. S. No. 8, Otonabee, may enjoy another pleasant trip to that beautiful summer resort Idyl Wild.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

DOMINION DAY.—The anniversary of Confederation was duly celebrated. The steamer Cruiser ran an excursion to Burleigh Falls and was well patronized, being crowded with holiday makers. The weather was delightful and the trip was much enjoyed. Many visited the quarry from which the stone is being obtained for the Trent Valley Navigation works, a sight well worth seeing. Mr. Brophy, the manager of the works, showed the party all the points of interest. Others betook themselves to fishing with considerable success. The steamer reached the village again about six o'clock, a very enjoyable day having been spent amid the romantic scenery of our lakes. Numerous private parties celebrated the day by picnics and other amusements.

PERSONAL.—A telegram has been received from Mr. Sanders stating that he is on his way home from the Northwest, and that he will shortly be in our village again.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.—The next meeting of the Village Council will be held on Monday evening, July 7th.

SCHOOL BOARD.—A meeting of the School Board will take place on Tuesday evening, July 8th. The Public School closes for the holidays at the end of the week.

MASONIC.—The regular monthly meeting of Clementi Lodge A.F. and A.M., was held on Tuesday evening. W. Bro, Geo. Cochrane was appointed delegate to Grand Lodge.

NAVIGATION.—The Steamers Cruiser and Fairy are now fully employed. They run a passenger trip every day, alternately, and are well patronized. They are also busy hauling wood, etc.

VISITORS.—There are a number of visitors coming and going, holiday making, fishing and enjoying the beautiful scenery on our water. Many of them are from the States and they are enthusiastic in their expressions of approval.

SAVED ARMY.—The meetings of the Saved Army are still being held in the P.C.A. Hall. Several young men have been summoned to appear before the Magistrate for making a disturbance in the Hall on Sunday evening. The case is likely to be heard on Saturday.

NORWOOD.

From our own Correspondent.

LACROSSE.—The Norwood 1st twelve went to Idyl Wild on Dominion Day to take part in the Lacrosse competition. The Norwood Cornet Band accompanied them.

WATERING CART.—A watering cart now parades the business portion of the village every day. Mr. Roroback receives $10 per week from subscriptions.

O. & Q. RAILWAY.—Express trains commenced running from this place to Toronto, on Monday 30th. Two trains will run every day until a further opening of the line east. Mr. Moore, brother-in-law of Mr. H. Mullins, one of Norwood's most respected townsmen, has been appointed station master.

SAD DROWNING CASE.—On Sunday afternoon the 29th inst., the village was startled by the report that an Italian was drowned in the mill pond, at the north side of the village. The news proved to be only too correct. It appears that the unfortunate man, while bathing had stepped out too far in the water, and not being able to swim had sunk to the bottom. After a delay of about ten minutes, Mr. Wm. Hetherington succeeded in bringing him to shore, when the body was at once taken to the house of Mr. Chas. Stephenson and medical aid summoned. Dr. Pettigrew was soon on the scene, but unfortunately too late for after about one hour's hard work with the body, the doctor declared all further efforts futile. The unfortunate young man was very intelligent, sober and industrious, and was overseer of an Italian gang who were employed on the O. & Q. Railway. By his careful and industrious habits he is said to have amassed a considerable sum of money.

HIGH SCHOOL.—The closing exercises of the Norwood High School took place on Friday the 27th. A full attendance of scholars were present to show their high respect and esteem for their instructors, Messrs. Davidson and Jackman by presenting, the former with a valuable gold headed ebony cane, and the latter with a pair of beautiful gold spectacles, as tokens of acknowledgements for the benefits they had reaped during term then about to expire. The following addresses were then read to which the above named gentlemen made suitable replies:

NORWOOD, June 26, 1884.

DAVIDSON,—As the present term is drawing to a close, and having considered the rapid progress made by the the school under your supervision, we, the pupils of the Norwood high school, in acknowledgement of your kindness and the deep interest you have taken in our personal welfare, wish to express our gratitude by presenting you with this cane, which we hope will always recall pleasant remembrances. Hearing of your intended trip across the Atlantic we all join in wishing you a safe and pleasant voyage. We are pleased to know that on your return you will have a more suitable building in which to display those abilities which you have formerly exhibited to so great advantage, and we hope that the same success which has attended your efforts in the past may continue to attend them in future.

Signed in behalf of the school,

MICHAEL McNULTY,
JOHN McKELVIE,
JESSIE B. WILSON,

Notwithstanding the difficulties against which you have had to contend, you have proved to us your superior abilities as a teacher, and we shall recall with much pleasure the time passed under your instruction. In conclusion we wish to thank you for the deep concern which you have always manifested in our behalf, and hope that your efforts in the future may be even more successful than the have been in the past.

Contract Thimblerigging.

Mr. Charlton, speaking at a meeting at Parkdale, said:—

"The Reform party had great regard for the public interests, and while Mr. Mackenzie was in power he put a stop to thimblerigging in the letting of public contracts."

There are two sides to that story. Many good people believe that the contracts were thimblerigged to an unusual and extravagant extent during Mr. Mackenzie's time, and in connection with his own department. What about the Georgian Bay section, the contract for which was given out before an instrumental survey had been made? When it was shown that the plan could not be carried out, the contract was cancelled, at a cost to the country of $109,000. Where was the "little joker" in that case? The late Senator Foster could have told, perhaps. And the Fort Francis lock job was no less pertinent an illustration of how contracts were thimblerigged, as Mr. Charlton calls it, under the Mackenzie Government. If Mr. Mackenzie was so successful a minister, honest and capable, why did the party, at the instance of Mr. Charlton and others, kick him out to make way for another? A poor return that was for the ability and correct behaviour which Mr. Charlton now commends.—London Free Press.

The Australian Cricketers in America.

LONDON, June 29.—The Australian cricketers are quite uncertain as to whether they will make a tour of the United States on their way back to Melbourne. The decision of the question will be controlled wholly by the considerations of costs and probable receipts, and it is only justice to the members of the team to say that in financial matters they are not free agents. Much hostile criticism has been provoked here by what has seemed to be a grasping and penurious disposition on their part, as shown by their keenness in bargaining for terms, and their disinclination to subscribe for cricket charities, &c. The fact is, however, that the players are absolutely ruled in all their financial affairs by a committee, which conducts the finances on the joint stock principle Capt. Murdoch and most of the players strongly favour a tour of the States. The Australians have been considerably astonished at the splendid form displayed by the Philadelphians in all their playing during their present visit to England. Captain Murdoch is now negotiating with the gentlemen of Philadelphia for a match in that city, and he says he feels confident of being able to arrange a series of profitable matches between New York and San Francisco if permitted to do so.—Mail.

Bill the Banker.

"Bill the Banker" was a poor navvy, whose work, when he was engaged in the construction of railway embankments, lay amongst the 'tip' waggons. It so befel that he obtained the post of "tip-man" over a shaft in one of the many tunnels found necessary on the Manchester and Leeds Railway. This shaft was about two hundred feet deep, with sides and bottom of solid rock. His duty was to raise the trucks filled below, and run them to the top, returning them empty to his mates below. If a chain broke away, or a great boulder slipped off a truck, Bill had to shout "Waur out!" and the miners below crept into their "drives" and the dangerous article fell without injury to any. One unhappy day Bill's foot slipped hopelessly, and he knew he must be hurled from side to side of the narrow shaft, until he lay, smashed and lifeless at the bottom. But his mates? If he screamed, the unusual sound would draw them all out together to ascertain the cause. With a truly heroic courage he gave the customary signal in firm, unaltering tones, 'Waur out below!' And his mates heard in their secure retreats the dreadful thud and final crash of their brave comrade's shattered remains.—Manchester, Eng., Y.M.C.A. Beehive.

The Cobden Club Banquet.

LONDON, June 29.—In his speech at the Cobden club banquet this evening. Lord Carlingford said when America realized the benefits to be derived from free trade, her power and influence would increase enormously. He believed before the next meeting of the club, the commercial treaty between England and Mexico will be concluded. He hoped Egypt and the Suez canal would eventually become neutral ground and be protected by all the powers. Dr. Smith, of Sioux City, Iowa, says revenue reform was making great progress in America. The Cobden club would probably hear news of the progress within the next six months.

"MAY DEW"

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubbornly red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

Bass' English Ale.

Another large shipment of Bass' Ale, October brewing, just arrived at W. Chamberlain's Restaurant. Imported direct.

A Fall from a Scaffold.

At about six o'clock on Wednesday evening Mr. Wm. Robinson, tinsmith, met with a serious accident. He was working at St. Paul's Church, on a scaffold, and in order to reach the place requiring attention he used a box. The box was by some means turned over, and he fell from the scaffold to the ground, descending upon some bricks. Mr. Robinson was severely bruised, and it was feared that he was internally injured, but Dr. Boucher, who attended him, informed us that, though severely bruised, no bones were broken and he will be around again in a short time.

A Pyramid of Splendour.

China Hall, the "palace store," always has an attractive window, but in his latest attempt at window dressing Mr. Macfarlane Wilson has excelled himself. In the southern front window are placed two two-story glass cases, one raised above the other and set a little back. These cases contain a large assortment of silverware of the newest designs, including silver tea sets and trays, forks and spoons, tilters, butter coolers, crusts, goods in cases, and a great variety of nick-nacks suitable for wedding presents and ornamentation, the whole being surmounted by two large and handsome maroon vases, with flowers. The goods are well arranged, and the effect is very pleasing. Few can pass the store without pausing to look at and admire the display.

Cricket Match.

The first innings of a match between married and single members of the Cricket Club will take place to-morrow afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock sharp. Both sides have strong teams.

Entrance Examinations.

The examination of candidates for entrance into the Collegiate Institute began this morning. The examiners are Messrs James Stratton, W. O'Connor and J. Campbell. There are ninety-two candidates.

Court Peterborough.

Business of special importance will be considered at the regular meeting of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. F., on Friday evening, and a full attendance is requested. JOHN FANNING, Recording Secretary.

The Swift Canoe.

Messrs. J. W. Flavelle, W. Flavelle and F. H. Dobbin arrived in town to-day, having come from Lindsay in canoes. Mr. Dobbin says they come down from Lindsay at horse-race speed, making the distance to the boat house, including portages, in two hours.

A Splendid Chance

To buy Millinery and Mantles at greatly reduced prices. W. Fairweather & Co., have resolved to clear out the whole of their stock at sweeping reductions. Besides the regular stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods special lines are worth the notice of all buyers. Good Black Silks at 50, 75 and 90 cents; good Colored Dress Silks at 35, 50 and 75 cents. A splendid variety of fine Black Goods for mourning. Rich Silk Mantles and Pattern Millinery Bonnets, Ostrich Feathers, Flowers and Laces at half price.

Smith's Market.

Strawberries picked and delivered twice a day. Parties can rely on our berries being equal in quality and flavour to any berry grown in Canada, as the growers, Messrs. Rogers, Sheffield and Mills have spared no pains or expense in getting the finest varieties grown. When delivered they are placed in the cooler and thoroughly freed from the heat, thus making them cool and refreshing. Parties, picnics, etc., supplied in small or large lots to suit at an hour's notice. Cherries will be along in a day or two. Green peas every day, and all other kinds of fruit and green vegetables as rapidly as the season permits. Fresh fish every day.

Peterborough's Attraction.

Peterborough's greatest attraction, with the electric light, is the "Golden Lion," on George street, where every department is filled to the ceiling with choice new seasonable goods. In millinery—everything new and attractive. In dress and mantle making—the finest fabrics to choose from, and all orders executed on shortest notice, and in most elegant styles. In tailoring—a most complete stock of Scotch tweeds, fine worsteds, &c., to select from. A competent cutter and a good fit guaranteed. Other departments show specialties too numerous to mention, which tend to make Fair, VanEvery & Co. the "grand centre of attraction in Peterborough."—Our Contem.

Pencil Points.

Illuminated canoe parade on the lake this evening.

—A meeting of the Board of Health will be held this evening.

—The street pay list for the two weeks ending this evening amounts to $314.25.

—It is expected that Lieut. J. H. Wyatt will open a Saved Army outpost in Charlottetown, P. E. I., in about a week.

—It was the second twelve of the Silver Stars that played with the Maple Leafs on Dominion Day.

—John Harvey, who has appeared in the Police Court three times in a little over a week, was again arrested this afternoon by Constable Adams.

—Our story, "Infelice," has been crowded out by the pressure on our columns. Our readers will please bear with this, and it will appear to-morrow.

—The dry goods stores began closing at six o'clock last night. A couple of merchants evidently forgot the rule, but will no doubt make up for the inadvertence by closing promptly on time during the two months.

Construction Train Wrecked.

KEOKUK, Iowa, July 1.—In the wreck of the construction train on the Chicago, Burlington, and Kansas railroad last night from 20 to 25 people were precipitated into the steram, the fall being from 40 to 50 feet. Ten or fifteen were more or less injured; several may die. Fred. Young, of Milan, Mo., and John Long, of Sumner, were killed. It is reported that three others bodies were taken from the wreck.

ILLUMINATED PARADE

Of Canoes on the Little Lake, Under the Auspices of the Boating Club.

Those who were out on the Little Lake on Thursday evening enjoyed a treat. About forty or fifty canoes turned out, each one carrying at least one or two lady passengers, and the most of them were provided with Chinese lanterns. About eight o'clock they formed in line across the lake opposite the upper pier. Under the command of the President of the Club and Col. H. C. Rogers, Rear Commodore of the A. C. A., they proceeded in line down the Lake, and just above the point wheeled to the left and advanced in line towards the Ashburnham wharf. They then turned to the left and advanced in file up towards the starting point. The effect, as seen from the shore, was very weird and pretty, as the lights darted hither and thither in serpentine fashion. After some further movements the canoes were massed in the centre of the Lake and a number of songs were given with very good effect. The night was fine and pleasant and after a time the moon appeared to add a charm to the scene. At ten o'clock the party separated.

It was announced that Thursday evening of each week will be devoted to canoeing, and already preparations are being made for a repition next Thursday of last evening's entertainment, but on a much more extensive scale. Probably double the number of canoes will turn out, and there will be no "foolish virgins" without lights. We would suggest to members not to think it necessary to go to too great trouble and expense in having a large number of lanterns on a canoe, but let each one be provided with, say, at least two lanterns, and have the illumination general along the line. If one of our fine bands would play a few pieces of their choice music on Burnham's Point, interspersed with the songs from the canoeists, the effect would be perfect. Such evenings would be a grand preparation for the A. C. A. Camp, which opens on the 1st of August.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Conference with the Butchers Regarding Slaughter Houses.

At the meeting of the Board of Health on Thursday evening Messrs. Andrew McNeil (Chairman), Green and Paterson were present—not a quorum. The Sanitary Inspectors were on hand, and the following butchers were also in attendance in accordance with the request of the Board:—Messrs. Wainwright, O'Brien, Thompson, Winch, McNairn, Trotter, Laplante, Wm. Matthews, Geo. Matthews (Lindsay), White, Cummings, Wheeler, Coe and Mervin.

The CHAIRMAN regretted that there was not a fuller attendance of the members of the Board. He explained that the Board felt disposed to enforce the clause of the Health Act which required slaughter houses to be 200 yards from any dwelling house and 70 yards from any public street, and the butchers were invited to attend the meeting and discuss the matter, to see if they could not make some arrangement to erect a slaughter house outside the town which they could all use. Some slaughter houses were reported to be kept in good order, but of others there were complaints. He invited those present to give their views on the subject.

Mr. H. C. WINCH said that he had gone to considerable trouble and expense to build a place that could not trouble anyone. There had been no complaints from his neighbors, and, for his own comfort as well as that of others, he had kept it in good order. His yards were all gravelled so that he could sweep them. He would think it hard if he had to move, after going to so much expense.

Mr. GEO. MATTHEWS said that his packing house was different from a butcher's place. He did not know of any place in Canada better fitted for his work than the place where his establishment was. The killing was a small item in his business, as his trade was curing, and he only killed when he could not procure dressed hoges. He could not erect a place outside the town to kill in, and carry on his business, and if he was compelled to stop killing where he was they could only close the place.

Mr. R. WAINWRIGHT said his slaughter house did smell, and he did not know one that did not. However, he kept it in as good condition as he could. If is was as great a nuisance as it was said to be, there would be more complaints from the neighbors. He had build a refrigerator at considerable expense, and if he was forced to move it would be a loss to him. If he had to go, however, this was no need of making the other butcher's move out of town on his account. He kept a man to look after the hogs, and he did not know that he could do more than he had done. It might be easy to build a slaughter house outside of the town, but the trouble was to get water for the stock.

Mr. N. T. LAPLANTE thought he could keep his slaughter house so it would not smell. The worst thing about such houses was the pigs, but he had arranged his pens so they would cause no nuisance. There were complaints of tallow rendering, but if it was rendered when it was fresh it would cause no trouble. It would be very inconvenient to have the slaughter houses outside of the town. If allowed to stay in town the Inspector might visit their places, and if they were not kept right they might be brought before the Magistrate. He asked that they be given a trial. If made go out of town they would be at expense, and that would have to be added to the price of the meat.

The CHAIRMAN said that it was thought that by calling them together they might agree to build a place outside the town where they could all kill together, in which the town might assist them.

Mr. LAPLANTE said that it would be difficult to procure a place that would suit them all, as they lived in different parts of the town. He thought Spaulding's Bay a greater nuisance than the slaughter houses, and another nuisance was the sawdust thrown into the river from the saw mills. The dams in the creek needed looking after.

Mr. G. MATTHEWS said that a general slaughter house outside the town would not suit him, as it was easy to spoil the pork for curing, and therefore had to have the hogs killed near his refrigerator.

Mr. GREEN said that he did not see why they could not discriminate here as well as in Toronto.

Mr. WINCH said that the butchers were scattered so much about the town that a general slaughter house would be too inconvenient, and if forced to remove they could only each build a place for himself.

The CHAIRMAN thanked the butchers for attending and giving their views, and they could rest assured that the Board would do nothing that would put them to expense unless they were compelled to.

Mr. WAINRIGHT thought that Mr. Matthews should be considered separate from the butchers.

Other butchers present concurred in this view.

MR. PATERSON said that he was sorry that there was not a fuller attendance of members of the Board.

Mr. WAINRIGHT said that Messrs. Winch and Laplante kept their slaughter houses in as good order as it could be done.

The CHAIRMAN again thanked the butchers for attending, and the meeting adjourned.

FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1884.

THE POPULAR VOICE.

In his speech at Harriston Mr. Blake is reported to have said, in his remarks concerning the Senate of Canada:—

"He believed that we had no right to be legislated for except by men chosen by the popular voice, directly or indirectly."

We are fully in accord with Mr. Blake in this respect. Mr. Blake's opinion, our constitution and our practice all concur. The members of the House of Commons are chosen directly by the popular voice; the members of the Senate are chosen indirectly by the popular voice, a system which was adopted at confederation, with the strongly expressed approval of the Reform leaders.

As to the House of Commons, its members are chosen by the popular voice, though perhaps somewhat imperfectly expressed, improvements, no doubt, being possible, as in all human institutions. Sir John Macdonald and his supporters are, in fact, proposing an improvement by enlarging the electorate and making the choosing voice still more "popular." Mr. Blake and Mr. Mowat, with their supporters, on the other hand are also introducing what they no doubt consider improvements in the system, namely, a plan of purchase of vacancies and limiting the holding of a seat, not to the parliamentary term, but to Mr. Blake's autocratic decision.

In the case of the Senate the system is different. Before Confederation the trial had been made of constituting the Upper Chamber in two different ways: by nomination by the Crown, without much, if any, regard for the people's voice; and by direct choice by the popular voice. At Confederation both these methods were rejected, and the middle course was adopted of choosing the Senators indirectly by the popular voice, a plan which, in the discussion on the subject, had the warm advocacy of the great Reform leaders, who distinctly disapproved of the election of the members, as not having proved satisfactory.

The system thus adopted by consent of both parties was that the Senators should be chosen for life by the Administration of the day. This is not direct choice by the popular voice, but it is far from being very indirect. The representatives of the people, chosen by the popular voice, virtually choose the Administration of the day, and change it at their pleasure. They are thus able to check the Cabinet in its choice of Senators, as in other administrative acts entrusted to the Government of the day, which derives all its power from the majority of the people's representatives, and cannot continue to exist without their confidence and support, as well as that of the people.

Thus the Senators are chosen by those to whom that power is delegated by the representatives chosen by the popular voice. The Senators are not chosen directly by the popular voice, but they are chosen by those who only exist through the confidence of the representatives of the people, and the voice of the people themselves. This cannot be called a very indirect method of choice. It naturally follows that the majority of the people of Canada being Conservative, their representatives in the House of Commons being Conservative, and the Administration consequently being Conservative, the Senate of Canada being truly, though indirectly, representative, is also Conservative. And this is the grievance with the Reformers; it is not because the Senate is non-representative, but because it is too representative to suit them, in that, like the people of Canada and their elected representatives, the House of Commons, it has no confidence in Mr. Blake and his followers, and has confidence in Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues.

Of course the Senate is not perfect, any more than the House of Commons, but if the Reformers wish to improve it they should agree upon and suggest some better plan for the country to consider. Mr. Mackenzie, it is true, has announced his policy, which seems to be to grasp at more senatorial appointments when in power and to threaten to tear to pieces the Senate when he is out of power. Mr. Blake does not seem to know very well what his policy and that of his party would be, his fancy for the moment being apparently in favor of a Senate elected by the people. He knows, however, that he has not the confidence of the Senate, and therefore he abuses it, as he does the House of Commons and the majority of the people of Canada, because they have no confidence in him either, and have rejected his proffered services.

THE O. AND Q. RAILWAY.

A Short Description of the New Line—The Bridges, Roadway, &c.

It was somewhat surprising to hear a passenger give vent to the opinion the other day that fact that the Ontario and Quebec Railway was now regularly running was not widely known. However, this may be, the new line is sure soon to be liberally patronized.

On leaving Toronto the first thing to be noticed is, of course the

which span the deep ravines characteristic of Yorkville. Before mentioning them, however, it is worth saying that passengers are given a choice of three different stations to start from—the Union Station, Parkdale, and North Toronto. This is a great boon, especially since the morning trains start before the tram-cars are in motion.

The bridges just mentioned are beautiful structures, and no expense has been shared in their construction. Toronto papers before this have described at length their appearance, and it is only necessary to add that every detail has been carefully attended to. Their inspection was exceedingly rigorous. A large amount of material, already bought was discarded as not being up to the high standard required. They are many times the necessary strength. Quantities of steel have been used in important parts; and minor considerations, such as a foot way on either side, painting the whole structure, etc., have been thoroughly done.

THE ROAD ITSELF

and the country through which it passes bear so uniform a character that it will be unnecessary to do more than describe generally. The line is excellent. It has the appearance of thorough, enduring and perfectly finished road. The permanent way reminds one of settled British or United States lines. The company used gravel with lavish hand—in which nature apparently has aided them, to judge from the numerous points along the route from which it was obtainable—and, at all events between Toronto and Peterborough, no well nigh insuperable difficulty, such as that unfortunate sink hole on the Missing Link, has presented any cause for chagrin. The line, too, is remarkably smooth, as might be expected from the care shown in laying the track. One thing, however, was observed, the rails seem to have been laid rather too close to one another—longitudinally, that is. They were laid in winter and the absence of any intervals between them show that their expansion has been greater than allowed for. It is needless to say that this does not interfere at all with the the running.

THE STATIONS,

one and all, for they are built on the same plan, are most tasty little buildings. They are painted in two shades of rich, deep green which the spacious brownish red—light red, painters call it—roofs set off to advantage. Internally green is also used, of a very bright color. The upper part is used as a domicile. On the platform is an excellent improvement in the shape of a raised portion, running for some distance level with the floor of the baggage van—a great help to the rapid loading and unloading of luggage.

THE TRAINS

are already running regularly and easily, and attention is given to details. The bell is sounded and the whistle blown at every crossing; punctuality to a degree is practised; and everything is done in thorough business-like fashion; and but for the frightened horses and gaping rustics seen at every few miles there is nothing to show the infancy of this our new line—excepting, of course, the unfinished appearance of some of the stations, one or two of which have still to receive their coats of paint.

As to the time in which it takes to run between Toronto and Peterborough, it is at present a matter of less than three hours; but it was very evident that the pace is very leisurely; and doubtless before long when the whole line is opened and new time tables are issued we shall find this time lowered to little more than a couple of hours. As it is, it is delightful to start from Peterborough as late as a quarter past seven and to find oneself in Yonge street at ten minutes past ten, within a few minutes' walk of the tramway.

The line itself has been constructed in a way worthy of the great Canada Pacific Railway, of which it is a part, and will be an inestimable boon to Peterborough—not only to pleasure seekers, but to business men more particularly.

AN OLD TIMER.

Old Time Sports—Sir John A. Still a Survivor.

Ald. W. Wilson has received from Adolphustown the copy of an old bill which announced horse races in Kingston in 1840. The President of the Racing Association was John B. Marks; Vice-President, Dr. Sampson, and the Secretary J. M. Prior. The Stewards were: The Sheriff, John R. Forsyth, H. Sadleir, Wm. Wilson, J. Watkins, R. A. Armstrong, Thos. A. Corbett, J. A. Macdonald, H. Smith, Esq., Treasurer; Capt. Otway, R. A., Capt. Arthur, A. D. C., Hon. G. T. Devereux, R. A., Dr. Mackintosh, R. A., Capt. Matthews, 35th Regiment, Lieut. Kelly, 34th Regiment, Lieut. Menzies, R. E., Lieut. Woodhouse, 24th Regiment, G. Atkinson, Esq., Commissariat. Ald. Wilson says he thinks the only gentleman of those who is now alive is Sir John Macdonald. The races were as follows:—"The Town Plate" of £25, open to all horses bred in the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada; "The Merchant's Plate" of £30, open to all horses; and the Ladies' Purse of £15 with £10 added by the Governor-General. It is thought that an old resident had in his possession one of the old bills, printed in 1840, and that he got more struck off and sent some on to Kingston.—Kingston News.

Riel in Canada.

The correspondent of the Mail telegraphs as follows:—CLARK'S CROSSING, N.W.T., July 2.—Louis Riel arrived at Stobart, a settlement containing about six hundred half-breeds, forty miles from Prince Albert, yesterday. He came from Montana. Half-breeds from neighboring settlements are assembling there. Their object is not definitely known, but it is rumored that they intend to hold a convention and conference with Riel, as referred to in my last letter.

VALUE OF TRADE JOURNALS.

The continual multiplication and consequent cheapening of technical journals and papers with their enlarging circulation among the mechanics of this country afford a strong ground for earnest hope for their future. From the rarity of 50 years ago these journals have increased until to-day there is hardly, possibly not one, branch of mechanical industry that is not represented. Carpenters, masons, iron-workers, machinists, car-builders, painters, lumbermen and many others have them, and to them probably more than any other influence is due the great advancement in their several departments of industry. With the taste for reading there not only comes the supply, but, what is more to the point and of greater advantage, also the thought, the questioning of old methods and styles, and the inquiry if that is best, but also study into the whys and wherefores of all work and processes of work with continual discoveries as to a betterment of the ideas of our fathers, and an improvement of the old plans, and with each discovery comes discussion and deeper inquiry, leading on to something still higher and better. Practical knowledge of any industrial pursuit is a good thing, but he who depends alone on the education of the shop, the bench, the forge or the laboratory, without a solid theoretical knowledge of all the means requisite to the desired end, and all the varied capabilities of the subject matter, the raw material, in hand, will find himself to be contented with the lowest position and smallest pay in the department in which he may work. Boys! apprentices, in any trade, study up all the points of your business if you wish to make successful mechanics. —Lumberman's Gazette.

Serious Bush Fire.

KINGSTON, July 1.—A terrible conflagration is in progress near Mississippi, about ten miles beyond Sharbot lake. A week ago fire was observed burning in the bush, but little attention was paid to it. Yesterday it developed into gigantic proportions, and rushed towards Peter McLaren's mills. Every effort was made to turn the flames in another direction, but all to no purpose, and this morning word came that the mill was in danger and asking that a fire engine be sent to help to keep the lumber wet. An engine and hose reel, with Engineer Burke and several firemen, left on a special train for the scene of the fire. The latest news this afternoon is that the flames are in the centre of McLaren's lumber and eating up large piles with lightning rapidity. The engine is playing on the mill, and a gang of men are removing the lumber so as to isolate the building and prevent it from being destroyed. The prospects are that the mill will not be saved, and with it 830,000 worth of lumber will be consumed. The mill is valued at 850,000. The news of the conflagration has caused excitement in the city, the heavens to the north of which are black with smoke. The operator at Mississippi sends in a message that in order to get from the mill to the station he had to encircle the fire and drive fully eight miles, else he would have been suffocated by smoke and heat. The roar of the flames can be heard for miles away. The bush in the vicinity of the fire is very thick, therefore there is no telling where the thing may end.

9 o'clock.—The wind has changed and now the flames are rushing towards the village. All the section men on the Kingston and Pembroke Railroad have gone to the fire. The mill is safe but the village may burn.

The Pan-Presbyterian Council.

BELFAST, July 1.—In the Pan-Presbyterian Council yesterday, papers were read on the qualifications of candidates, the state of theological teaching in France, the training of students in Presbyterianism as the best remedial agency for Ireland, and Ireland, its special difficulties, duties and claims.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1884.

THE POPULAR VOICE.

In his speech at Harriston Mr. Blake is reported to have said, in his remarks concerning the Senate of Canada:—

"He believed that we had no right to be legislated for except by men chosen by the popular voice, directly or indirectly."

We are fully in accord with Mr. Blake in this respect. Mr. Blake's opinion, our constitution and our practice all concur. The members of the House of Commons are chosen directly by the popular voice; the members of the Senate are chosen indirectly by the popular voice, a system which was adopted at confederation, with the strongly expressed approval of the Reform leaders.

As to the House of Commons, its members are chosen by the popular voice, though perhaps somewhat imperfectly expressed, improvements, no doubt, being possible, as in all human institutions. Sir John Macdonald and his supporters are, in fact, proposing an improvement by enlarging the electorate and making the choosing voice still more "popular." Mr. Blake and Mr. Mowat, with their supporters, on the other hand are also introducing what they no doubt consider improvements in the system, namely, a plan of purchase of vacancies and limiting the holding of a seat, not to the parliamentary term, but to Mr. Blake's autocratic decision.

In the case of the Senate the system is different. Before Confederation the trial had been made of constituting the Upper Chamber in two different ways: by nomination by the Crown, without much, if any, regard for the people's voice; and by direct choice by the popular voice. At Confederation both these methods were rejected, and the middle course was adopted of choosing the Senators indirectly by the popular voice, a plan which, in the discussion on the subject, had the warm advocacy of the great Reform leaders, who distinctly disapproved of the election of the members, as not having proved satisfactory.

The system thus adopted by consent of both parties was that the Senators should be chosen for life by the Administration of the day. This is not direct choice by the popular voice, but it is far from being very indirect. The representatives of the people, chosen by the popular voice, virtually choose the Administration of the day, and change it at their pleasure. They are thus able to check the Cabinet in its choice of Senators, as in other administrative acts entrusted to the Government of the day, which derives all its power from the majority of the people's representatives, and cannot continue to exist without their confidence and support, as well as that of the people.

Thus the Senators are chosen by those to whom that power is delegated by the representatives chosen by the popular voice. The Senators are not chosen directly by the popular voice, but they are chosen by those who only exist through the confidence of the representatives of the people, and the voice of the people themselves. This cannot be called a very indirect method of choice. It naturally follows that the majority of the people of Canada being Conservative, their representatives in the House of Commons being Conservative, and the Administration consequently being Conservative, the Senate of Canada being truly, though indirectly, representative, is also Conservative. And this is the grievance with the Reformers; it is not because the Senate is non-representative, but because it is too representative to suit them, in that, like the people of Canada and their elected representatives, the House of Commons, it has no confidence in Mr. Blake and his followers, and has confidence in Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues.

Of course the Senate is not perfect, any more than the House of Commons, but if the Reformers wish to improve it they should agree upon and suggest some better plan for the country to consider. Mr. Mackenzie, it is true, has announced his policy, which seems to be to grasp at more senatorial appointments when in power and to threaten to tear to pieces the Senate when he is out of power. Mr. Blake does not seem to know very well what his policy and that of his party would be, his fancy for the moment being apparently in favor of a Senate elected by the people. He knows, however, that he has not the confidence of the Senate, and therefore he abuses it, as he does the House of Commons and the majority of the people of Canada, because they have no confidence in him either, and have rejected his proffered services.

THE O. AND Q. RAILWAY.

A Short Description of the New Line—The Bridges, Roadway, &c.

It was somewhat surprising to hear a passenger give vent to the opinion the other day that fact that the Ontario and Quebec Railway was now regularly running was not widely known. However, this may be, the new line is sure soon to be liberally patronized.

On leaving Toronto the first thing to be noticed is, of course the

which span the deep ravines characteristic of Yorkville. Before mentioning them, however, it is worth saying that passengers are given a choice of three different stations to start from—the Union Station, Parkdale, and North Toronto. This is a great boon, especially since the morning trains start before the tram-cars are in motion.

The bridges just mentioned are beautiful structures, and no expense has been shared in their construction. Toronto papers before this have described at length their appearance, and it is only necessary to add that every detail has been carefully attended to. Their inspection was exceedingly rigorous. A large amount of material, already bought was discarded as not being up to the high standard required. They are many times the necessary strength. Quantities of steel have been used in important parts; and minor considerations, such as a foot way on either side, painting the whole structure, etc., have been thoroughly done.

THE ROAD ITSELF

and the country through which it passes bear so uniform a character that it will be unnecessary to do more than describe generally. The line is excellent. It has the appearance of thorough, enduring and perfectly finished road. The permanent way reminds one of settled British or United States lines. The company used gravel with lavish hand—in which nature apparently has aided them, to judge from the numerous points along the route from which it was obtainable—and, at all events between Toronto and Peterborough, no well nigh insuperable difficulty, such as that unfortunate sink hole on the Missing Link, has presented any cause for chagrin. The line, too, is remarkably smooth, as might be expected from the care shown in laying the track. One thing, however, was observed, the rails seem to have been laid rather too close to one another—longitudinally, that is. They were laid in winter and the absence of any intervals between them show that their expansion has been greater than allowed for. It is needless to say that this does not interfere at all with the the running.

THE STATIONS,

one and all, for they are built on the same plan, are most tasty little buildings. They are painted in two shades of rich, deep green which the spacious brownish red—light red, painters call it—roofs set off to advantage. Internally green is also used, of a very bright color. The upper part is used as a domicile. On the platform is an excellent improvement in the shape of a raised portion, running for some distance level with the floor of the baggage van—a great help to the rapid loading and unloading of luggage.

THE TRAINS

are already running regularly and easily, and attention is given to details. The bell is sounded and the whistle blown at every crossing; punctuality to a degree is practised; and everything is done in thorough business-like fashion; and but for the frightened horses and gaping rustics seen at every few miles there is nothing to show the infancy of this our new line—excepting, of course, the unfinished appearance of some of the stations, one or two of which have still to receive their coats of paint.

As to the time in which it takes to run between Toronto and Peterborough, it is at present a matter of less than three hours; but it was very evident that the pace is very leisurely; and doubtless before long when the whole line is opened and new time tables are issued we shall find this time lowered to little more than a couple of hours. As it is, it is delightful to start from Peterborough as late as a quarter past seven and to find oneself in Yonge street at ten minutes past ten, within a few minutes' walk of the tramway.

The line itself has been constructed in a way worthy of the great Canada Pacific Railway, of which it is a part, and will be an inestimable boon to Peterborough—not only to pleasure seekers, but to business men more particularly.

AN OLD TIMER.

Old Time Sports—Sir John A. Still a Survivor.

Ald. W. Wilson has received from Adolphustown the copy of an old bill which announced horse races in Kingston in 1840. The President of the Racing Association was John B. Marks; Vice-President, Dr. Sampson, and the Secretary J. M. Prior. The Stewards were: The Sheriff, John R. Forsyth, H. Sadleir, Wm. Wilson, J. Watkins, R. A. Armstrong, Thos. A. Corbett, J. A. Macdonald, H. Smith, Esq., Treasurer; Capt. Otway, R. A., Capt. Arthur, A. D. C., Hon. G. T. Devereux, R. A., Dr. Mackintosh, R. A., Capt. Matthews, 35th Regiment, Lieut. Kelly; 34th Regiment, Lieut. Menzies, R. E., Lieut. Woodhouse, 24th Regiment, G. Atkinson, Esq., Commissariat. Ald. Wilson says he thinks the only gentleman of those who is now alive is Sir John Macdonald. The races were as follows:—"The Town Plate" of £25, open to all horses bred in the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada; "The Merchant's Plate" of £30, open to all horses; and the Ladies' Purse of £15 with £10 added by the Governor-General. It is thought that an old resident had in his possession one of the old bills, printed in 1840, and that he got more struck off and sent some on to Kingston.—Kingston News.

Riel in Canada.

The correspondent of the Mail telegraphs as follows:—CLARK'S CROSSING, N.W.T., July 2.—Louis Riel arrived at Stobart, a settlement containing about six hundred half-breeds, forty miles from Prince Albert, yesterday. He came from Montana. Half-breeds from neighboring settlements are assembling there. Their object is not definitely known, but it is rumored that they intend to hold a convention and conference with Riel, as referred to in my last letter.

VALUE OF TRADE JOURNALS.

The continual multiplication and consequent cheapening of technical journals and papers with their enlarging circulation among the mechanics of this country afford a strong ground for earnest hope for their future. From the rarity of 50 years ago these journals have increased until to-day there is hardly, possibly not one, branch of mechanical industry that is not represented. Carpenters, masons, iron-workers, machinists, car-builders, painters, lumbermen and many others have them, and to them probably more than any other influence is due the great advancement in their several departments of industry. With the taste for reading there not only comes the supply, but, what is more to the point and of greater advantage, also the thought, the questioning of old methods and styles, and the inquiry, if that is best, but also study into the whys and wherefores of all work and processes of work with continual discoveries as to a betterment of the ideas of our fathers, and an improvement of the old plans, and with each discovery comes discussion and deeper inquiry, leading on to something still higher and better. Practical knowledge of any industrial pursuit is a good thing, but he who depends alone on the education of the shop, the bench, the forge or the laboratory, without a solid theoretical knowledge of all the means requisite to the desired end, and all the varied capabilities of the subject matter, the raw material, in hand, will find himself to be contented with the lowest position and smallest pay in the department in which he may work. Boys! apprentices, in any trade, study up all the points of your business if you wish to make successful mechanics. —Lumberman's Gazette.

Serious Bush Fire.

KINGSTON, July 1.—A terrible conflagration is in progress near Mississippi, about ten miles beyond Sharbot lake. A week ago fire was observed burning in the bush, but little attention was paid to it. Yesterday it developed into gigantic proportions, and rushed towards Peter McLaren's mills. Every effort was made to turn the flames in another direction, but all to no purpose, and this morning word came that the mill was in danger and asking that a fire engine be sent to help to keep the lumber wet. An engine and hose reel, with Engineer Burke and several firemen, left on a special train for the scene of the fire. The latest news this afternoon is that the flames are in the centre of McLaren's lumber and eating up large piles with lightning rapidity. The engine is playing on the mill, and a gang of men are removing the lumber so as to isolate the building and prevent it from being destroyed. The prospects are that the mill will not be saved, and with it $30,000 worth of lumber will be consumed. The mill is valued at $50,000. The news of the conflagration has caused excitement in the city, the heavens to the north of which are black with smoke. The operator at Mississippi sends in a message that in order to get from the mill to the station he had to encircle the fire and drive fully eight miles, else he would have been suffocated by smoke and heat. The roar of the flames can be heard for miles away. The bush in the vicinity of the fire is very thick, therefore there is no telling where the thing may end.

9 o'clock.—The wind has changed and now the flames are rushing towards the village. All the section men on the Kingston and Pembroke Railroad have gone to the fire. The mill is safe but the village may burn.

The Pan-Presbyterian Council.

BELFAST, July 1.—In the Pan-Presbyterian Council yesterday, papers were read on the qualifications of candidates, the state of theological teaching in France, the training of students in Presbyterianism as the best remedial agency for Ireland, and Ireland, its special difficulties, duties and claims.

There are lots of people going around grumbling, and half sick at the Stomach all the time; who might be well and happy if they only used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters occasionally. It is a splendid Blood Purifier. All Druggists, 50 cents.

NO QUACK.—Golden Fruit Bitters is no quack medicine, but a preparation scientifically compounded for the benefit of those who are troubled with Kidney or liver complaints; it is also a good tonic and appetizer. Sold by all druggists.

OH! how tired and weak I feel I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.
VALUABLE IN INDIGESTION.

Mr. Daniel T. Nelson, Chicago, says: "I find it a pleasant and valuable remedy in indigestion, particularly in overworked men."

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75c. we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by J. D. Tully.

The Quickest thing on Record

Is Fluid Lightning for neuralgia, headache, toothache, etc. It does not blister or discolor the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or carrying your head in a poultice for two weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from John McKee's druggist.

THE repeal of the pre-emption laws by the House of Representatives is causing great excitement in the North-West States, and energetic protests are being forwarded to Washington form all points.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D., New York City.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Swayne's ointment is a pleasant, cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt-Rheum, Scald-Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 4 for $1.25. Address, Dr. Swayne & Son., Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25 cts.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1 00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. D. Tully.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

CHAPTER XXI—CONTINUED.

Each word smote like pelting hailstones, and he saw all her loathing printed on her face.

"I have an engagement that may detain me beyond this hour, but, if I live, I will be as punctual as circumstances permit."

"If you tell Palma you have seen me, he must know everything, for Minnie has hired him to help her deceive you and the world, and all the while she has kept the truth from him."

She shuddered as he leaned toward her, and stepped back, she answered resolutely:

"Good-by my daughter."

He held out his hand.

She looked at him, and her lips writhed as she tried to contemplate for an instant, the bare possibility that, after all, he might be her parent. She forced herself to hold out her left hand which was gloved, but he had scarcely grasped her fingers, when she snatched them back, turned and darted away, while he called after her:

"This time to-morrow. Don't fail."

The glory of the world, and the light of her young life had suddenly been extinguished, and fearful spectres vague and manacing thronged the future.

At another time she would doubtless have heard and recognized a familiar step that followed her from the moment she quitted the square; but to-day, almost stupified, she hurried along the pavement, mechanically turning the corners, looking neither to right or left.

Fifth Avenue was a long way off, and it was late in the afternoon when she reached home, ang ran up to her own room, anxious to escape observation.

Hattie was arranging some towels on the wash-stand, and, turning round, exclaimed;

"Good gracious, Miss! You are as white as the coverlid on the bed! I guess something has happened?"

"I am not well. I am tired—so tired. Have they all come home?"

"Yes, and there will be company for dinner. Two gentlemen, Terry said. Are you going to wear that dress?"

"I don't want any dinner. If they ask for me tell Mrs. Palma I feel very badly, and that I beg she will excuse me. Where is Olga?"

"Busy trimming her overskirt with flowers. You know Mrs. Tarrant gives her ball to-night, and Miss Olga says she has saved herself—rested all day—to be fresh for it. Lou Lou has just come to dress her hair. What a pity you can't go too—you look quite old enough. Miss Olga has such a gay, splendid time."

"I do not want to go. I only wish I could lie down and sleep for ever. Shut the door, and ask them all please to let me alone this evening."

How the richness of the furniture and the elegance that prevailed throughout the house mocked the thread-bare raiment and poverty-stricken aspect of the man who threatened to drag her down to his own lower plane of life and association! Her innate pride and her cultivated fondness for all beautiful objects, rebelled at the picture which her imagination painted in such sombre hues, and with a bitter cry of shame and dread she bowed her head against the marble mantelpiece.

For many years she had known that some unfortunate cloud hung over her own and her mother's history, but faith in the latter and a perfect trust in the wisdom and goodness of Mr. Hargrove had encouraged her in every previous hour of disquiet and apprehension. Until to-day the positive and hideous ghoul of disgrace had never actually confronted her, and with the intuitive hopefulness of youth she had waved aside all forebodings, believing that at the proper time her mother would satisfactorily explain the necessity for the mystery of her conduct.

Was Mr. Lindsay acquainted with some terrible trouble that had threatened her when, in bidding her farewell, he said he would gladly shield her—were it possible—from trials that he foresaw would be her portion?

If she could only run away and go to India, where Mr. Lindsay would shield, pity and love her. How gratefully she thought of him at this juncture—how noble, tender and generous he had always been; what a haven of safety and rest his presence would be now!

Were he accessible she would unhesitatingly have sprung into his protecting arms, as any suffering young sister might have done, and, fully unburdening her soul, would have sought brotherly counsel; but in his absence to whom was it possible for her to turn?

To her guardian? As she thought of his fastidious over-weening pride—his haughty scorn of everything plebeian—his detestation of all that appertained to the ranks of the ill-bred—a keen pang of almost intolerable shame darted through her heart, and a burning tide surged over her cheeks, painting them fiery scarlet. Would he accord her the shelter of his roof were he aware of all that had occurred that day?

She started up, prompted by a sudden impulse to seek him and divulge everything; to ask how much was true, to demand that he send her at once to her mother.

Perhaps he could authoritatively deny that man's statements, and certainly he was far too prudent to assume guardianship of a girl whose real parentage was unknown to him.

Implicit confidence in his wisdom and friendship, and earnest gratitude for the grave kindness of his manner toward her since she became an inmate of his house, had gradually displaced the aversion and fear that formerly influenced her against him; and just now the only comfort she could extract from any quarter arose from the reflection that in every emergency Mr. Palma would protect her from harm and insult, until he could place her under her mother's care.

But if she were indeed the low-born girl that man had dared to assert,—and Mr. Palma should learn that he had been deceived,—how could she ever meet his coldly contemptuous eyes?

Some one tapped at the door, but she made no response, hoping that she might be considered asleep. Mrs. Palma came in, groping her way.

"Why have you not a light?"

"I did not need one. I only wanted to be quiet."

"Where are the matches?"

"On the mantelpiece."

Mrs. Palma lighted the gas, then came to the bed.

"Regina, are you ill, that you obstinately absent yourself when you know there is company to dinner?"

"I feel very badly indeed, and I hoped you would excuse me."

"Have you fever? You seemed very well when I parted from you, at Mrs. St. Clare's door."

"No fever, I think, but I felt unable to go down stairs. I shall be better to-morrow."

"Erle desired me to say that he wishes to see you this evening, and you must come down to the library about nine o'clock. He has gone to his office, and you know he will be displeased if you fail to obey him."

"Please Mrs. Palma,—tell him I am not able. Ask him to excuse me this evening. Intercede for me, will you not?"

"Oh! I never interfere when Erle gives an order. Beside, I shall not see him again before midnight. I am going with Olga to Mrs. Tarrant's, and must leave home quite early, because I promised to call for Melissa Gardner and chaperone her. Of course she will not be ready, young ladies never are—and we shall have to wait. It is only eight o'clock now,—and an hour's sleep will refresh you. I will direct Hattie to call you when your guardian comes in. Do you require any medicine? You do look very badly."

"Only rest, I think. Can't you persuade Mr. Palma to go to the party, or ball, or whatever it may be?"

"He has promised to drop in, towards the close of the evening and escort us home. Quite a compliment to Mrs. Tarrant, for Erle rarely deigns to honor such entertainments; but her husband is a prominent lawyer, and a college friend of Erle's. Good-night."

She went out, closing the door softly, and Regina felt more desolate than ever. Was Mr. Palma displeased, because she had gone visiting without waiting for his consent? If she had been more patient, might not this fearful discovery have been averted? Was her sorrow part of the wages of her disobedient haste?

What had become of her purse? How could she without suspicion obtain the money she had so positively promised?

WESTWOOD.

THE LICENSE LAW.—J. Fox, of Allandale, was charged by Mr. Charles O'Rielly, Dominion License Inspector for East Peterborough, with refusing to allow him to enter his premises. Mr. Fox was given no license this year, and it was said that liquor was sold at his place. The case came up before Mr. John Breakenridge, J.P., and Mr. H. Humphries, J.P., on Friday ad was enlarged until Wednesday, when the defendant was fined $10 and $11 costs.

PORT HOPE.

STOLEN PROPERTY.—A buggy and harness supposed to be stolen was recently found in the Cranberry Marsh by a man named George Rowden. He also noticed a large quantity of oats piled up against the fence, as if some place in the neighborhood had been burglarized.

A CLOSE CALL.—Isaac Little, a brakesman employed in the Midland Railway yard here, had a narrow escape from being cut to pieces, early on Monday morning. It appears as Little was putting on the brake on a lumber train which was in motion, the brake broke and threw Little on to the ties. He was dragged along a distance of about twenty cars when he managed to grasp hold of the brake beam on which he climbed up. His right arm and leg were severely lacerated and his shirt sleeve torn in ribbons. On looking round he saw the train he was on was about running into another timber train that was standing in the yard, and after considerable effort he managed to call the engineer's attention to the danger. Fortunately the train was stopped in time to prevent a collision and probably loss of life. Little thinks he had just about as close a call as he wants to experience.—Times.

HASTINGS.

SHEEP KILLED.—Mr. F. Birdsall lost twenty sheep, being worried by dogs, one night last week. Mr. H. Stephenson had a number worried the same night also.

A SLAUGHTER.—An east bound frieght train ran into a drove of cattle which had got on the track either through the fence being broken or gate left open, below Scott's crossing, killing eleven of them on Wednesday.

DROWNED.—The crew of the Isaac Butts says that as they were streaming down the lake late on Saturday evening, they saw an Indian, who was apparently drunk, struggling in the water and was drowned. Since the above was put in type we learn that the man's name was Paudash, from Hiawatha, and that the body was found a few hours after the occurence.

PERSONAL.—We have pleasure in congratulating our young friend Mr. H. P. Leader on his success at the recent examination at the Royal Military College, Kingston. Mr. Leader obtained the second highest mark (45441); was first in drill and exercise and second in mathematics, fortifications, geometrical drawing, and free-hand drawing.—Star.

DOGS vs. RAM.

John Barton, a farmer of Foster, R. I., near the Connecticut border, owns an extensive farm known as Bradford Place, on which he raises large flocks of sheep. For many months he and his neighbors have lost many sheep by a strange dog, who killed them at night. Almost daily in the morning two or more were found dead in their lots. At about two o'clock one morning a great clatter was heard in the sheep pens at Bartons, but it was not until two hours later that the howls of a dog brought the farm hands from their beds. Two or three men hurried down to the pens and found thirteen fine sheep mangled and dead near the fold. The noise of a desperate struggle was heard at a distance in the darkness. The men found a big Newfoundland dog and a powerful ram in combat. They had fought all around the pen, knocked down the fence, and in their alternate dashes and retreats had gone half a mile from the fold. The fight was in the open pasture, and it was impossible for the farmers to stop it. The struggle had lasted an hour, and both combatants were bleeding. As often as the dog fastened his jaws on the quarters of his enemy he was shaken off, and before he recovered was butted, rolled over, and jammed against the turf. The dog was thoroughly exhausted, and anxious to abandon the fight, but at the first movement to flee the ram fairly ran him down, and lifting him high on his horns, dropped him, trampled over his body, and then butted him. It was not until both animals had fallen with exhaustion that the conflict was ended. Two of the dogs ribs were broken and battered in, and his head was terribly mutilated. The ram was scarred and bloody.—Exchange.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

At Faucher's Restaurant,
Fresh Oysters received twice a week.

Not so Swift.

A typographical error in the item "The Swift Canoe," make our genial friend, Mr. Frank Dobbin, talk nonsense, which he does not often do. It was from Lakefield to the boat house that they came in two hours in the canoes.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for the district for the twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh winds, cloudy cooler weather, with showers and thunder-storms.

To the Ladies.

W. Fairweather & Co. will make a special offering of some rich and valuable goods left on hand of this season's importations, at great reductions for cash:—

3 Rich Brocaded Silk Mantles,
2 Rich Brocaded Satin Capes,
3 Rich Cashmere Dolmans,
7 Rich French Pattern Hats and Bonnets,
Ostrich Feathers and French Flowers at half price. Ladies would do well to call early at Fairweather & Co.'s Clearing Sale and see the inducements offering.

An Unexpected Visitor.

A brilliant meteor which—scientific men tell us—ought not to have come till August, "took time by the middle" (as Mrs. Carlyle used to say) and flashed across the sky on Thursday evening soon after eight o'clock. It apparently entered the earth's atmosphere near the zenith, and bursting with a very audible report made its way towards the north-west horizon, leaving a glorious parti-colored train behind it. A meteor of this size is a great rarity, especially so early in July, and but for the cloudy sky and the still existing twilight, would have made a truly magnificent spectacle.

Are You Interested?

As will be seen by advertisement in another column the Dry Goods firm of Messrs. Giroux and Sullivan have decided on reducing their very extensive stock of summer goods, and consequently have commenced a clearing out sale of the same. Silks, Dress Goods, Prints, Shirtings, Tweeds, White Cottons, Grey Cottons, Table Linens, Napkins, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Parasols, Umbrellas—in fact they are giving decided bargains in every department during the sale. Those who are interested will do well to call and make their purchases promptly.

Strawberry Festival.

A strawberry festival was held in the grounds of the George Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the ladies of the congregation. The grounds, which which were beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, are admirably adapted for such a purpose. There was a large attendance at the festival, and the Fire Brigade Band was present and rendered a good programme of music. Strawberries, lemonade, and all kinds of refreshments suitable for the occasion, were served on tables prepared for the purpose. A very sociable and pleasant time was enjoyed by all who attended, and the financial result was very satisfactory.

Peterborough Lodge I.O.O.F.

The officers of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., for the present term were installed at the regular meeting on Thursday evening by Bro. J. C. T. Lacey, as follows:—

Bodega.

Fine Spanish wines, Ports and Sherries drawn from the wood, at William Chamberlain's Restaurant.

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

FRIDAY, July 4.—John Harvey was charged by Constable Adams with having been drunk on the street on Thursday. Harvey had appeared in court three times on the same charge within a few days. The first time he was allowed to go, and the second and third time he paid $2 into the Court for his liberty. But between paying for liquor and paying fines his exchequer appeared to have been exhausted, and when this morning he was again fined $2 or ten days in gaol, he had to go to gaol.

A Fine Beverage.

Dowe's India Pale Ale, the best ale made in Canada, on draught at the Little Windsor Hotel, the proprietor of which is sole agent for Peterborough.

The Proper Fruit Jars.

Don't use the old-fashioned earthenware jars for your fruit, they are poisonous, and innumerable cases are on record where whole families have been poisoned by eating fruit put up in jars of this kind. Use Glass Self-sealing Jars—they are perfectly harmless, and the best place to buy them is at Adam Hall's Giant T. Store. A full line of White Enamelled and Granite-ware Preserving jars, all sizes, cheap.

A Runaway.

Mr. W. Mann's team of horses, attached to a waggon, ran away on Aylmer street this morning. They turned on Simcoe street, and followed it to Queen Street, when they sped across to Hunter street. Near the Temperance House they struck a lamp post, which stopped them. There was a pig in the waggon, which was tied by a front leg, and it hung over the rear of the vehicle. It had a very rough ride, but, in the language of a spectator, "it didn't say a word," although it was hurt badly. The box of the waggon was distributed along the streets, and the hind wheels and the pig were left at the corner of Queen street. The horses appeared to be uninjured, but the waggon was badly wrecked.

Pencil Points.

—Strong winds.

—One tramp and one prisoner in the cells last night.

—The next meeting of the Board of Health will be held on Tuesday evening.

—"I will meet you and walk around till we see the meteor," is what some say.

—A session of the Division Court is being held to-day. His Honor Judge Dennistoun presiding.

—The baseball match on Monday, between the Peterboroughs and Silver Stars, will commence at 3 o'clock.

—Owing to other engagements the Fire Brigade Band cannot play out to-night. The City Band, however, not having played out this week, will take its place and give an open air concert in the Park, weather permitting.

Teachers' Examinations.

The teachers' examinations for third class certificates will commence at 9 o'clock on Monday forenoon next. The following is the time table to be used at the examinations:—Monday—9 to 11 a.m., English literature; 1 to 2.30 p.m., algebra; 2.35 to 4.05, geography; 4.10 to 5.40, chemistry. Tuesday—9 to 11 a.m., English grammar; 11.05 to 12.35, history; 1.30 to 3.30 p.m., euclid; 3.35 to 5.05, natural philosophy. Wednesday—9 to 11 a.m., arithmetic; 11.30 to 12, mental arithmetic; 1 to 2 p.m., composition; 2.05 to 2.35, dictation; 2.40 to 3.40, drawing. Thursday—8.30 to 8.55 a.m. writing; 9 to 11.30, Latin; 11.35 to 12.35, botany; 1.30 to 3.30 p.m., French; 3.35 to 4.35, music. Friday—8.30 to 10 a.m., Latin; 10.05 to 12.05, German. The second class examinations will commence at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, July 9th, and the above time table will be used until Friday afternoon, after which date additional second class papers will be provided.

Personal.

Mr. Chas. W. Ewing, who has been enjoying a holiday trip to Quebec and other places, returned to town to-day.

Despite the meagerness of the account in the Toronto papers of the class lists containing the names of the successful candidates in the recent examinations in arts before the University of Trinity College, Toronto, we are pleased to find Mr. C. B. Beck as usual distinguishing himself. Mr. Beck has been awarded the scholarship for science, and has won honours in the Previous Examination.

Mr. W. J. Rogers also has been adding to laurels. He obtained first class in the Previous Examination and was awarded the prize for history.

Mr. Evan MacColl, of Kingston, whose poetical works, "the Mountain Minstrel, or Prems and Sings of Early Life," and "Clarsach nam Beann," poems and songs in Gaelic, have been widely read by Scotchmen, and whose Canadian songs and sonnets have pleased many a native of this country, is visiting the town this week, renewing acquaintances made during a former visit four years ago.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found its profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

Truth Bible Competition

NO. ELEVEN.

THE FINAL ONE!

Closing September 15th.

A NEW PLAN.

For Persons Residing Anywhere in the World Outside the City of Toronto.

The Largest List, and Most Valuable Ever Offered by any Publisher.

RESIDENTS OF TORONTO INADMISSABLE.

A SMALL FARM FREE.

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER!

Four Pianos, Three Organs, Silver Tea Sets, Sewing Machines, Gold Watches, Silver Watches, and Innumerable other Valuable Rewards.

DON'T DELAY SENDING IN YOUR ANSWERS.

At the solicitation of many friends Truth announces one more—the final—Bible competition. Owing to the fact of so many valuable rewards going to citizens of Toronto, this competition will be open only to persons living outside the city of Toronto. Any one residing in any other part of the habitable world will be eligible to compete for these magnificent rewards. The questions—which are supplied by an eminent Presbyterian minister—are very difficult, but the rewards are valuable. We hope the publisher of Truth will meet with the success his enterprise so richly merits. Everything he has offered in previous Bible Competitions has been promptly and cheerfully handed over to the successful ones the moment they are known. We most heartily commend the paper to our readers. They will find it all it is represented to be. Full and complete lists of all those who gain rewards are given in Truth the week following the close of each competition. There will be no chance, and no postponement in any way; everything will be carried out exactly as stated.

HERE ARE THE QUESTIONS.

1.—Where is Gold first made mention of in the Bible?

2.—Where does it first state in the Bible that there was only one language and one speech on the whole earth?

3.—When is Inn first referred to in the Bible? by the word inn is meant a place of rest and refreshment, commonly known now as an hotel).

Everyone competing must send one dollar with their answers, for six months' subscription to Truth. And aside from the rewards themselves they will find that they have made the best investment of one dollar they ever did. Truth is full and big value for the money. Bear in mind that you pay nothing extra for the privilege of competing for these costly rewards, as you will get Truth for six months in any case for your one dollar, which is the regular subscription price, and will also get one of these rewards, provided you answers are correct, and reach Truth office in time. Don't delay.

The land mentioned above could be divided up into building lots and sold to great advantage, as there are no vacant houses in the town of Clifton or Niagara Falls, as it is now called. Then, that even the last ones may not feel that they are to be left out, Truth will give a series of

CONSOLATION REWARDS.

| 312 to 401.—Ninety Solid Triple Silver-plated Butter Knives | 90 00 |

The further you live from Toronto the better you can compete for these last or consolation rewards. Bear in mind that it is the last correct answer received at the office of Truth that gets number one in these consolation rewards. The offer is open only to the 15th September, and as long as your letter bears the post mark, where mailed, of the date of 15th September, it will take its place in the order received at Truth office. Fifteen days after date of closing will be allowed for letters from distant points to reach Toronto, but don't forget your letter must not bear a later post mark than September 15. All competing must send with their answers one dollar for six months' subscription to Truth, which will be sent to any desired address for the twelve months. Wherever you live, outside Toronto, you can compete at any time between now and the closing day for either the first or middle rewards, and as well as, of course, for the consolation rewards. Some one will get those five acres of land—why not you? Look up your Bible now, and see if you can find the answers to these questions. It will do you good, apart from the opportunity you have of obtaing a valuable reward in addition to Truth,

SPECIAL CLUB OFFER.

If twenty-five persons join and send $50 each one of the twenty-five whose answers are correct will get their choice of a solid rolled gold brooch, new and elegant design, worth at retail two dollars; a Chambers' Etymological Dictionary, worth about same amount; a World's Universal Cyclopædia, or a volume elegantly bound of Shakespeare's Complete Works. Of course, each of the club will have the same opportunity of gaining one of the rewards in the regular list (in addition to the certainty of one of the prizes aforesaid), as though they had sent in singly. This is simply an extra inducement to clubs.

The rewards in last competition were very widely scattered over Ontario and Quebec. In fact every Province was represented in the last, not excepting British Columbia. A great many also went to the States.

No information will be given any one beyond what has above been stated. So don't waste time by waiting, but send in your answers and money now. If you happen to be too late for the first, you may be fortunate enough to obtain a middle reward, and that is where the biggest ones are. Truth directs special attention to the fact that clergymen are not permitted to compete, neither are persons who in previous competitions won prizes exceeding one hundred dollars in value. This we think exceedingly fair, and as no Torontonians are allowed to compete, the field is now open for a fair and square race for these rewards to any one, as Truth says, on the habitable globe, outside Toronto. No money will be received by telegraph or in any way but through the post-office or by express. One dollar only required. Try your skill. You are sure of good value for your money anyway. Address S. Frank Wilson, Truth office, 33 and 35 Adelaide street, Toronto, Canada.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

FRANCE AND CHINA.

M. FERRY SPEAKS.

PARIS, July 3.—In the Cabinet to-day, M. Ferry stated that the Chinese Foreign Board did not disavow the action of the Chinese regulars at Langson. The Board admitted that the Chinese army had obeyed orders to retain possession of the city, though this was contrary to the second article of the recent Franco-Chinese treaty, which provided for the immediate withdrawal of the Chinese garrisons. China, however, contended that the evacuation of the frontier towns was conditional upon the signature of a definitive treaty. China also refused to recognize the stipulations agreed upon by Li Hung Chang and Captain Fournier for the evacuation of Langson, Cao Bang and Lao Kay, between June 6th and 26th. The French Minister to China, who has been negotiating the treaty with the King of Annam, has been ordered to go to Pekin immediately, and maintain the rights of France.

WAR TO BE DECLARED.

In the event of China refusing redress for the action of her troops at Langson, France will immediately declare war. Active preparations are being made for reinforcements to leave France for the East.

A Fine Beverage.

The A. C. A. Camp.

The Ottawa canoemen seem determined to turn out in force at the annual camp of the A. C. A. on the Thousand Islands in August, the interest they feel being shown in the following extract from the Ottawa Citizen:—

"His Excellency the Governor-General has graciously assented to act as patron of the Ottawa Canoe Club. The club are endeavoring to persuade their patron to accompany them to Grindstone Island this summer. The American Canoe Association, with nearly 500 members, will probably invite His Excellency to their meet either as a guest or as a patron jointly with the President of the United States. It is proposed to light the Ottawa Canoe Club camp fire on Tuesday. The purposes of this camp are to exhibit actual samples of the canoes now used, with their appurtenances, camp outfit, &c., to describe the various models and rigs, and explain their respective advantages; to point out the æsthetic delights of the manly sport of canoeing, its importance as a physical exercise, and its claim to the title of the first of all Canadian summer sports. The programme of this meeting will contain nautical songs, naval readings, an exhibition of canoes, tents, camp kitchens, &c., and will conclude with a lecture on war ships, merchant vessels, yachts, and canoes, illustrated by 45 lanthorn views specially prepared for the occasion. The members will at once issue their invitations."

It is to be hoped that Peterborough, with its large membership, and after its successful meeting last year, will not be backward, but will be well represented in camp between August 1st and 15th.

See those beautiful Chenille Capes, just the thing for wearing without a mantle, at Turnbull's.

The Port Perry Fire.

PORT PERRY, July 4.—About half-past twelve Friday morning a fire broke out in the stables of the Mansion house, and in three hours every business establishment in the heart of the village was a smouldering ruin, not one mercantile establishment being left. To-day not even a paper of pins can be purchased in the village. The fire spread from the place of starting in every direction, north to Corrigan's stores on on Queen street, thence east to Water street, and west two blocks south and west, taking in Mary and Perry streets, the latter on both sides. On Queen street it crossed to the north, taking McGaw's temporary hotel built on the ruins of the fire of November last, sweeping west to John street and north to North street. When day dawned not a wall was left standing in the area traversed by the flames.

It is impossible at this time to estimate the losses; they are put at not less than a quarter of a million. All the corporation documents were destroyed. The insurance may reach half the amount of the loss.

Merchants are very despondent. Clerks are thrown out of their situations, there not being a single building left in which any merchant can re-establish his business. A steady rain is falling, and this prosperous little place is a picture of desolation. Perhaps the worst feature of the matter is that the fire is commonly reputed to be the work of an incendiary. It commenced in the hay loft of the Mansion House hotel.

Ross Defeated.

PEMBROKE, July 3.—The three mile scull race at this place this evening between Harry McDonald, of Ottawa, champion of Eastern Ontario, and Edward Ross, of St. John, N.B., brother of Wallace Ross, was won by the former. It was very closely contested all through and McDonald won by about two boat lengths. Ross happened with a slight accident.

New Telegraph Line.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The certificate of incorporation of the Drawbaugh Telephone and Telegraph Company of Canada was filed to day. Capital stock, $1,000,000. The lines are to run from here to Albany, Buffalo, Windsor, Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal, and from Albany to Rouse's Point, New York.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

NATIONAL ARTILLERY SOCIETY.

LONDON, July 4.—A third appeal has been made by the President of the National Artillery Society for funds to enable the society to accept an indivation to visit Canada in September. TOULON, July 4.—The death of a well-known millionaire from cholera to-day created intense excitement and consternation, and caused the immediate flight of 6,000 people from the city. Yesterday an entire family fled in such haste that they did not even close the doors of their residence, leaving all their possessions unguarded. We must hope that Pekin will again bow to the inevitable and yield this time without reserve.

AMERICAN.

THE CHOLERA IN ERANCE.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The U.S. consul at Marseilles telegraphs:—The situation is worse at Toulon than reported. The deaths average ten daily. There were thirteen yesterday which were conceded to be Asiatic cholera. The epidemic is stationary at Marseilles. There were six deaths on Friday, eight on Saturday, four on Sunday, and five on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Some of these cases are apparently Asiatic, but the remainder are infantum or sporadic. There are twelve cases at the special hospital. Many thousands have left for the interior. The steamer Burgundia sailed for New York on Sunday without passengers. No emigrants to the States are reported.

The Whistling Nuisance.

The Globe of the 5th contains the following:—It will be remembered that some time ago the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to whom was referred the question of suppressing the whistling nuisance in this city, gave the companies one month in which to make satisfactory arrangements among themselves. It is understood that a friendly agreement has been reached by which the railway companies will for the future cease using whistles while in the city limits except in cases where danger to human life exists. The agreement is made on condition that the prohibition refers to steamers and other lake crafts with the same provision. This is understood to be the arrangement that would have been suggested by the Railway Committee in case of the failure of negotiations, and will in all probability be accepted by the city as a fair and reasonable solution of the difficulty.

SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1884.

SENSITIVE REVOLUTIONISTS.

THE success of the U. E. Loyalist demonstration, which formed part of Toronto's Semi-Centennial celebration, and the applause which greeted the loyal speeches of the descendants of those that left their old home that in Canada they might remain under the British flag, could not have afforded much encouragement to those who are advocating independence or annexation or anything in fact so that it includes disruption. The party that is looking for a policy will hardly achieve success by adopting disruption as their cry.

The loyal descendants of the U. E. Loyalists, because they referred very naturally to the facility of their ancestors and to the glory of the Empire of which Canadians are proud to form part, and from which they have no wish to sever are being taken to task by the little knot of advocates for secession. It seemed that according to these would-be revolutionists it is partizan and objectionable to make loyal speeches because they are disagreeable to secessionists, but that it is highly meritorious for the sprinkling of secessionists to clamour for independence, while thereby offending the great bulk of the people of Canada, who have no inclination to dabble with treason.

Another line of criticism adopted by these very sensitive advocates of revolution, is that there would be visitors from the United States in Toronto whose feelings might be hurt by any loyal speeches. It is not so long ago that in the States they held a series of Centennial celebrations at which there were many invited visitors from the Three Kingdoms, Canada and other parts of the British Empire. We are not aware that the hosts thought it necessary to omit all reference to the exploits of their ancestors, or that the visitors were foolish enough to take offence at their self-glorification, so natural under the circumstances. The visitors from the States at Toronto were no doubt equally reasonable. But the dabblers in cheap treason seem to wish to have all the talk to themselves without any reply.

AN OVERSIGHT.

MR. BOSTON O'BRIEN, who it will be remembered was concerned with Messrs. Pardee, Patullo, Hardy, Burden, and others, in procuring the fraudulent and corrupt return of Mr. Lyon for Algoma, is unfortunately in trouble, as has already been the case with other members of the gang. He is "wanted" for appropriating some money which the owner was rash enough to leave in his neighborhood. It was a great oversight on the part of those of the party who have seats in the Ottawa Legislature that when by the notorious Whitewashing Act they relieved themselves and their friends from the penalties for robbing the people of Algoma of their votes, they did not extend this immunity to the robbery of money. Such a precaution might have prevented their ranks from being inconveniently thinned.

THE GREAT REACTION.

FOLLOWING closely upon the recent election of a Conservative for Cumberland, we have the election of another Conservative candidate in the same Province, Mr. H. F. McDougall, elected for Cape Breton by a large majority over his Reform opponent. We hear very frequently from Reformers of a supposed Reform re-action, and especially of the hostility of the Maritime Provinces to the Macdonald Administration. But when an appeal is made to the people they are prompt in sustaining their chosen rulers. The people of Canada know when they are well off, and abide by their choice.

English Patents and Canadian.

According to the new English patent law, specifications of patents are to be published in blue-book form, which is to be offered for sale before the patent is granted. Engineering condemns the new arrangement as likely to afford opportunities to unscrupulous persons who would not be slow to avail themselves of their advantage. We, however, do not share the pessimistic views of the journal mentioned. Referring to our own country we are sure that a good many suits for infringement on patents would never have arisen if the Ottawa Patent Office had similar regulations in force.—Ex.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents a week.

MR. CARNEGIE'S REPLY.

The following letter and the article attached speak for themselves :—

PETERBOROUGH, June 2nd, 1884.

Henry C. Hamilton, Esq., Clerk of the Bribery Commission, Toronto :

SIR,—In consequence of the attached article appearing in the Port Hope Guide of the 21st ult., I hereby notify you that I desire to be called as a witness before the Bribery Commission, announced to meet in Toronto on the 14th inst., for the purpose of answering, under oath, the Guide's questions, and such other questions as the Commission may deem pertinent to the enquiry.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN CARNEGIE.

"MR. CARNEGIE, M.P.P.

"The REVIEW is very much excited anent the Royal Commission that has been issued to investigate the attempts to purchase Meredith into power in Ontario. It still grinds out the old tune that the conspiracy was really the handiwork of Hon. Mr. Mowat, and that this mysterious man "Lynch," who changed the thousand dollar bills in company with John Shields, was really the confidante of the Ontario Premier. It may as well be known that the REVIEW is published in the interest, and we believe by, Mr. Carnegie, M.P.P. for West Peterborough. The REVIEW will probably hear enough about "Lynch" before the investigation concludes. In the meantime we would suggest to Mr. Carnegie to cease such brazen hypocrisy and answer the following questions : Who drew up the "Round Robin," for the government supporters to sign? Who met Wilkinson, Meek, Bunting and "Lynch" at noon in the Queen's Hotel on the day that the crypso was made in the House? Who got Kirkland a front seat in the speaker's gallery, where he could witness the downfall of the Government? Who despatched a messenger to tell "Lynch" of the arrests of Kirkland and Wilkinson? Who assisted in hiding H. H. Smith until the Committee of Privileges and Elections had reported to the House, lest he should be called as a witness? Who skulked around the House shaking in his shoes for fear his damaging telegrams would be produced? Mr. John Carnegie had better take the box like a man and tell what he knows about the conspiracy. He need not think people are fools."

PORT HOPE.

SUICIDE.—On Thursday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, the body of a young man named Thos. Badger, aged 21 years, was found hanging by the neck, dead, in a barn on the premises of Mr. James Little, in the 7th concession of Hope. It appears that Badger had proceeded about the matter in a leisurely, though determined manner, taking to the barn an inch rope, which he tied into a slip noose and placed around his neck, throwing the other end over a beam, and having fastened it, launched himself into eternity by swinging himself from the edge of the granary. The young man has the reputation of being steady and industrious, and no sufficient reason can be assigned why he should have been tempted to take his life. One reason given is that he was temporarily insane through injuries received during a fight at Rice Lake some three weeks ago; others say that a woman is concerned in the affair—a young lady to whom he was engaged to be married having given him the "mitten." The deceased was in Port Hope on Dominion Day enjoying the days' sport, remaining to the dance at night. Dr. R. A. Corbett, coroner, was notified, but we understand did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest, considering the circumstances of the case. —Guide.

CAMPBELLFORD.

AN ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening of last week as Robt. Langford and John Brown, two High School students, were engaged in wrestling, they fell heavily, Mr. Langford underneath, and breaking his collar bone. Dr. Goldsmith was called in and set the broken bone.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Messrs. J. M. Ferris & Co.'s new brick block promises to be a handsome and substantial structure. It is to be three stories high. The dry goods portion will run through one half of the ground floor, facing on Bridge street. The post-office will open on Front street, as will also the grocery store. A separate store will corner on Front and Bridge streets. The millinery and tailoring departments will be in the rooms above the stores. Offices for legal and other gentlemen are also in the upper portion of the building. Mr. Cogan's new block is going up as fast as it can be constructed. The walls are of cement, and promise to be of great durability. When finished this will fill up an unsightly gap on Front street, and add to the material wealth of our village.—Herald.

Some very nice Black Silk Mitts, pure silk and hand-made, at Turnbull's.

GARDEN HILL.

DARING BURGLARY.—Some time on Thursday night the store of Mr. James Dyer at Garden Hill, was entered by burglars. The thieves gained access to the building by spring a shutter bar and removing one of the wooden shutters, then taking the putty from the glass and removing an 18 by 20 pane, which was found unbroken, crefully stood up against the front of the shop. The burglars, after removing the glass, had, apparently, reached in through the window and took out a quantity of lace, together with other goods of value, and placed them carelessly in a box outside—out of their way. After getting in through the window, the contents of the store had been thoroughly ransacked, the counter being found piled high with every class of goods promiscuously tumbled together. About $20 in small change was taken. On account of the confused state the stock was left in it will be impossible at the present writing to give the real value of the goods removed. —Guide.

MIDLAND.

WOOD BURNED.—A quantity of wood along the track of the Midland Railway has been destroyed by fire.

COWS KILLED.—Two fine cows, one belonging to Geo. Osborne and the other to Jas. Brown, were killed on the Midland track on Thursday. The company's fences are in a very bad condition, and the municipal authorities should see that they are compelled to put them in proper repair.

STABBED.—A young fellow named Richardson was stabbed by a sailor at the Commercial Hotel Thursday night. Richardson laid information before the magistrate and a warrant was issued for the arrest of the sailor. After the arrest of the sailor we are told that Richardson received money, not to appear to prosecute, and the sailor escaped. It is a pity an example cannot be made of Richardson. If he was at all a party of the row, he should be brought up and fined.—Free Press.

COBOURG.

ACCIDENT ON THE C.P. & M. RAILWAY.—On Monday, some mischievous fellows turned the switch on the C.P. & M. Railway, near the Model School; and the consequence was that the out-going train at noon ran off the track. The damage was not of much account, but the train was delayed all afternoon.—World.

WHY POTATO EXPERIMENTS DIFFER.

We have a great variety of experiments with seed potatoes from experiment stations, model farms, and amateur farmers, showing the great advantage of large and small potatoes, seed-end and stem-end, whole seed and cut, eyes with much flesh, and mere parings; leading the reader to contradictory conclusions, and making of the seed question a muddle. In many cases the story is half told, and the factors in the case, aside from the particular treatment of the seed, are overlooked. The condition of the soil; fine or lumpy, rich or poor, the character of the season, wet or dry; the cultivation, little or much, have quite as much to do with the success of the crop, as the seed. The contradictory results so often reached by intelligent and fair-minded men, emphasize the great importance of a thorough preparation of the soil, making it well pulverized, well manured, and well drained. Maximum crops, three hundred to five hundred bushels to the acre, can only be had where there is thorough preparation and suitable tillage, until the vines are in blossom. The average yield of potatoes in many farming districts with any treatment of seed is not much over a hundred, if it equals it.—American Agriculturalist.

Not to be Wondered At.

Mr. Blake now tells us, after ten years' cogitating over the matter, that "it was not to be wondered at that the people wanted a change, for, like invalids, tired of every position"—that is to say, tired of blundering, tired of deficits, tired of the ever increasing down ward tendency of affairs, "any change was desirable." That is an apt description of affairs as they existed in 1878. The country was sick, not suddenly overtaken, but oppressed with ailments of gradual growth and several years' standing—the asthma of discredit, the constipation of money and business, the tainting spells of the public revenues—and "like invalids," they wanted a change. They could get no relief from the Blakes, Cartwright's, Mackenzies and Charltons, they despaired of being brought round by the peculiar physic of that party, but they cried out as Mr. Blake reminds us, in the words of Sir John, "all the rivers and hills were crying, John A., come over and help us." Well John A. did come, and the remedies which his party have applied have been in every way salutary. The country is in good health again, as good as ever it was; and by this time most people have come to discriminate between the skilled physicians and those who are merely quacks and pretenders.—London Free Press.

A Bright Spot in a Dingy Street.

Business took us, a few days ago, throug one of these streets in New York city that one never visits unless from necessity. It is a crowded throughfare where more than one half of the shops are beer saloons and gin mills, and the others devoted to junk dealing and small trades. The upper part of the houses are crowded tenements. One of the dingiest of the buildings retained as a relic of former prosperity, a narrow iron balcony, running across the whole building, at the windows of the second floor. The balcony was occupied by a box for its whole length, perhaps twelve feet long and about a foot wide and high. The box had been filled with soil, upon which grass seed has been sown, and the and there were three young trees of the Ailanthus, one in the middle and one at each end, forming, with the fresh green of the grass and the tropical foliage of the Ailanthus, as pretty a piece of "sub tropical gardening" as could be imagined. This green spot brightened up the street for a long distance, and afforded the eye a refreshing rest, after gazing upon the displays of the second hand clothing stores. Whoever instituted that window box is a public benefactor, and we thank him for the refreshing glimpse of balcony gardening he afforded us.—American Agriculturalist.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

The rang the bell, and sent Hattie to request Farley to examine the carriage, and see if she had not dropped her porte-monnaie into some of its crevices. It was a long time before the servant returned, alleging in excuse that she had been detained to assist in dressing Miss Olga. Farley had searched everywhere, and could not find the purse.

Hattie hurried away to Mrs. Palma, and Regina unlocked a small drawer of her bureau, and took out what remained of her semi-annual allowance of pocket money. She counted it carefully, but found only thirteen dollars.

If she could have recovered her porte-monnaie she would have had twenty dollars to offer, and even that seemed mockingly insufficient,—as the price of silence, of temporary escape from humiliation.

What could she do? She had never asked a cent form her guardian, and the necessity of appealing to him, was inexpressibly mortifying; but to whom could she apply?

"But Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these—society tiger lilies."

The door was swung open, and as she spoke Olga seemed to swim into the room, so quick yet noiseless was her entrance.

At the sound of her voice, Regina dropped the money back into the drawer, and returned to inspect the elegant toilette.

"Beautiful, Olga;—beautiful."

"The textile fabrics,—the silk and lace? Or the human framework, the flesh and blood machine that serves as lay figure to show off the statuesque folds,—the creamy waves of costly Mechlin,—the Persian roses,—and expensive pebbles?"

"Both. The dress and the wearer. I never saw you look so well."

"Thanks. Behold the result of the morning's self denial,—of a day passed quietly in bed,—with only the companionship of pillows and dreams. I was forced to choose between Mrs. St. Clare's 'Lunch,' and Mrs. Tarrant's 'Crush,'—not that I love Cæsar less, but that I love Rome more;—and the success of my strategy is brilliant.

Just now, Mamma gave me the delightful intelligence that having been informed of my intention to trade myself off for stocks and brownstone-fronts, her very distinguished and magnanimous stepson signified his approbation by announcing his determination to settle ten thousand dollars on this Lucretia Borgia head, upon the day when it wears a bridal veil."

Regina readily perceived that she adopted this method of ignoring the casual meeting in East——Street, and resolved to tacitly accept the cue; but before she could frame a reply, Olga hurried on:

"Were you really sick and unable to dine, or are you practising the first step—the initial measure of that policy system so cordially commended to your favourable regard? You missed an unusually good dinner. But when your chair remained vacant, your guardian darkened like a thunder-cloud in an August sky, and Roscoe—poor Elliott Roscoe—looked precisely as I imagine a hungry wolf feels, when, crouching to catch a tender ewe lamb, he finds that the watchful shepherd has safely locked it in fold. Evidently he believes that you and Erle Palma have conspired to starve him out, and really he is ludicrously irate. What have you done to render him so unmanageable?"

"I have not seen Mr. Roscoe for a week."

"Certainly he has seen you in much less time—he imagines as recently as this afternoon; but appearances are desperately deceitful, and our fancy often manufactures likenesses. Shall I tell Elliott that he was dreaming, and did not see you?"

"I have no message for him. That he may have seen me some time to-day, walking upon the street is quite possible, but certainly of no consequence. Your bracelet has become unfastened.,"

She bent down to clasp the topaz crescent, and Olga laid her hand on the girl's shoulder.

"Something pains you very much, and your face has not yet learned the great feminine art of masking misery in smiles, and burying it in dimples. Yes, Mamma! quite ready, and coming. Go to sleep, snow-drop, and dream that you are like me, a topazbedizened odalisque swimming in sunshine."

She stooped, kissed the girl softly on both cheeks, and looked tenderly, pityingly at her; then suddenly gathered her close to her heart, holding her there an instant, as if to shelter her from some impending storm.

"If you love your mother, and she loves you, run away now and join her, before the chains are tightened. Your guardian is setting snares. Little white rabbit, flee for your life, while escape is possible."

She floated away like some dazzling gilded cloud, and a moment later, her peculiarly light merry laugh rang through the hall below, as she ran down to join her mother.

CHAPTER XXI.

Unable to throw off the load of painful apprehension that weighed so heavily on her heart, Regina derived some consolation from the reflection that she was entirely alone in the house, and could at least escape scrutiny and curious criticism; for she hoped that Mr. Palma, forgetting her, would go directly from his office to Mrs. Tarrant's—allowing her a reprieve until morning.

A few days subsequent to the Sunday afternoon on which her guardian had so unexpectedly accompanied her to church, she had been pleasantly surprised by finding in the library a handsome Mason & Hamlin parlor organ; on which lay a slip of paper, expressing Mr. Palma's desire that she would consider it exclusively hers and sometimes play upon it for him.

To-night the thought of the organ brought dear and comforting memories, and feeling quite secure from intrusion she went down to the library. As usual the room was bright and comfortable as gas and anthracite could make it, and failing to observe a sudden movement of the curtains hanging over the recess behind the writing-desk, Regina entered, closed the door and walked up to the glowing grate.

Beneath her mother's portrait, sat the customary floral offering, which on this occasion, consisted of double white and blue violets—and standing awhile on the earth, the girl gazed up at the picture with mournful longing tenderness. Could that proud lovely face ever have owned as husband, the coarser, meaner, and degraded clay, who that afternoon had dared with sacrilegious presumption to speak of her as "Minnie"?

What was the mystery—and upon whom must rest the blame—possibly the life-long shame?

Turning away, she opened the organ, drew out the stops, and began to play.

As the soft though sacredly solemn strains rolled through the long room, hallowed associations of the old Parsonage life floated up, clustering like familiar faces around her. Once more she heard the cooing of ring doves in the honeysuckle, and the loved voices—now silent in death—or far away among the palms of India.

"Cast thy burden on the Lord," had been one of their favorite selections at V——, and now hoping for comfort, she sang it.

It was the first time she had attempted it since the evening before the storm, when Mr. Lindsay had sung it with her, while Mr. Hargrove softly hummed the base, as he walked up and down the verandah, with his arm on his sister's shoulder.

How many holy memories rushed like a flood over her heart and soul, burying for a time the bitter experience of to-day!

Unable to conclude the song, she leaned back in her chair, and gave way to the tears that rolled swiftly down her cheeks.

So wan and hopeless was her face, that Mr. Palma, watching her from the curtained alcove came quickly forward.

He was elegantly dressed in full evening toilette, and throwing his white gloves on the table, approached his ward.

At sight of him she started up, and hastily wiped away the tears that obstinately dripped, despite her efforts.

"Oh, Sir! I hoped you would forget to come home, and would go to Mrs. Tarrant's. I did not know that you were in the house."

"I never forget my duties, and though I am going to Mrs. Tarrant's after awhile, I attend to business before pleasure;—it has been my life-long habit."

"I wish to ask you a few questions. Was it actually bodily sickness, physical pain—that kept you in your room during dinner, at which I particularly desired your attendance?"

"I cannot say that it was."

"You had no fever, no head-ache, no fainting-spell?"

"No, Sir."

"Then why did you absent yourself?"

"I felt unhappy, and shrank from seeing any one; especially strange guests."

"You feared my displeasure, knowing I had cause to feel offended, when making a pretence of deterring to my wishes, you hurried away from my office just as I was returning to it? Why did you not wait?"

"I was afraid you would refuse your permission, and I wanted very much to go to Mrs. Mason's."

"Regina, what is the matter?"

She did not reply; and bending towards her he said in a low, winning voice, entirely unlike his usual tone:

"'Lily, trust your guardian."

Looking into his brilliant eyes she felt tempted to tell him all, to repose implicitly upon his wisdom and guidance, but the image of Peleg Peterson rose like a hideous warning spectre.

Readily interpreting the varying expression of a countenance which he had so long and carefully studied, he continued:

"You wish to tell me frankly—but you shrink from the ordeal. Lily, what have you done, that you blush to confess to me?"

"Nothing, Sir."

"Why, then, do you hesitate?"

"Because other persons are involved. Oh, Mr. Palma! I am very unhappy."

She clasped her hands and bowed her chin upon them, a peculiar position into which sorrow always drove her.

"I inferred as much from your manner while at the organ. I am very sorry that my house is not a happy home for my ward. Have you been subjected to any annoyances from the members of my household?"

"None whatever. All are kind and considerate. Oh, Sir, do help me to go to my mother."

His smile froze;—his face hardened; and he led her to a low sofa capable of seating only two persons, and drawn near the fire.

"Madame Orme does not want her daughter, just yet."

"But I want my mother. Oh, I must go!"

He took both her hands as they lay folded on her lap, opened the clenched fingers,—clasping them softly in his own, so white and shapely,—and his black eyes glittered:

"Am I cruel and harsh to my Lily, that she is so anxious to run away from her guardian?"

"No Sir—oh no! Kind and very good,—consulting what you consider my welfare in all things. But you can't take mother's place in my heart."

"I assure you, little girl, I do not want your mother's place."

Something peculiar in his tone arrested her attention, and lifting her large lovely eyes she met his searching gaze.

"That is right, keep your eyes so, steadily fixed on mine, while I discharge a rather delicate and embarrassing duty, which sometimes devolves upon the grim guardians of pretty young ladies. In your mother's absence I am supposed to occupy a quasi parental position toward you, and am the authorized custodian of your secrets,—should you, like most persons of your age, chance to possess any.

Mr. Roscoe informs me that he desires an interview with you to-morrow, for the purpose of offering you his heart and hand,—and while protesting on the ground of your youth, I have promised to communicate his wishes to you, and should he be favourably received, write to your mother at once."

Perplexed and confused, she had not fully comprehended the purpose until he had uttered the closing sentence,—and painful astonishment kept her silent,—while as if spellbound her gaze met his.

"Now it remains for you to answer one question. Should your mother give her consent, does Miss Regina Orme intend to become my cousin?"

"Oh never! You distress me; you ought not to talk to me of such things. I am so young, you know mother would not approve of it."

She blushed scarlet, and attempted to withdraw her hands, but found it impossible.

"Quite true, and, if crazy young gentlemen could be prevailed upon to keep silent,—rest assured I should never have broached a subject which I regard as premature. As you fully resolved that I shall never be related to you except as your guardian?"

"Yes sir. I do not wish to be your cousin."

Once more the smiles shone out suddenly, making sunshine in his face.

"Thank you. At what hour will you see Mr. Roscoe?"

"At none. Please do not let him come here, or speak to me on that subject; it would be so extremely painful. I should never meet him afterwards without feeling distressed, and things would be intolerably disagreeable. Please Mr. Palma,—shield me from it."

She involuntarily drew closer to him, as if for protection, and noting the movement, he smiled, and tightened the clasp of her hands.

"I cannot positively forbid him to address you on this terrible topic; but, if you wish it, I will endeavour to dissuade him."

"Then tell him whatever your judgement dictates."

"My judgments must be instructed by facts,—and the simple statement I propose, might involve grave consequences. Do you authorize me to close the discussion of this matter at once and forever, by informing Mr. Roscoe that you cannot entertain the thought of granting him an interview,—because his suit is hopeless from the fact that your affections are already engaged?"

She was too much embarassed by his piercing merciless eyes, to notice that he slipped one finger upon the pulse at her wrist,—keeping her hands firmly in his warm clasp;—or that he leaned lower as he spoke, until his noble, massive head very nearly approached hers.

"I could not ask you to tell him that it would be untrue."

"Are you sure,—Lily?"

"Yes, Mr. Palma."

"Have you forgotten Mr. Lindsay?"

He thought for an instant that the pulse stood still,—then beat regularly calmly on, and he wondered if his own tight pressure had baffled his object.

"No—I shall never forget Mr. Lindsay."

She did not shrink or colour, but a sad hopeless look crept into her splendid eyes, at the mention of his name.

"You are certain that the young missionary will not prove the obstacle to your becoming more closely related to your guardian? Thus far, I have found you singularly truthful in all things. Be frank; are you not very deeply attached to Mr. Lindsay?"

Suddenly a burning flush bathed her brow, she struggled to free her hands in order to hide her face from his glowing, probing eyes, but his hold was unyielding as a band of steel; and hardly conscious where she found shelter, she turned and pressed her cheek against his shoulder, striving to avoid that inquisitorial gaze.

Mr. E. J. Hartley has received copies of above beautiful vocal waltzes, the same as played by Prof. Miller's celebrated Fire Brigade Band.

At the Midland Station.

An electric light lamp will be put up at the Midland station, just over the signal light. This will be an advantage to passengers arriving or departing on the evening trains.

Music in the Park.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for the district for the twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate winds, fair to cloudy weather with occasional showers, not much change in temperature.

Personal.

We regret to learn that Mr. J. T. Vosper, editor of the Campbellford Herald, has been obliged by ill health to entirely suspend work for a time, and hope that his sojourn at the northern lakes will prove so beneficial that he will soon be able to resume his duties on his paper.

A beautiful range of White Dress Goods, Embroidered Laces, etc., for July trade, at Turnbull's.

A Request Complied With.

As the hint was thrown out that it would be a pleasant thing to have one of the two bands play during the progress of the illuminated canoe meet on the Little Lake on Thursday evening, the City Band have kindly signified their intention to play on Thursday evening next on Burnham's Point.

Sermon to Orangemen.

The members of the Orange Order and of the O. T. B. Lodge will attend divine service in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening. They will assemble at their hall and march to the church, the procession being headed by the City Band. At the church the annual sermon to members of the Order will be preached by the Rev. T. Manning, B. A. It is expected that Orangemen from Nassau, Cavan, and other places will join with their Peterborough brethren on this occasion.

A Fine Portrait.

The oil painting by Mr. Sawyer, a Canadian artist of repute, that is now exhibited in the window of the bookstore of A. L. Davis & Co., is well worthy of notice, not only from its merit as a work of art, but also as a portrait of Sir William Logan, the celebrated Geologist, whose scientific attainments did credit to Canada.

The Preserving Season.

As the weeks pass swiftly by, and each day sees the fruits of our country growing riper, the careful housekeeper naturally looks around her old stock of preserve jars to see how many of them will answer for this season's use. The next thing in order is to purchase a number of those excellent Glass Self-Sealing Jars—or perhaps some of those White Enammelled or Granite ware Preserving Pans—from the store of Mr. Adam Hall, the Giant T., where an endless variety can be found to choose from.

To the Ladies.

W. Fairweather & Co. will make a special offering of some rich and valuable goods left on hand of this season's importations, at great reductions for cash:—

3 Rich Brocaded Silk Mantles,

7 Rich French Pattern Hats and Bonnets,
Ostrich Feathers and French Flowers at half price. Ladies would do well to call early at Fairweather & Co.'s Clearing Sale and see the inducements offering.

Still another lot of those Heavy Cottonades, for Farmers and Mechanics, at Turnbull's. The quality sells them rapidly.

Fruit Jars.

Every person putting up fruit should give the the jars the first attention; without a perfect sealing jar, it is useless going to the expense and trouble of canning fruit, China Hall is the only store in Peterborough selling the improved perfect fitting "Crown Jar" in firsts. Every jar warranted. It costs no more to have the best as the enormous quantities, we handle enables us to sell our jars as low as any house in the trade and give a better jar, Stone Jars and Jelly Cans all sizes at CHINA HALL.

Cattle for Shipment.

Mr. J. Doherty, Market Clerk, was called on before five o'clock this morning to weigh eighty head of cattle. This he did with pleasure, for weighing cattle is a job that does not trouble Mr. Doherty in the least, at any hour. The cattle were sold by Mr. Joseph Redmond, of Otonabee, to Mr. James Aikins, of Port Hope, who shipped them via the Grand Trunk Railway to the Old Country. The herd was made up of a fine lot of cattle, the aggregate weight being 90,935 pounds. The sum paid for them was $5,001.42.

Wedding Presents.

No store in Peterborough offers as large a variety of Wedding Presents as China Hall and all at reasonable prices. Almost every article in the large establishment is suitable for a present and the stock in point of newest and elegance of design is equal to that of any store in Canada. We would advise any one about purchasing a wedding or birthday present to visit China Hall you could hardly fail to make a selection from the magnificant window of new goods now on exhibition, although it is only an index to the thousand and one lovely articles to be found inside.

The Battery.

The members of Durham Field Battery arrived home to-day. A number of them came on the noon train. They made a good showing in the camp at Kingston, and in dismounting the guns in a competition they "beat the field" by six seconds. One member was wounded on the last day in camp, not by a cannon ball, however, but by a dish of soup being emptied over his foot and scalding it severely. The boys are all more or less tanned by the sun, but they all appear to have enjoyed their ten days of training, even the three who spent their last night in camp in the guard house for being out after hours in civilian's clothes. These three determined to make all the fun out of camping out that they could, counting it no "snide" or small affair, and it resulted in them sharin' the guard room together that night.

Turnbull is clearing out the balance of his Summer Millinery at prices that should please all who want to buy. For bargains in Choice Millinery go to Turnbull's.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating thar he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crewd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES.

The Annual Gathering in London—Facts Regarding the Institutions.

The annual gathering in connection with Dr. Barnardo's Homes was held in Exeter Hall on Thursday, June 12th. The Christian says that there were 700 children present, and they constituted a choir that any conductor might envy. The addresses were heard by a responsive throng of listeners, filling every corner of the immense auditorium. The first address was one delivered by the noble chairman,

EARL CAIRNS.—The Homes, said his Lordship, live from day to day, from hour to hour, on the kind support of the public. We are always anxious, therefore, to keep our friends informed as to the progress of the Institutions. This meeting takes place at a critical point in the history of the Metropolis. Much interest has been awakened with respect to the condition of "Outcast London." It was time that such a fierce light should be thrown on this subject, but to those who know the work of these institutions, the subject is no new one. Why, it is out of this very condition of things that Dr. Barnardo's work has sprung. During its existence it has rescued, at least, six thousand boys and girls from the filth, the squalor, and vice of London; has not only fed, clothed, and educated them, but given them a good start in life. In order to bring about these results, the children had to be sought out and taken away from their evil surroundings, and placed under the gentle influences of tenderness and care, and the softening power of the Gospel.

His Lordship proceeded once again to retell the oft-told tale of "the special features and characteristics of the Barnardo Homes"—no voting, no really destitute cases refused, physical infirmity no barrier to admission, no early limitation of age, a watchful care and oversight displayed for an adequate period after the children have gone right out into active life; instead of a 'barrack life' for the girls, the domestic system as adopted in the Village Homes at Ilford. Last and best of all, the children are trained up in the knowledge of God, and it is earnestly sought to bring them under the saving power of the grace of God. It is a gratifying fact that this end has in a large number of cases been attained.

The Emigration Department is receiving increased attention. The best results have been attained with respect to those already sent out. Mr. Phipps, of Northampton, has given 1000 acres of land for the purpose of training boys in agricultural pursuits. Last year 255 boys and girls were emigrated, mostly to Canada, but some to Africa and Australia. Forty other boys are now ready to go if the needful funds are provided. Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Cox, a house at Peterboro', Ontario, with accommodation for 100 children, and six acres of land, has been made over, rent free, to the trustees of the Homes. The children are kept there till proper provision is made for their settlement. Dr. Barnardo hopes to take a trip across the Atlantic during the coming autumn, to inspect this part of the work, but he cannot well go till the finances of the Mission are on a better footing.

As to the number of children benefitted during the past year, the noble Chairman gave the following figures: Boys and girls received in all the branches of the institution, 1812; emigrated or otherwise started in life, 589; 11 died; leaving at the close of the financial year over 1200 inside the Homes. In addition to these, a large number have attended the ragged schools. Altogether the number of those dealt with is 400 in excess of any previous year. The question of the "babies" has been an element of difficulty in past years, and it has been hitherto met by placing one baby in each of the Ilford cottages. A good friend of the Homes has given a suitable house at Hawkhurst, Kent, where there is accommodation for 26 babies; twenty-two are there at the present time. Another development is an "All-night Refuge," which has been opened at Stepney, for destitute children. It is desired to increase the number of cottages at Ilford, and for this purpose land has been secured. There is here an opportunity for any friend or friends of the children to donate the sums requisite for the erection of these new cottages. Reference was made to the rebuilding and repairing of the Mission Hall at the "Edinboro' Castle," at a cost of £6500. Night after night the hall is resorted to by multitudes, who listen to the preaching of a pure Gospel.

Coming to the question of finance, Earl Cairns reported that the income of the year had been £55,840—apparently an increase of £10,000 as compared with last year; but against that there were special payments for the "Edinboro' Castle," the ground at Ilford, emigration expenses, &c., amounting to £13,000, so that the increase of income is not what it seems. At the close of the financial year, May 31, there was an overdraft on the banking account of over £20000, and now that amount is greatly increased, so that the deficit stands at £8000. The conductors of the Homes must look to the kind generosity of the kind Christian public to rid them of the incubus of this debt, so that the work may go on with success, and the blessing of God upon it.

MR. SAMUEL SMITH, M.P., was the next speaker. He had lately gone over the Homes with the director, and had been delightfully surprised at the extent and character of the work, though he had long taken a deep interest in it. He regarded this work as one of the social phenomena of the day, which all Christian philanthropists and statesmen should take account of. If it were not for noble Christian effort of this kind the state of our social system would be very hopeless and deplorable. This work began at the right end, by taking hold of the children, before they had become too far gone for recovery! What misery had been prevented, and happiness imparted, if only in the case of the 6000 children who had been rescued and cared for in the past! He wished the Education Department, by compelling all the children of the land to pass through some course of useful industrial training, would take a leaf out of Dr. Barnardo's book. After some further commendations of the work, Mr. Smith referred with high approval to the Emigration part of the work, which he maintained was the most fruitful kind of charitable effort they could engage in when dealing with these destitute classes. There is far more scope in the British Colonies than in this overcrowded country. His experience had been that ninety-five per cent. of those sent out had turned out well. The Emigration movement was also doing good service to the Colonies which want and welcome these young lives into their borders. Thousands and tens of thousands of children could still be sent to them. Our Colonial Empire is seventy-eight times as large in area as Great Britain, yet we have three times the population of all these territories combined. It is monstrous that we have so much pauperism at home while these virgin soils are waiting to be peopled and cultivated. But the work must be done with wisdom and under Christian auspices. If it is made to run in pure channels, it is sure to prosper, and there is virtually no limit to it. How much better and nobler it would be for those who waste such large sums on a racehorse, or a piece of useless furniture, if they would devote the money to such grand objects as those sought after by institutions of this kind.

Addresses were also given by Dr. Barnardo and the Rev. Dr. McEwan. An interesting interlude was the presentation of a number of prizes, provided by the generosity of the members of the committee, to a number of the young men and women for length of service in their situations. Neat little speeches from the Rev. Ewan Hopkins, Mr. James Mathieson, and the noble chairman, in reply to the customary vote of thanks, brought a very successful and interesting anniversary to a close.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

ANNUAL SERMON

To Members of the Orange Order, by the Rev. Thos. Manning.

On Sunday evening the Orangemen of Peterborough District and the members of the Orange True Blue Lodge, attended service in the George Street Methodist Church. They first assembled at their hall, on the corner of George and Simcoe streets, and, headed by the City Band, they marched to the church. The procession was a large one, there being over one hundred members of the Order in the ranks. At the church the centre row of seats had been reserved for them.

The Rev. THOS. MANNING, B.A., after the opening exercises, took his text from Galatians v., i. :—"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." In the previous chapter the Apostle had been speaking of the observance of the Jewish ritual. He points out the way of salvation to be the way of faith, and exhorts them to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ had made them free. Our nature seems to incline to a bondage such as that of the Jews under the old dispensation; it appears to desire ceremonies, gorgeous attire, &c., to assist in worship. This fact was shown in the wonderful magnificence connected with heathen worship. The Grecian and other heathen temples, he supposed, rivalled that of Solomon in grandeur, and the heathens now gave more of their substance to assist in the worship of false gods than the Christian people did to spread their religion. The Christian religion was a simple religion. This to the heathen seemed wrong; they could not accept such a simple worship. It was one of their strongest objections to Christianity. The Jewish worship, with the magnificent temple, with the people always looking towards Jerusalem, their constant sacrifices and the sacred place in the temple, would be more acceptable to the heathen 2,000 years ago than the simple christian religion. Yet the Apostle speaks of the Jewish ritual as a bondage, and now they could worship God anywhere, and sacrifices and incense were unnecessary. They were done away by the rending of the veil of the temple in twain and by the fulfilling of the types that went before the death of Christ. No one needed now to come to God through any man or through any particular ceremony; they only needed to come to God in repentance and faith. The pious Jewish people had been looking for a deliverance. The old priest, when he had taken Jesus in his arms, was ready to die, and the angels sang "Peace on earth, good will to Men." Why was it? It was just because man could find God and worship Him anywhere. Jesus came to establish a simple form of worship. Anything they seemed to require as a substitute for the simple and direct worship was leading them back into the old bondage. When they departed from the simple form of worship, they departed from their liberty and from that which was best calculated to Christianize the world. The Christian religion 1800 years ago found its greatest beauty in the woods and in the secret places where the outcast worshipped. In the temple there was an accumulation of wickedness, and God visited it with destruction. They should not depart from the simplicity of worship, but he had grave fears. Man inclined to bondage, and the adversary tried to lead him into formalism whereby liberty might be obscured. The Apostles were simple men. A man who preached the Gospel was not allowed now to go around like other men, and they had to conform to public opinion to a certain extent. Not long after this simple religion was established, people began to multiply the calendar of saints, added forms which obscured the truth and taught for the commands of God doctrines of men. It was a sad day when they forgot to stand in the liberty wherewith Christ had made them free, and followed their inclination for bondage. Nothing was necessary but the proclaiming of the Gospel and direct access to their Maker. Everything in the way of form, used, it was said, to make the service solemn, was only a substitute for the simple worship. When a man is overcome with love for God, what are those matters that will effect him through his senses? He does not need them. They did not get light from heaven through the eye, through gesticulations of the body, surplices, and all that goes to make up a grand ritual. When they began to think that external matters helped them to worship God they departed from the simplicity of Christianity. It was not in music, art or architecture. Every man had to realize that he was a sinner and come to God as he was. It was the experience of a personal salvation that was effectual. They did not need sacrifices; they only needed acquaintance with God through faith in his promises. Christ brought national as well as personal liberty. Since Christ sent out the Apostles to preach the Gospel the world has become more humane, allowing liberty and exercising charity. Until the Gospel was preached scarcely any nation had liberty. Some now had not, and were governed by despots. The preaching of the Gospel taught every man to exercise his own intelligence and to use his liberty. After Christianity began to spread the despotic power passed over from the Kings to the Pontiff. Christian Europe 400 years ago was under a power almost as despotic as that of heathen rulers. The idea of personal liberty gave them national liberty. They did not value their liberty any too highly. It is no wonder they venerated the British flag: it was the flag of liberty; and it is no wonder that they were proud of the British constitution. If they read the British constitution they would often come to a crisis in its development, which arose through the indwelling sence of liberty in the minds of the people. They bore with Rome as long as they could, and then they rose and threw off its power. The highest form of national liberty known was found in the British constitution. To whom did Rome ever give liberty? The great lamentation of the Pope to-day was that France was throwing of his power and that he was Pope in no place less than he was in Italy. Just as personal liberty prevails, national liberty advances. All their liberties were baptized in the blood of their forefathers. They should "stand fast" in them. The adversary had not forgotten his tactics. The Church of Rome was a great deal better than it once was, yet it declared that is it was the same as it always was. England long ago freed itself from its bondage, and where was it now taking a hold? It was in their own beloved land, and it was asserted by those who said they knew that in no place was its power more centrered then in our Dominion. It could not but be a cause for anxiety when they saw any winking at the evil that might befall them. When they thought of their forefathers worshipping in secret, it did not become them to forget that Rome was the same and that it was making its home here. More attention was being given to this matter in religious assemblies. It would come to a definite effort. They (the Orangmen) were already organized for that purpose. They would be supported by every Christian assembly. They had need, however, of special grace, that when they got things right they might not go too far and make them wrong. Rome exercised a political influence such as it ought not to do. Denominations had nothing to do with politics as denominations, and a statesman had no right to consider what church a man belonged to. They said this and Rome said it, but Rome did not stand to what it said. They needed the grace of God to do justice to every man. Every man should have the privilege of rising in this country according to his abilities, but only according to his abilities. The best way to gain their object was to be familiar with this liberty and allow liberty to all. They should spread abroad the light and proclaim the truth. Many a man sought for inward peace, and, not getting it, was driven by his restlessness to form and ritual, which would not have been the case if he had gone to Christ. He prayed God to grant them a personal acquaintance with Him, and a true patriotic devotion to the interest of the land in which they lived.

At a conclusion of the service, the brethren marched back to their hall, the band playing the stains of "the Sweet By-and-By," and after arriving at the hall the band played the national anthem.

FIRE INSURANCE.

We are glad to observe that the subject of fire insurance is now receiving a scrutinizing consideration from the mercantile community. It is now doubted whether fire insurance is that blessing which it has hitherto been considered. A contemporary has pointed out the fact that the fire tax is now the heaviest tax imposed on this nation—that the loss by fire is $100,000,000 a year, or one per cent. on a very large estimate of the annual product, which cannot exceed $1,000,000,000 in value. That should startle the community and induce them to consider the subject still more.

There are some who maintain, and with considerable plausibility, that fire insurance as at present conducted does more harm than good to the community. Certainly if there was no fire insurance the buildings generally erected would be more substantial and fireproof. We cannot help thinking also that if the sum insured was in the case of fire raised by a levy upon the proprietors and occupiers within the district fires would be fewer, and the buildings would be better. Notwithstanding all the laws and orders that exists to prevent them, buildings of the most flimsy and fire catching character are somehow continually being reared in this city, and people wonder where the Superintendent of Buildings was during their erection. That functionary, however, seems to take it for granted that there is no use in trying to prevent fires; but that on the contrary they must be expected, and so he only sees to fire escapes being amply provided.

The greatest defect in the present system of fire insurance is accepting hazardous risks. In point of fact they simply count up the number and nature of the unusual risks connected with the building or stock to be insured, and fix the premium accordingly. Almost anything can be got insured if the parties will consent to pay a high premium. Now it would be well for the community if a law was passed to prohibit insurance companies from undertaking any such unusual risks. We are certain if they could not be insured they would soon cease to exist, for then such hazardous buildings would not be elected, nor dangerous trade conducted in them. Of course this might be effected without any new law by a simple combination and resolution of the insurance companies; but it has been found impossible to get them to adhere even to a tariff, far less to adopt such a resolution. The competition among insurance companies is too keen to expect any such good objects being effected through them; so the only way of accomplishing it is by passing a law prohibiting insurance companies from undertaking such hazardous risks.—Scotish American.

LACHINE IN FLAMES.

Nineteen Houses Burned—Dawes' Brewery Asking Assistance.

On Friday afternoon it was announced that the village of Lachine was in flames, and very quickly after this had become noised about, a message by telephone from the brewery of the Messrs. Dawes asked for assistance.

Some time elapsed before this could be had, and when the engine and hose reel was finally sent to the station there was some delay in getting it away. News was meagre as to the fire, and on inquiry it was learned that the telegraph wire had been burned. From all that can be learned concerning the fire, it appears that it commenced at half-past one o'clock in the Prince of Wales Hotel and spread so quickly that nineteen houses were soon enveloped in the general ruin. The wind was blowing west, and the fire at 3 o'clock was threatening the brewery of Messrs. Dawes and was likely to sweep all before it.

LATER.—About sixty families are rendered homeless. The actual loss is estimated at about $50,000, only one-quarter of which is covered by insurance. The fire spread to the water's edge, destroying the premises of Daoust & Archambault, boat manufacturers. The homeless people, about three hundred in number, were housed in tents. A subscription list has been started for their relief, Mr. Boyer, M.P.P., contributing $300 for this purpose. Soon the sum of $1,060 was realized. The origin of the fire is a mystery. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The investigation will at once be made. The Montreal fire brigade was called and rendered efficient aid.

COBOURG.

BROKEN ARM.—A young lad named Mumby, living in the eastern part of the town, while playing with a comrade one day last week, fell and broke one of his arms.

FLOATING TIMBER.—A quantity of square timber has been floating around on the lake the past few days. It is supposed to have been lost from a passing raft.

HURT HIS LEG.—On Wednesday, while Geo. Stillwill, employed at the harbor, was engaged moving timber, a heavy piece slipped and struck his right leg, fracturing it just above the ankle.

DROWNED.—On Thursday of last week while a little child of Mr. John Cochrane's, about two miles north of the town, was playing near the raceway that drives the saw mill, it fell in and was drowned before any assistance could be rendered. This is the fourth child the bereaved family have buried within a year—three having died from diptheria.—Sentinel-Star.

The Cholera Panic.

PARIS, July 4.—Despite the assertions of the officials that the fatal case of cholera reported on Wenesday was sporadic and not Asiatic, and that their statement was confirmed by several leading physicians, the city is very much excited, and people are preparing to desert in large numbers. The sanitary condition of the city is excellent, and the officials are making all possible effort to allay the needless alarm.

MONDAY, JULY 7, 1884.

CORRECTION.

It will have been seen that by a typographical error, the letter of Mr. Carnegie to Mr. Hamilton, clerk of the Bribery Commission, in Saturday's issue was dated June 2nd, instead of July 2nd, as it was written, the mistake being obvious, as the letter refers to an article in the Port Hope Guide of June 21st. We republish in this issue the letter and its enclosure.

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

The letter which we publish to-day over the signature of Mr. H. T. Strickland, who is always so ready to assist in promoting the interests of Peterborough, contains some excellent suggestions, and if his idea is properly supported the results may be very satisfactory.

The extension and improvement of our railway connections through the construction of the missing link of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk, and the opening for traffic of the the Ontario and Quebec section of the Canada Pacific, give us facilities for extending the business of our town in districts with which we have hitherto had scanty trade relations, if any. Such opportunities should not be neglected, and steps should be devised to secure the extension of our business in localities thus brought within our reach. Combined action could effect this more easily and more completely than individual efforts, and steps should be taken to obtain the co-operation of all interested, and these are not only our railways and our business men, but in fact the whole community.

PRACTICAL APPROVAL.

The Reformers, whose only settled policy seems to be that of abusing everything done by their political opponents and in fact decrying everything Canadian, so long as the people of Canada choose Conservatives to administer their affairs, have not spared the Dominion Land Act and regulations.

The rapid settlement of the North West, and the immigration to our Prairie region, greater now in one month than during the whole five years of Reform maladministration, go far to prove that our land policy is more liberal and attractive that is admitted by these captious critics, and now we have a very practical testimony to its excellence in its adoption by impartial and disinterested observers.

In Newfoundland the extensive public surveys that have been recently effected have divulged that there are in the island very large tracts of land suitable for agriculture. It has been resolved to open these for settlement, to take steps to develop them and to attract immigrants. And after studying the matter, the Newfoundland have adopted our land policy as most suitable and effective, following our Dominion Land Act as closely as possible.

This is a most satisfactory expression of opinion from such an impartial source. The Newfoundlanders are certainly not prejudiced in favour of our Dominion, with which, at present, they are unwilling to cast in their lot, but on the other hand they are not Canadian so-called Reformers with no policy but that of abusing every act of the Macdonald administration.

The Democratic Convention.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The California and Nevada delegations arrived this morning with full numbers, making the first of the arrivals. The California delegation held a caucus this forenoon to out-line future plans of action, but came to no final decision. The hotel lobbies are beginning to be the scene of great activity, and the placarding of State head-quarters has already been commenced. The hallways and lobbies of all the leading hotels were liberally decorated this morning with lithographic views of Rosewell P. Flower. The sub-committee on arrangements of the National Committee has been at work all the week arranging and perfecting the details of the convention. It has been decided to light the hall with electricity. Edward Cooper and a dozen other New Yorkers, among whom are two delegates, arrived to-day.

Americans Want closer Commercial Relations with Canada.

BUFFALO, July 3.—A Washington special says Congressman Maybury' resolution relative to a reciprocity treaty with Canada was adopted well nigh unanimously by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to-day with a modification making the resolution declaratory of the sense of the House of Representatives that the President should take steps to bring the United States into closer commercial relations with all the countries of North and South America.

MR. CARNEGIE'S REPLY.

The following letter and the article attached speak for themselves :—

PETERBOROUGH, July 2nd, 1884.

Henry C. Hamilton, Esq., Clerk of the Bribery Commission, Toronto:

SIR,—In consequence of the attached article appearing in the Port Hope Guide of the 21st ult., I hereby notify you that I desire to be called as a witness before the Bribery Commission, announced to meet in Toronto on the 14th inst., for the purpose of answering, under oath, the Guide's questions, and such other questions as the Commission may deem pertinent to the enquiry.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN CARNEGIE.

"MR. CARNEGIE, M.P.P.

"The REVIEW is very much excited anent the Royal Commission that has been issued to investigate the attempts to purchase Meredith into power in Ontario. It still grinds out the old tune that the conspiracy was really the handiwork of Hon. Mr. Mowat, and that this mysterious man "Lynch," who changed the thousand dollar bills in company with John Shields, was really the confidante of the Ontario Premier. It may as well be known that the REVIEW is published in the interest, and we believe by, Mr. Carnegie, M.P.P. for West Peterborough. The REVIEW will probably hear enough about "Lynch" before the investigation concludes. In the meantime we would suggest to Mr. Carnegie to cease such brazen hypocrisy and answer the following questions: Who drew up the "Round Robin," for the government supporters to sign? Who met Wilkinson, Meek, Bunting and "Lynch" at noon in the Queen's Hotel on the day that the expose was made in the House? Who got Kirkland a front seat in the speaker's gallery, where he could witness the downfall of the Government? Who despatched a messenger to tell "Lynch" of the arrests of Kirkland and Wilkinson? Who assisted in hiding H. H. Smith until the Committee of Privileges and Elections had reported to the House, lest he should be called as a witness? Who skulked around the House shaking in his shoes for fear his damaging telegrams would be produced? Mr. John Carnegie had better take the box like a man and tell what he knows about the conspiracy. He need not think people are fools."

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—I have had occasion to travel through the older townships of the County of North Hastings, and it would surprise your town readers if they knew, as I do, how little is there known of the size and business importance of the town of Peterborough (or city as it is, in fact if not in name). True, many have heard of Peterborough, but not one in twenty has seen it, and the general impression is that it is a good country village or a small town at most. The reason they are not better informed is owing to their not having had direct railway communication with Peterborough in the past, and Belleville being nearer with good gravel roads (without tolls) leading from thence to the different townships in its rear has hitherto secured that trade. But now that the Ontario and Quebec Railway is completed, and running, as it does, directly through three of the most important Townships in North Hastings, viz, Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford, which are about as populous as any three of the townships in this county, there is no longer any reason why Peterborough should not get a large share, if not the greater part of their business, as well as from the townships north of them. But their people must first be induced to come to Peterborough, when I have no doubt it can be demonstrated to them by the business portion of the community in a practical way that it will be to their interests to come again and keep coming, to get them to come the first time will, I believe be the only trouble. But in my opinion all that is necessary is that all interested should join in having published a large number of pamphlets with a short description of Peterborough and its business facilities, together with the advertisement of every individual business firm, manufacture, trade and profession, for general circulation, particularly in the new territory both east and west which the O. and Q. R. has opened up to us; and that the C..P. R. Co. be requested to issue excursion tickets at low rates on Peterborough's market days, and I doubt not the railway authorities will act liberally in the matter, as did the Midland Co. for a similar purpose, and I understand with advantage to both the town and railway interest. If these suggestions should be favourably received, and acted on, it will excuse my having taken up so much of your valuable space to bring the matter before the public, and having done what I conceived to be my duty on the premises I leave it in their hands for consideration, and I hope, action.

Yours truly,
H. T. STRICKLAND.

OMEMEE.

OBITUARY.—It is again our sad duty to chronicle the demise of another of our much respected and esteemed citizens, that of Mr. Jas. Sherin, on Saturday morning, after an illness which confined him to his bed for only a week. Deceased had been a resident of Emily the greater portion of his life, having moved into Omemee about a year ago. He was for a number of years collector of taxes for the township in which he lived and gave entire satisfaction to those with whom he had dealings of any kind. He was a strong advocate of Christianity, having been an ardent member of the Methodist Church for a long time. The funeral on Sunday was a very large one, the procession being fully a mile long.—Herald.

LINDSAY.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A very painful accident happened to Miss Moriarty, who lives about three miles south of Lindsay, on the morning of the 1st. In company with her brother she had started to come to the R. C. picnic. Mr Moriarity got out of his buggy to shut the gate, leaving his sister to hold the reins. The horse took fright and ran away, throwing the young lady out and breaking three of her ribs. It was at first supposed that she was killed, but she has so far recovered that hopes are entertained that she will be all right in a few days. The news speedily reached the picnic ground and caused a very painful feeling. Father Laurent was called away from the picnic, as it was feared his ministrations might be needed. The intelligence that the young lady, though badly injured, was likely to recover, gave general relief.

The Housewife.

There are lots of people going around grumbling, and half sick at the Stomach all the time; who might be well and happy if they only used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters occasionally. It is a splendid Blood Purifier. All Druggists, 50 cents.

We are informed by Mr. Edwards, who is one of the members of the Regatta Committee, that he has been requested to provide about a dozen of the total number of flags required as prizes. ### Mr. Stewart Cumberland, the Thought-Reader.

The two large audiences who witnessed the interesting perpormances of Mr. Stewart Cumberland in the Opera House in May, 1883 will read with interest the following letter addressed to him by Mr. Labouchere :—

"10 Queen Anne's gate, June 13, 1884.

"Dear Mr. Cumberland,—You yesterday succeeded in pointing out an article in this room which I had thought of. Your explanation of thought-reading—so-called—was very interesting. As I had always supposed to be, it is the perception of a thought in the mind of a subject by watching carefully its effects upon his muscles. In order to succeed, it is of course necessary for the operator to have trained himself to note these physcial indications. I am glad that you are engaged in dispelling the nonsense which surrounded the experiments, and that you are proving that you can equal the mystic power of the quacks who have hitherto made money out of fools, whilst at the same time you are able to give a natural and reasonable explanation of what you perform.

"Yours truly,
"H. LABOUCHERE."

USE MORGAN'S PILLS, purely vegetable, none better, very few as good. Only 25c. a box. Find MORGAN'S Drug Store.

NO QUACK.—Golden Fruit Bitters is no quack medicine, but a preparation scientifically compounded for the benefit of those who are troubled with Kidney or liver complaints; it is also a good tonic and appetizer Sold by all druggists.

OH! how tired and weak I feel I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of those distressing complaints? If you think so call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's vitalizer. Every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly, and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by J. D. Tully.

The Quickest thing on Record

Is Fluid Lightning for neuralgn, headache, toothache, etc. It does not blister or discolor the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or carrying your head in a poultice for two weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from John McKee's druggist.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Swayne's ointment is a pleasant, cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt-Rheum, Scald-Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 4 for $1.25. Address, Dr. Swayne & Son., Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists,

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It, does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25cts.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. PETERBOROUGH, July 2nd, 1884.

Henry C. Hamilton, Esq., Clerk of the Bribery Commission, Toronto:

SIR,—In consequence of the attached article appearing in the Port Hope Guide of the 21st ult., I hereby notify you that I desire to be called as a witness before the Bribery Commission, announced to meet in Toronto on the 14th inst., for the purpose of answering, under oath, the Guide's questions, and such other questions as the Commission may deem pertinent to the enquiry.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN CARNEGIE.

"MR. CARNEGIE, M.P.P.

"The REVIEW is very much excited anent the Royal Commission that has been issued to investigate the attempts to purchase Meredith into power in Ontario. It still grinds out the old tune that the conspiracy was really the handiwork of Hon. Mr. Mowat, and that this mysterious man "Lynch," who changed the thousand dollar bills in company with John Shields, was really the confidante of the Ontario Premier. It may as well be known that the REVIEW is published in the interest, and we believe by, Mr. Carnegie, M.P.P. for West Peterborough. The REVIEW will probably hear enough about "Lynch" before the investigation concludes. In the meantime we would suggest to Mr. Carnegie to cease such brazen hypocrisy and answer the following questions: Who drew up the "Round Robin," for the government supporters to sign? Who met Wilkinson, Meek, Bunting and "Lynch" at noon in the Queen's Hotel on the day that the expose was made in the House? Who got Kirkland a front seat in the speaker's gallery, where he could witness the downfall of the Government? Who despatched a messenger to tell "Lynch" of the arrests of Kirkland and Wilkinson? Who assisted in hiding H. H. Smith until the Committee of Privileges and Elections had reported to the House, lest he should be called as a witness? Who skulked around the House shaking in his shoes for fear his damaging telegrams would be produced? Mr. John Carnegie had better take the box like a man and tell what he knows about the conspiracy. He need not think people are fools."

EXTENDING OUR TRADE.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—I have had occasion to travel through the older townships of the County of North Hastings, and it would surprise your town readers if they knew, as I do, how little is there known of the size and business importance of the town of Peterborough (or city as it is, in fact if not in name). True, many have heard of Peterborough, but not one in twenty has seen it, and the general impression is that it is a good country village or a small town at most. The reason they are not better informed is owing to their not having had direct railway communication with Peterborough in the past, and Belleville being nearer with good gravel roads (without tolls) leading from thence to the different townships in its rear has hitherto secured that trade. But now that the Ontario and Quebec Railway is completed, and running, as it does, directly through three of the most important Townships in North Hastings, viz, Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford, which are about as populous as any three of the townships in this county, there is no longer any reason why Peterborough should not get a large share, if not the greater part of their business, as well as from the townships north of them. But their people must first be induced to come to Peterborough, when I have no doubt it can be demonstrated to them by the business portion of the community in a practical way that it will be to their interests to come again and keep coming, to get them to come the first time will, I believe be the only trouble. But in my opinion all that is necessary is that all interested should join in having published a large number of pamphlets with a short description of Peterborough and its business facilities, together with the advertisement of every individual business firm, manufacture, trade and profession, for general circulation, particularly in the new territory both east and west which the O. and Q. R. has opened up to us; and that the C. P. R. Co. be requested to issue excursion tickets at low rates on Peterborough's market days, and I doubt not the railway authorities will act liberally in the matter, as did the Midland Co. for a similar purpose, and I understand with advantage to both the town and railway interest. If these suggestions should be favourably received, and acted on, it will excuse my having taken up so much of your valuable space to bring the matter before the public, and having done what I conceived to be my duty on the premises I leave it in their hands for consideration, and I hope, action.

Yours truly,
H. T. STRICKLAND.
Peterborough, July 5th, 1884.

OMEMEE.

OBITUARY.—It is again our sad duty to chronicle the demise of another of our much respected and esteemed citizens, that of Mr. Jas. Sherin, on Saturday morning, after an illness which confined him to his bed for only a week. Deceased had been a resident of Emily the greater portion of his life, having moved into Omemee about a year ago. He was for a number of years collector of taxes for the township in which he lived and gave entire satisfaction to those with whom he had dealings of any kind. He was a strong advocate of Christianity, having been an ardent member of the Methodist Church for a long time. The funeral on Sunday was a very large one, the procession being fully a mile long.—Herald.

LINDSAY.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A very painful accident happened to Miss Moriarty, who lives about three miles south of Lindsay, on the morning of the 1st. In company with her brother she had started to come to the R. C. picnic. Mr Moriarity got out of his buggy to shut the gate, leaving his sister to hold the reins. The horse took fright and ran away, throwing the young lady out and breaking three of her ribs. It was at first supposed that she was killed, but she has so far recovered that hopes are entertained that she will be all right in a few days. The news speedily reached the picnic ground and caused a very painful feeling. Father Laurent was called away from the picnic, as it was feared his ministrations might be needed. The intelligence that the young lady, though badly injured, was likely to recover, gave general relief.

The Housewife.

A popular domestic journal for American homes, will be sent for one year free to every lady who will send at once the names and address of 10 married ladies, and 50 cents (no stamps taken). This offer is made only to secure names to whom to send sample copies, as we know every lady who once sees THE HOUSEWIFE will subscribe for it at once. Regular price $1 per year. Address, the HOUSEWIFE, Rochester, N. Y.

There are lots of people going around grumbling, and half sick at the Stomach all the time; who might be well and happy if they only used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters occasionally. It is a splendid Blood Purifier. All Druggists, 50 cents.

AMERICAN CANOE ASSOCIATION.

Programme of the Races at the Annual Meet at the Thousand Islands.

Below we publish the official programme of races as finally adopted by the Regatta Committee. Preparations are already being made by a large number of our canoeists to be present. We are informed by Mr. Edwards, who is one of the members of the Regatta Committee, that he has been requested to provide about a dozen of the total number of flags required as prizes. We feel sure that the Peterborough ladies, who took such an interest in last year's camp and enjoyed it so much, will do their part towards providing prizes for this year's regatta. ### Mr. Stewart Cumberland, the Thought-Reader.

The two large audiences who witnessed the interesting performances of Mr. Stewart Cumberland in the Opera House in May, 1883 will read with interest the following letter addressed to him by Mr. Labouchere :—

"10 Queen Anne's gate, June 13, 1884.

"Dear Mr. Cumberland,—You yesterday succeeded in pointing out an article in this room which I had thought of. Your explanation of thought-reading—so-called—was very interesting. As I had always supposed to be, it is the perception of a thought in the mind of a subject by watching carefully its effects upon his muscles. In order to succeed, it is of course necessary for the operator to have trained himself to note these physical indications. I am glad that you are engaged in dispelling the nonsense which surrounded the experiments, and that you are proving that you can equal the mystic power of the quacks who have hitherto made money out of fools, whilst at the same time you are able to give a natural and reasonable explanation of what you perform.

"Yours truly,
"H. LABOUCHERE."

USE MORGAN'S PILLS, purely vegetable, none better, very few as good. Only 25c. a box. Find MORGAN'S Drug Store.

NO QUACK.—Golden Fruit Bitters is no quack medicine, but a preparation scientifically compounded for the benefit of those who are troubled with Kidney or liver complaints; it is also a good tonic and appetizer. Sold by all druggists.

OH! how tired and weak I feel. I dont believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning? Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cents.

Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of those distressing complaints? If you think so call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's vitalizer. Every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly, and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by J. D. Tully.

The Quickest thing on Record

Is Fluid Lightning for neuralgia, headache, toothache, etc. It does not blister or discolor the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or carrying your head in a poultice for two weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from John McKee's druggist.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. Swayne's ointment is a pleasant, cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt-Rheum, Scald-Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 4 for $1.25. Address, Dr. Swayne & Son., Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Can't Be Beaten.

It is a fact that Nerviline cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nerviline contains the best, most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure. Rheumatism, stiff neck, cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal, external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to Ormond & Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nerviline. Large bottles only 25 cts.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

Sensible Maxims

Never be idle. If your mind cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live, (misfortune excepted) within your income. Do business only with men that have one price, any man that will ask you 50cts. and take 40cts. will cheat you or your neighbour. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it, and when you want value for your money go to KELLYS. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow unless you cannot possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. Read the above maxims at least once a week.

PILATE WASHED HIS HANDS.

Behold the clambering multitude!
All thirsting for the Saviour's blood,
How lily do they brook delay,
Enraged vehemently they cry
Give, give us the Christ to crucify,
And let Barrabas go his way.

Grew louder and fiercier their demands,
And Pilate replies "I wash my hands
Of this transaction vile, and you
Shall bear all the blame, His blood shall be Upon you and yours, and I am free
Of all that Jewish wrath can do."

Ah, self-seeking Pilate, hadst thou done
All in thy power to save God's Son
From Calvary's cross, from Jewish hate,
And risk'd the loss of thy high place
And braved the Right, disthroned disgrace
Had not been thy inglorious fate.

Alas, how may with false pretence
Of being called just, assume offence
At heartless acts of selfishness!
Or some gross injustice done, and lay
The blame elsewhere, while Pilate like they
Make no effort wrongs to redress.

Hearts first must be clean in those who fain
Would have hands appear without a stain,
And this must learn, the All Righteous One
Asks justice should be dispens'd by them
Ere its violation they condem
And the Lord's approving smile be won.

She did not see his face grow gray and stony or that the white teeth gnawed the lower lip but when he spoke his voice was stern and indescribably icy.

"My ward should study her heart before she empowers her guardian to consider it unoccupied property. You should at least inform your mother that it has become a mere missionary station.

With her hot cheeks still hidden against his shoulder, she exclaimed:

"No, no! You do not at all understand me. I feel to him, to Douglass, exactly as I did when he went away."

"So I infer. Your feeling is sufficiently apparent."

"Not what you imagine. When he left me I promised him I would always love him as I did then. But I never had any other thought, except as his adopted sister, until this moment when you spoke. He is my noble true friend, my dear good brother, and you must not think such things of him and of me, it hurts me."

For nearly a moment there was silence.

Mr. Palma dropped one of her hands, and his arm passed quickly round her shoulder, while his open palm pressed her head closer against him.

"Is my ward sure that if he wished to be more than a brother, she would never reciprocate—would never cherish a different feeling—a stronger affection?"

"He could never wish that. He is so much older and wiser and better than I am; and looks on me only as a little sister."

He had withdrawn his arm and released her had, and, rising, she exclaimed impetuously:

"What unusual occurrence has stimulated your interest and curiosity concerning your parentage?"

"It never slumbers. It is the last thought at night; and the first when day dawns. It is a burden that is never lifted,—that galls continually;—and sometimes, as to-night, I feel that I cannot endure it much longer."

"You must be patient,—for a while at least——"

"Yes—I have heard that for ten long years, and I have been both patient and silent;—but the time has come when I can bear no more. Anything positive, definite — susceptible of proof,—no matter how distressing,—would be more tolerable than this suspense,—this maddening conjecture. I will see my mother;—I must know the truth,—be it what it may!"

"Your petulent vehemence is both unbecoming and displeasing; and in future you will do well to recollect that as a child submitted to my guidance by your mother's desire, it is disrespectful both to her and to me, to insist upon a course, at variance with our judgement and wishes."

"I am not a child. To-day I know,—I feel I have done forever with my old—happy childhood;—I am—what I wish I were not,—a woman. Oh Mr. Palma be merciful and send me to my mother."

He looked down into the worn face gleaming under the gaslamps of the chandelier,—into the shadowy eloquent eyes,—and noting the bloodless lips drawn sharply into curves of pain, his his hand fell upon her shoulder.

"Lily because I am merciful I shall keep you here. I am not a patient man, am unaccustomed to teasing importunity,—and it would pain me to harshly bruise the white flower I have undertaken to shelter from storm and dust;—therefore you must be quiet, docile, and annoy me no more with fruitless solicitations. Your mother does not want you in Europe."

"You will not let me go?"

"I will not. Let this subject rest henceforth, until I renew it."

With a faint moan, she shut her eyes and shivered; and again he took her little white cold hands.

"You have resolved to withold your confidence. Very well, I shall never again solicit it. It is not my habit to petition for that which I have no right to command. You merely force me to draw the reins, where I preferred you should at least imagine you were unbridled."

He dropped her hands, looked at his watch, and took up his gloves; adding in an entirely altered and indifferent voice:

"What have you lost to-day?"

It was with difficulty that she restrained the words:

"My youth—my peace of mind—my hope and faith in my future."

Raising her hands wearily, she rested her chin upon them, and answered, slowly:

"Many things, I fear."

"Valuable articles? Faded flowers—perfumed with choice oriental reminiscences?"

"Yes, sir I lost my purse, and my Agra violets."

"What reward will you offer for the recovery of such precious relics of fraternal affection? A promise of implicit obedience to your guardian? Certainly they are worth that trifle?"

"They are very precious indeed. Where did you find my purse?"

"On the desk at my office."

He held up the ivory toy, then laid it on the table.

"Thank you, sir. Mr. Palma, will you grant me a great favour?"

"As I never forfeit my word, I avoid entangling myself rashly in the meshes of promise. Just now I am in no mood to grant your unreasonable petitions, still I would be glad to hear what my ward desires of her guardian."

Her lip quivered, and his heart smote him, as he observed her wounded expression. She was silent, still resting her drooped head on her folded hands.

"I have confidence in the purity of your motives. I do not question the goodness of your heart, or the propriety of your intentions; but I gravely doubt the correctness of your youthful judgment. Do not force me to refuse you such a trivial thing. Tell me your purpose."

"No, sir."

A proud grieved look crossed her delicate features.

He walked away, reached the door, then came back for one of his gloves, which had fallen on the rug.

"Mr. Palma."

"Well—Miss Orme."

"Trust me."

He looked down in her beautiful sad eyes, and his heart began to throb fiercely.

"Lily,—I will."

"Some day I will explain everything."

"When do you want the money?"

"To-morrow morning, if you please."

"At breakfast you will find it in an envelope under your plate."

"Thank you, sir. It is for——"

"Hush! Tell me nothing, till you tell me all. I prefer to trust you entirely, and I shall wait for the hour when no concealment exists between us; when your secret thoughts are as much my property, as my own. Less than that will never content your exacting guardian, but that hour is very distant."

She took his hand and pressed her soft lips upon it, ere he could snatch it away."

"God grant that hour may come speedily."

"Amen,—Lily. You look worn and ill; and your eyes are distressingly elfish and shadowy. Go to sleep, little girl; and forget that you forced me to be stern and harsh. Remember that your guardian, in defiance of his judgment, trusts you fully,—entirely."

He turned quickly and quitted the library before she could reply, and soon after, hearing the street door close, she knew he had gone to Mrs. Tarrant's.

(To be Continued.)

DOMESTIC AND USEEUL.

SNOW BALL CAKE.—One cup of white sugar half cup of butter, the whites of five eggs, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, nutmeg to flavor; add flour enough to make a stiff batter; bake in patti tins.

APPLE FRITTERS.—Beat to a froth two eggs and mix with one-half of milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two cups of flour; pare and core and cut in slices tart apples; stir into the batter, fry brown in boiling lard; sprinkle with sugar when done.

LEMON CREAM.—Take a pint of thick sweet cream and put to it the yolks of two eggs well beaten, four ounces of fine sugar and the thin rind of 1 lemon; boil it up, then stir it till almost cold, put the juice of a lemon in a dish or bowl and pour the cream upon it, stirring till cold.

VANILLA CREAM FOR PUDDING.—Scald one half pint of rich milk or cream, then add the the yolks of two well beaten eggs and one-half pint of sugar, stir until it is as thick as boiled custard. When cool flavor with vanilla. Just before serving add the whites of eggs beaten stiff and gently stir the sauce.

WATER POUND CAKE.—One pound of flour and one pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, four eggs and one cup of warm water. Put into your flour before sifting two teaspoonfuls of any good baking powder. The cup of water must be quite warm, but not really hot. Beat the eggs separately.

CROQUETS.—The most acceptable way of serving up cold meat we have found to be in the shape of croquets. Mince as fine as possible; if it is mutton leave out the skin and fat, and whatever else might injure the taste; season and make up with gravy into little oval balls, dip in egg and then in bread crumbs, and fry brown. Veal and chicken croquets are particularly good; a beaten egg is mixed with these in making them up; and I have seen the chicken croquets rolled out in pear shape with a small stick for a stem, and they make a beautiful dish.

JELLY AND BLANC MANGE.—A pretty dish is made of variegated jelly and blanc mange. Make a quart of clear jelly, divide it in two equal portions and color one with prepared cochineal or Price coloring fluid, leaving the other as it is of pale amber color. Wet the mould with cold water and pour in a little batter. Set the mold in the ice, that the jelly may harden quickly, and as soon as it is firm pour in caretully some of the red. Set it back upon the ice to get ready for the amber, adding to two colors in this order until you are ready for the base, which will be wider than the other stripes and consist of the white blanc mange. Keep both jelly and blanc mange near the fire until you have filled the molds of course, that intended for the latest layers. Let all get very firm before turned out.

CHARLOTTE RUSSE.—Boil in half pint of rich milk a large vanilla bean till the milk is highly flavored, strain through a fine strainer, mix with this strained milk half pint of rich cream and add five eggs, well beaten and strained. Let this custard boil but not curdle. It must be like any boiled soft custard. Set it on ice. Have ready in another saucepan one ounce of the best isinglass boiled in a half pint of water till it is a thick jelly. When both are cold, but not hard, mix together and add four tablespoonfuls sugar, add the yellow rind of two large lemons, add the juice of the lemons and one pint of rich cream that has been whipped to a stiff broth. Then set it on the ice, cover the bottom of an oval dish with slices of sponge cake—or lady fingers—slice enough to put all around the sides of the dish, putting the whites of eggs between them to make them stick together. Fill this full of the custard mixture and put the sponge cake on top to cover it, using the whites of eggs to make it adhere. Make a nice icing for the top.

APRONS FOR HORSES.

Horses while at woak should have some protection from the bot-flies, which lay their eggs upon their shoulders, neck and gullet during the summer months. An apron may be made of any coarse cloth, and fastened to the lower part of the collar. The horse is much annoyed by the bot-flies when they dart under and strike the throat. To prevent this, a cloth can be fastened to the bit-rings and throat-latch, therby very materially adding to the comfort of the animal. Nervous horses are much more annoyed than others, some of them being almost frantic if not protected when the bot-flies are at their worst.

The Great French Lotion for Beautifying the Face.

It conceals the evidence of age. One application will make the most stubborn red and rough hands beautifully soft and white. Remember that "MAY DEW" is not a paint or powder that fills up the pores of the skin, and that is injurious to the skin, but a new and great discovery, a vegetable liquid, that causes the cheek to glow with health, the neck, arms and hands to rival the Lily in whiteness. Impossible to detect in the beauty it confers any artificial character. It cures Greasy Skin, Freckles, Wrinkles, Pimples, Black Heads, Crow's Feet, Blotches, Face Grubs, Sun Burn, Tan, Ringworms, Chapped Hands, Sore or Chapped Lips, Barber's Itch, Tetter, etc. It frees the pores, oil glands, and tubes from the injurious effects of powders and cosmetic washes. By its use all redness and roughness are prevented; it beautifies the skin, and will make it soft, smooth and white; imparting a delicious softness, producing a perfectly healthy, natural, and youthful appearance. The best face lotion that the world ever produced. We will send "A LARGE BOTTLE" to any address on receipt of price $1. When ordering mention this paper.

The weather probabilities for the district for the twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh winds; fair, comparatively cool weather.

A Runaway Accident.

Lacrosse.

The Peterborough Lacrosse Club will play a match with the Okas of Belleville on Thursday, on their return from Brockville. Those who desire to accompany the Lacrosse Club to Brockville to-morrow morning may do so at excursion rates, although the excursion proper takes place next day.

Journalistic.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star appeared last week in an enlarged form, having added eight columns to its size. It is now an eight paged paper, containing forty-eight columns. We congratulate our contemporary on this evidence of its prosperity, which it well deserves, and hope that it may continue to receive that support that is its due.

The Saved Army.

The Saved Army meeting on Sunday night was largely attended, something like the meetings when the Army first attacked Peterborough. Capt. Munt went to Cobourg on Saturday, to prepare for the eastern campaign. Capt. Atkins was in command on Sunday evening, assisted by Lieut. Rush. The Rev. W. Bennett delivered an address.

Farewell Sermons.

Three of the Methodist clergymen preached their farewell sermons to their congregations on Sunday. The Rev. John Shaw, pastor of the George Street Church, delivered an affecting sermon in that church at the morning service and in the Charlotte Street Church at the evening service. Mr. Shaw has been appointed to Orillia. The Rev. W. Joliffe, who has been appointed to Bloomfield, preached a farewell sermon in the Murray Street Church in the morning and in the Ashburnham Church in the evening. The Rev. J. W. Butcher, who ceases active work and remains in Peterborough in a superannuation relation, also preached farewell sermons in the former Bible Christian Churches. The Murray Street Church (Bible Christian) is now closed, and the congregation will divide among the George Street, Charlotte Street, and Ashburnham Churches. The Rev. T. Manning, pastor of the Charlotte Street Church, remains in Peterborough, and the new pastor of the George Street Church, the Rev. I. Torell, and of the Ashburnham Church, the Rev. F. McAmmon, B. A., will be here next Sunday.

THE FARM CROPS.

What they Look Like at this Particular Season of the Year.

Although the average farmer will readily acquiesce in the opinion that the crops are not up to that of last season, yet many of the tillers of the soil will also tell you that the crops on the whole will be nearly, if not fully, up to the average. Washington once said that "agriculture was the most healthful, most useful, and most noble employment of man," and many of the bright and cheerful faces of the farmers, (notwithstanding their many adversities) fully corroborates this exclamation of the ever-to-be-remembered George. At the present time the green fields present a very picturesque appearance. As far as the eye can reach there appears to be nothing but one vast sea of the manifold fruits of the earth, for "her harvests still the ripening summer yields." Farmers, although in some cases a little disappointed with the outlook, are on the whole, satisfied.

FALL WHEAT.

It is to be sincerely regretted that the above crop has not made better progress. It is feared by many that in certain cases the wheat has been winter-killed and therefore is liable to rust. One thing, we feel assured of, the crop will not reach that of last year, although it is looking fairly well. The heads are filling out nicely and are pretty firm. Of course it is always notorious that some farms yield more to the acre than others, but the present outlook warrants us in stating that from 15 to 20 bushels to the acre will constitute the average; indeed, many will feel heartily thankful if the yield reaches this.

THE PEA CROP.

Without a doubt this will be the best crop of the season, as they are at present looking unusually well, and in many places show signs of surpassing any previous season's yield. This will, in a measure, counteract the deficiency in the wheat crop, as peas are a very good saleable commodity.

THE OAT CROP.

This crop is thriving fairly, and gives promise of an average yield. In certain districts it looks fully up to that of other year's growth, but again in places it shows a perceptible falling off. On the whole it is expected that the oat crop will be nearly, if not quite, up to the average yield.

THE FRUIT CROP.

Perhaps the most lamentable cause for complaint is the decided shortness of the fruit crop. This is particularly noticeable in plums. For years this fruit has been gradually growing less, and this season the stern fact stares us in the face that the crop will be almost too insignificant to trouble with. Perhaps, in a measure, the husbandman is to blame for this himself. For instance, an orchard will not last forever. Fruit trees, like human beings, (figuratively speaking), have their allotted time to live, and when their bearing qualities are exhausted they, too, wither and die. Now, the proper thing for a farmer to do is this: When a tree shows signs of decay, don't go to work and doctor it, for while this may answer for a season or so, eventually it will necessarily have to be taken out root and branch. On the other hand, when signs of decay are visible, take the tree up, it is useful no longer, and in its place substitute therefor a fresh and healthy one. Continue this course for all time, and we fancy that the fruit crop will be more abundant.

OTHER CEREALS AND ROOTS

are progressing favourably, and let us hope that when the farmers are housing their grain in 1884 they will feel thankful to the Giver of all Good for his manifold blessings, and again return thanks for "a golden and abundant harvest."

PICTURESQUE FARMS.

As one drives along the highway in almost every direction, anything that is made particularly noticeable to the eye on a farm at once attracts the attention of the passer by, and is commented on. There is no ornamentation that adds to the beauty of a farm like the planting of shade trees. They are not only pleasing to the eye, but afford shelter for the horses and cattle, and oftentimes are a boon to the weary harvester who toils in the fields. Many of the farmers in this county are taking a deep interest in tree planting, and we notice with pleasure that as year succeeds year farmers are taking a greater pride in the general appearance of their farms and residences, each striving, as it were, for supremacy in this particular line. So mote it ever be.

Peterborough's Attraction.

Peterborough's greatest attraction, with the electric light, is the "Golden Lion," on George street, where every department is filled to the ceiling with choice new seasonable goods. In millinery—everything new and attractive. In dress and mantle making—the finest fabrics to choose from, and all orders executed on shortest notice, and in most elegant styles. In tailoring—a most complete stock of Scotch tweeds, fine worsteds, &c., to select from. A competent cutter and a good fit guaranteed. Other departments show specialties too numerous to mention, which tend to make Fair, VanEvery & Co. the "grand centre of attraction in Peterborough."—Our Contem.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating thar he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

PROPAGATION OF TREES BY LAYERING.

Layers are really nothing more than a form of cutting, the only difference being that they are allowed to adhere or remain attached to the parent stock—drawing sustenance therefrom until roots are emmitted, after which they are detached and become individual plants. In making layers of trees or shrubs, we bend down a branch, and cover that portion with earth upon which we wish to produce roots.

An incision is usually made on the under side of the branch before it is laid down, and the knife inserted just below a bud if there is one convenient, passing into the wood and then an inch or more lengthwise of the branch forming what is termed a tongue. A hooked peg, may be employed to hold the layer in place, or a stone laid on it, as it is quite important that the branch be held firmly in place. If the branch is large, the end may be tied up to a stake. It is not often that forest trees, except some ornamental varieties, are propagated in this way, but it is well enough to know how to do it, when necessary to increase the stock of some choice or rare specimen. Layers may be made at almost any season, but they will root sooner if made when the trees are growing rapidly, than at any other time.

Some kind of trees will produce roots when layered without cutting the branch, and exposing the albumum—in fact, all will, in time, but the surest way to cut the branch as described With some kinds, roots will be emitted so slowly that the layer must remain at least two seasons before it will be safe to sever it from the parent stock. Evergreens may be layered in the same way as deciduous trees, but the operation should always be performed during the period of active growth, else the wound made on the layer is likely to be covered with resin, which may prevent the emission of roots.

Sometimes a part of a tree or a small branch will vary from the original; when this occurs on a large tree and where the branch cannot be made to reach the ground, we are compelled to elevate the soil, or some similar material to the part we wish to propagate, unless it is some species which can be readily propagated from cuttings buds, or grafting. If we desire to obtain a layer, we have only to place a pot or box of soil near the branch, so that it can be covered with earth, the same as if near the ground. After the branch is layered, the soil surrounding it must be kept moist until roots are produced. If the pot is surrounded with cloth or moss, it will in a measure prevent the earth from drying, and therefore less frequent waterings will be required.—American Agriculturalist.

A LAY OF LAWN TENNIS.

Where the level lawn is greenest, and the sun light glistens sheenest,
Lo! she stands:
While the game is just beginning, there's the racket poised for winning,
In her hands.

She is daintily athletic, she is very energetic
In the set;
See, she's just returned a twister that was sent her by her sister,
O'er the net.

She is great at "Renshaw smashes," 'tis a stroke that rather rash is—
All the same;
But her pretty little muscles are quite equal to the tussles
Of the game.

Happy he who stands beside her, and is privileged to guide her
As she plays!
I could do that pleasant duty to this Amazonian beauty
All my days.

As I watch her garments flutter there are words I fain would utter,
But I'm dumb;
For she's tennis mad and never from her racket seems to sever—
When I come.

I must take my chance while playing, there is danger in delaying;
I'll confide
My devotion so unswerving to the lady when I'm serving
By her side.

Not all Atalanta's paces, when she ran her famous races,
Were more fleet;
Like Milanion in olden days I'd cast the apples golden
At her feet!

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

POLICE COURT.

TWO OR TEN.

TUESDAY, July 8.—Jas. Farley was charged by Chief Johnston with having been drunk and disorderly. He was fined $2 or ten days in gaol and a warrant of committal was signed.

James Lisle acknowledged the truthfulness of a similar charge preferred against him by Constable Pidgeon. He was fined $2 or ten days in gaol. He paid the fine.

—Fine, cool weather.

—One tramp and one prisoner in the cells last night.

—Cricket match this afternoon between the married and single members of the Club.

A meeting of the Board of Education this evening, which will probably be an important meeting.

—The City Band will not play in the park this evening, as they have been engaged to play at the strawberry festival in Ashburnham in aid of St. Peter's Cathedral building fund.

Peterborough's Attraction.

Peterborough's greatest attraction, with the electric light, is the "Golden Lion," on George street, where every department is filled to the ceiling with choice new seasonable goods. In millinery—everything new and attractive. In dress and mantle making—the finest fabrics to choose from, and all orders executed on shortest notice, and in most elegant styles. In tailoring—a most complete stock of Scotch tweeds, fine worsteds, &c., to select from. A competent cutter and a good fit guaranteed. Other departments show specialties too numerous to mention, which tend to make Fair, VanEvery & Co. the "grand centre of attraction in Peterborough."—Our Contem.

Teachers' Examination.

The examination of candidates for Intermediate and Third-class certificates was commenced on Monday. Mr. J. C. Brown, I. P. S. for the County, being the examiner, assisted by Mr. Hutchinson, of Norwood. For the intermediate there are nine candidates, 6 female and 3 male, from the following places:—Peterborough, 5; Bridgenorth, 2; Lakefield, 2. In the third-class examinations there are 28 candidates, 27 from the town and one from Douro. The examination for second-class certificates commences on Wednesday. Four candidates have entered for that examination, 2 male and 2 female, three being from the town and one from Whitby. One candidate had to retire on Monday on account of bringing a text book into the room.

Steamer Ashore.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 6.—Word was received in this city at a late hour to-night, that the Furness line steamer Lincoln City was ashore near Isaac Harbour, the information coming through the telegraph office at the latter place. The steamer is from Stockholm, bound to New York with large numbers of passengers and general cargo on board. Her commander, Capt. William Harrison, telegraphs that she is not making water, but is working badly. Assistance will be sent from this city as soon as possible. The Lincoln City is a new steamer, having only been lately launched, and was on her first Atlantic passage.

Floods on the Rio Grande.

RINCON, N.M., July 7.—This place has been pretty well devastated by floods. San Marcial and all the depots above, except Lavastation, have been submerged. Judging from reports of the vast quantities of snow yet in the ranges along the sources of the Rio Grande, the end of the flood is not yet. All the pastoral lands of the Puebla Indians have been submerged.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

MANITOBA OPINION.

Notwithstanding the talk of those who would desire the disruption of the Union, the popular feeling in favor of Confederation was never so strong as it is to-day.—Winnipeg Times.

WITH THE PEOPLE.

We only wish that our Grits had enough of the Tory quickness of perception and responsiveness to the popular will to stimulate them in the adoption of a progressive and enlightened policy.—Toronto News (Indep.)

MR. BLAKE INTRIGUING.

Mr. Blake has done his reputation no good by being a party to the present intrigue, for that is the only word to characterize it, and the Ontario Government are only hastening their own demise when they take to creating unnecessary offices.—Toronto World (Indep.-Ref.)

REFORM SNEERS ANSWERED.

Were not some of the wealthiest townships of to-day peopled originally by men who were poor in purse, though not in pluck and honesty, as their subsequent prosperity has well testified to? Then why is so much care taken to discourage the man of muscle in favor of the man of money?—London Free Press.

CORRUPT WIRE PULLING.

Mr. Edgar wishes to get in the Commons, and is pulling every wire that he can to attain that object. He has induced the Ontario Government, for what consideration we cannot here say, to create an office for Mr. Wheeler in the provincial service; he has also induced the Globe, of which he is director, to come out in his favor; he has further tried to get men of influence to go to Dr. Widdifield, of York, who thinks he has local claims to the seat, to try and induce that gentleman to retire. Still further have the wires been pulled, and a deal of some kind or another made with Mr. Glen, of Oshawa, who formerly represented part of the riding and who is supposed to have influence in it, to assist Mr. Edgar's candidature.—Toronto World (Indep.-Ref.)

USEFUL ADVOCATES.

It has been quite surprising how Messrs. Blake, Mackenzie and Cartwright have succeeded in persuading electors to vote for the Conservative candidate.—Sherbrooke Gazette.

THE WEST ONTARIO JOB.

The whole business is cut and dried in advance of the convention, of course, and that body will merely register the decree of the Toronto clique, but the Globe need not have given the thing away quite so badly.—Toronto News (Indep.)

AN N. P. RESULT.

Reciprocity is evidently gaining favor among our neighbours. The report of the House Committee at Washington recommending reciprocity with Canada, coming at a time when politics are getting hot, would seem to indicate that the party managers regard the question as a good one to agitate in view of the coming presidential contest.—Ottawa Sun (Indep.)

AXES TO GRIND.

It is little short of a burlesque upon franchise independence—an empty form, to which we are not disposed to give silent assent, to go through all the routine of a convention in order to elect a member, cut and dried beforehand by outsiders who have "axes to grind" and want the grindstone of West Ontario to sharpen upon.—Newmarket Era (Reform).

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT.

The receptivity of Conservatism, and its quickness in responding to any strong, decided popular demand, has greatly hastened the adoption of many reforms which, by a dead-set antagonism on principle, might have been indefinitely delayed. It is surely better in the interests of the community that a party in office should be able to see what the people want, and be willing to do it, than doggedly unprogressive.—Toronto News (Indep.)

A Mystery Solved.

The mystery concerning the disappearance of Vanderburg, the North Plains man, missing since April, has been solved, and the solution was attended with another tragic death. Vanderburg, his wife, and two children, lived with his wife's parents at North Plains, her half brother, Oscar Scott, being also a member of the family. Mrs. Vanderburg and Scott were about the same age, and a friendship sprang up between the two which soon ripened into a suspicious intimacy, the result being the estrangement of husband and wife, and Vanderburg and Scott had frequent quarrels, but they managed to live together in semi-harmony until the latter part of April, when both started for Edmore on business. Several days after Scott returned, but made no attempt to explain the cause of Vanderburg's absence. Shortly after he and the deserted wife were living together at Edmore as though nothing had happened, but the authorities were quietly investigating the matter, and on Saturday last a warrant was issued, and Scott arrested on suspicion of killing Vanderburg. Deputy Sheriff Derrick continued the search for evidence to prove the crime upon the accused, and yesterday the body of the murdered man was found in a half-filled well on the property where Scott and Mrs. Vanderburg were living, about two miles east of Edmore. The body, when brought to the surface showed deep wounds on the head. The condition of the body indicated that a murder must have been committed. Before Mrs. Vanderburg removed to Edmore it is thought she was cognizant of the crime. Scott was present when the search was being made for the body, and seeing Sheriff Derrick and his force digging in the well the guilty man drew a revolver and shot himself through the head, dying almost instantly. There is intense excitement at Edmore. The murdered man was 45 years of age, and besides an unfaithful wife he leaves two children. Mrs. Vanderburg is under arrest.

DUBLIN, July 7.—The Jury to-day rendered a verdict for Mr. William O'Brien, in the suit for £5,000 damages for libel, brought against him by Secretary Cornwall, of the Dublin P.O., for an article charging him with nameless offences against decency. The Judge occupied three hours in summing up the case, and his charge to the jury was greatly in favour of the plaintiff. The jury was absent one hour and a half. Cornwall and O'Brien both were present. Soon after the trial your correspondent saw Mr. O'Brien at his hotel. He said:—"I have been confident throughtout this trial that I would win: but now I naturally feel elated. It is glorious to have been enabled to expose the odious gang who have degraded this beautiful city of Dublin by bestial crime. Your correspondent also had a brief interview with Mr. Cornwall. He is a large, distinguished-looking man of about 65, and his hair and beard are almost completely white. He said that the jurors were all friends of O'Brien, and that he would at once move to have the verdict set aside and a new trial ordered.—Mail.

CANADIAN FORESTS.

AMONG other gratifying proofs of the more general interest that is being awakened in regard to our forests and the industries connected therewith, is the publication of a work on "Canadian Forests, Forest Trees, Timber and Forest Products," by H. B. Small, of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. There have been previous publications in some of our Provinces on these subjects, but Mr. Small's is the first that embraces the whole Dominion and treats these matters from a Canadian rather than a local point of view. The information thus collected and given to the public in a readable form, will be found both valuable and interesting, while it is thoroughly trustworthy, resulting from personal observation, for which the author has had exceptional advantages, and from the official records of the Dominion and its several Provinces. The importance of our forests to the community may be seen from the fact that of the industries more especially connected with timber the factories number 17,577, the hands employed being 95,741, and the annual value of the products $95,029,828. The Canadian exports of forest products and manufactures of wood were valued in 1883 at $26,761,892. After the general account of the forests of Canada and their products, the author gives separate descriptions in detail of the timber districts of the Dominion and of each Province, with lists and descriptions of the trees in each, and of the uses to which their timber is put. The minor, though in many cases important products of the woods, also receive due notice, as do "Forest Enemies" from the insect to the ravaging conflagration. In conclusion there is a short but graphic account of the manner in which lumbering is carried on.

While describing the forest wealth of Canada, Mr. Small does not fail to call attention to its rapid diminution, to the want of economy in utilizing it, and to the necessity for adopting means for its conservation and reproduction. This is a question that is forcing itself upon the consideration of all thoughtful minds, and this is true of the lumbermen no less than of others.

The publishers, Messrs. Dawson Bros., of Montreal, have done their part in producing a work, which should be widely circulated and attentively perused.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

In spite of the obstacles due to the unhealthiness of the district, sparseness of population, and the mechanical difficulties of construction progress is being made. The line of canal is divided into 23 sections, superintended by four engineers in chief. The preliminary work of organizing is practically over, and actual work on the canal begins to make a show. The amount of excavation completed up to March last is about six million cubic meters, and it is anticipated that next year three times as much will be completed. Six dredgers of the Slaven type are being constructed in Philadelphia at a cost of £25,000 each; they are capable of dredging alluvium and soft coral rock. Schist and gritstone can be dredged after blasting. Two dredgers are expected to arrive from New York. One dredger was burned in January, but has been replaced by another; one commenced work in May. The sum expended during the past 3½ years amounted to between £5,000,000 to £7,000,000. The effect of the operations has been to double the traffic in both passengers and goods on the Panama Railway. Panama itself is increasing in population, and building is very active, whilst at Colon, the other extremity of the line, the place is hardly to be recognized; from a small hamlet in 1880 it has become a thriving town with a brisk trade and streets swarming with people. Houses, stores, and other edifices have been constructed all over the island of Manzanilla, and the swamps and marshes are being reclaimed. In the harbor as many as sixty ships may be seen at times lying at anchor waiting for their turn to be discharged, the accommodation in quays and wharves being quite insufficient for the rapidly grown traffic. Upward of 82,000 tons of machinery and stores were discharged last year for the Canal Company at Colon.—The Mechanical World.

FREEMASONRY.

The Earl of Carnarvon on the Pope's Encyclical Letter.

The quarterly communication of Grand Lodge of English Freemasons was held on June 4th at the Freemason's Hall. The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, presided, having the Earl of Cremorne in the Senior Warden's chair. After the replies of the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and the Duchess of Albany to the addresses of condolence on the death of the Duke of Albany had been ordered to be entered on the minutes,

The Earl of Carnarvon rose and said: Before we proceed to the next business which stands on the agenda paper, I have a communication of an important character to make from the Grand Master. I could have wished that this communication were entered on the agenda paper, it would have been more in due form that it should be so; but whatever blame attaches to any delay in furnishing the resolution I have to move attaches to myself. Brethren, everyone here present has probably seen an encyclical letter of the Pope which appeared in many public prints with reference to Freemasonry in general. I believe it would not be our duty if, on this first and earliest occasion we meet after the publication of that encyclical, we were to separate without some notice of it, and I have felt it my duty from this chair to propose to you the course which I think is wise and dignified for us to take. It is a duty which none of us can covet, but which, like many other duties, we are bound to accept, and I hope that in the few words which I shall say this evening on this question I shall only speak in that measured language of respect which is due to the head of the Roman Catholic Church. All the more do I say this, and feel it, that I sincerely respect him, not merely as the Roman Pontiff, but as a statesman who succeeded to a great post—a great political post—in critical times, has shown his statesmanship with ability, and I think discretion. Now, the letter to which I have to call your attention is a very long one; it contains a variety of topics, and it would occupy far too long if I were to attempt either to read it or to summarise it. It commences by making a certain exception in favour of individuals. A certain portion again of it is devoted to what I may call Italian Politics, and to the relations of the Papal Court with other foreign Powers with which, of course, this Grand Lodge has nothing to do. And a part again is devoted to a condemnation of that which we must all condemn in literature, in morals, in practice, of the present day. Having so far disposed of these points on which no issue may be raised, I now approach those topics which intimately concern us—and I think this encyclical falls into these two great errors—in the first place it confounds all Masonic bodies in all parts of the world in a common and charging sweep of condemnation, and it next proceeds to confound all those Masonic bodies with infidels or, as it terms them, 'naturalists in religion,' and the revolutionists and anarchists in politics. Now I hold here a copy of this encyclical and I observe that it imputes, amongst other things, these charges to the whole Masonic body without discrimination and without qualification. It charges us with treating matrimony in the lightest possible spirit, and regarding it as no bond or tie; it accuses us of separating education from religion and morals and it charges us with a dissemination of vice and vicious principles for the purpose of corrupting the morals of the young; and last, it imputes to us all those monstrous charges which which are included under the titles of sedition, revolution, socialism and communism. (Laughter.) Now, brethren, it is perhaps right that I should, for the purpose af substantiating what I say, read a very few words from this encyclical. It says that we hold that matrimony belongs to a class of business engagements, that it can be broken off at the will of those who contracted it and by right; that in the education and teaching of children we exclude the ministers of the Church from the supervision and instruction of them, and that in moral instruction nothing is to be brought in which is to bind man to God by the great and holy sanction of religion. It says we treat as idle fables the redemption of the human race, heavenly grace, the sacraments, and the attaining of felicity in Heaven, that we claim our right to say there is a God, or to say that there is no God, that we maintain that the masses of the people by every art and design, are to be saturated with an unlimited license to vice, for this being secured, they will be in the power of the sect to attempt anything and everything at its bidding; and lastly, it adds that our ultimate end is to aim to overthrow that discipline and social order which Christianity has founded, and to erect upon its throne a new one after its own principles and foundations of disorder. Now, brethren, it is my duty, and I hold it to be the duty of the Grand Lodge this night, on the first occasion which has been given to it, to protest against these unfounded charges—(hear, hear)—and in protesting to affirm with all the force and all the solemnity we can bring to bear that they are founded upon a complete and total misapprehension of Freemasonry. (Hear, hear). Brethren, I am not here to-night to defend all Masonic bodies in all parts of the world. (Hear, hear.) As we desire to stand perfectly clear ourselves, so let us not take any ground that is not absolutely correct. (Hear, hear.) I grieve to think that there are some Masonic bodies that have laid themselves open to many of the charges which this encyclical letter contains, but on the other hand, I fearlessly deny that there has been anything directly or indirectly, by word or by deed, that can sully the fair fame either of this Grand Lodge or of any lodge under its rule. (Hear, hear.) If I desired to appeal for evidence on this subject where should I turn? I should point to our rules, our ancient charges, our book of constitutions, one and all breathing a spirit of religion and of obedience to the law. (Hear, hear.) I hope I might go further and, taking the Masonic bodies of England as a whole, I might point to our different lodges and to our members, and say that in life, in morals, they are not unworthy of their great professions—(hear, hear)—and, lastly, I should turn to that long line of illustrious rulers who have governed the craft, whose pictures till last year, before this hall was consumed by fire, hung on these walls, and above all to our present Grand Master himself—(cheers)—and I would ask any one, any fair and impartial bystander, whether it was conceivable that an order founded I say upon these laws, governed by these traditions, ruled by these rulers, could ever be open to the monstrous charges which I have now just read? (Cheers.) If, indeed, any further illustration were needed of what I have now said I would remind you of two comparatively recent facts. Four years ago I think it was this Grand Lodge, without one single dissenting voice, having taken into consideration, in the calmest and most solemn manner, the course of action which had been pursued by a large portion of Branch Lodges, who erased from their title-deeds and charters the affirmation of the immortality of the soul and the belief in the Supreme God—I say this Grand Lodge having taken that into its calm consideration, then resolved, without one dissenting voice, without one hand being held up against it, to break off, painful as it might be, all communion with the French Lodges. (Hear, hear.) That was the first evidence in recent times to which I would appeal; and I might now turn to one event so recent that it has been illustrated in the minutes which we have heard read this evening—an occasion in which I took a part, and in which many here present took a part—I mean the laying of the corner-stone of a tower of Peterborough Cathedral. When anyone who was present on that memorable scene recalls how the bishop and clergy stood arrayed in their places, how the volunteer citizens, the defenders of order and right, stood marshalled in long lines, how men of every class and every profession, men to whom religion and social order might be deemed to have been the dearest object of their hearts—when I say we remember that those men were brought together for the restoration of a temple for the worship and honor of Almighty God I think it would be worse than foolish to suppose that we could have gone through such a blasphemous mimicry if really our hearts had been turned in the opposite direction and we had been plotters against social orders and deniers of the Supreme Being. (Loud applause). I am convinced, brethren, that social order and religion have no stronger friends, no truer pillars to rest upon than the Masonic bodies of England. (Hear, hear). I deeply regret, brethren, that any person in the position of the Pope should have been so far misled by false representation as to put his hand—I am sure most undesignedly—to such a miss-statement of facts as this encyclical contains. I wish and think that anything that I can say or that we could do here would open his eyes to the facts of the case, but whether that be so or not we have a duty to ourselves and to the ancient and venerable order that we represent, and it is this, in the most temperate language that we can command, but at the same time the most decisive, to protest against this charge, and to spread far and wide our protest against it, and with this object, and with this purpose I beg now to submit to Grand Lodge a motion, trusting that on this as on the former occasion to which I alluded there will be neither dissentient voice nor gesture, I beg now to move.

"First, that this Grand Lodge has seen with great regret the recent encyclical letter in which the charges of atheism, sedition and vice are made against Masonry in general without discrimination or qualification; and, secondly, that this Grand Lodge, whilst it does not deny that meeting of political and seditious purposes have in some countries been held under the pretence of their being Masonic Lodges, can only express its astonishment and regret that English Freemasonry should by some strange misapprehension of facts be included in this sweeping charge, which the law, practices, and traditions of the Order, as well as the position of its rulers clearly prove to be utterly without foundation." Applause.

Mr. John Havers, Past Grand Warden, seconded the motion, which was then put and carried unanimously, amidst general applause.

Grand Lodge then proceed with other Masonic business, and was afterwards closed in ample form.—London Morning Press.

AN IMPORTANT CANADIAN PATENT.

The latest issue of the Scientific American contains a representation of a novel patent designed by Mr. O. H. Lambart, of Vinolynne, New Edinburgh, Ontario, for a system of watertight compartments. It says:—The watertight compartments completely surround the ship, thereby very much reducing the danger of foundering at sea. The designer claims that in case of a collision not many of the compartments could be destroyed at once; that the hull would have an outside protection; and that in case an aperture were made below the water line and the ship were to fill with water, the rim of compartments surrounding the ship would keep her afloat.

It will be observed that this method of building does not interfere with the buoyancy of the ship, since the space occupied by the chambers is above the water line. Neither does this method impair her sailing qualities nor destroy the elegance of her lines.

S.S. Sardinian vs. S.S. Vancouver.

The following curious little tiff between two captains of the Allan and Dominion lines appears in the Montreal Witness:—

SIR,—I notice in the newspapers a letter from Captain Dutton, of the Allan line SS. Sardinian, to the following effect:—

QUEBEC, 29th June, 1884.

(To the Editor of the Morning Chronicle.)

DEAR SIR,—In your issue of yesterday I observe over the signature of Captain C. J. Lindall, SS. Vancouver, that he passed my ship on the 20th inst. I wish to state that on the occasion named I was shaping my course to Moville to take the mails, and had my engines stopped waiting for a pilot.

Yours truly,
J. E. DUTTON,
Master SS. Sardinian.

In reply I beg to state that the Vancouver left Liverpool one hour after the Sardinian, and stopped at the bar ship and landed pilot, thus losing about twenty minutes. Came up with and passed the Sardinian about 190 miles out, and reached Quebec nearly 38 hours before her. If she was waiting for a pilot about ten miles east of the entrance to Louch Foyle (Moville), on a clear morning about 10 o'clock, I wonder she is not waiting there yet.

Yours truly,
C. J. LINDALL,
Master Dominion Line SS. Vancouver.

A Strange Article of Dress.

An exchange says:—"Ambitious young ladies now advertise themselves by putting on their pet dogs' silver collars bearing some such inscription as this:—'I'm Miss Polly Gabble's little dog—whose little dog are you?' If the dude who reads this inscription doesn't take the hint at once, the dog has instructions to bite the dude's legs off and come along." This may be another severe joke on the much abused though innocent dude, but is it not rather hard on the young ladies? Would it not make a young lady look a little—just a little—ridiculous if she wore her pet dog's silver collar, and then the inscription? But there is no way of accounting for some young ladies' ideas regarding dress.

Bush Fires About Kingston.

The fires in the 6th concession of Oso are doing great damage to farmers in this locality, who have been battling with the flames for some time. The fire is raging in the 6th and 7th concession, township of Kingston, and on the line of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway. The farmers in that section are praying for rain, which is now falling. The men at Clarendon station have been fighting fire for a week. It is thought the danger is now over. The finest timber at Boulten's mill has been burned, and the falling of trees can be heard in all directions.—Globe.

The Ontario Pressmen.

The Ontario Pressmen this season are arranging to go to the far west and Rocky Mountains of the Northern Pacific. The idea is, if possible to take the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's steamers to some point on Lake Superior from which the Northern Pacific Railway can be reached easily. The trip will last about two weeks if matters are arranged as intended.

The British Association.

The local committee of the British Association are kept busy with arrangements. It is now proposed to have the authorities of McGill University entertain the association at a reception in the College on Thursday, August 28th. Arrangements for a grand reception are being made by the citizens' committee, to be held on Tuesday, September 2nd.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

Sensible Maxims

Never be idle. If your mind cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live, (misfortune excepted) within your income. Do business only with men that have one price, any man that will ask you 50cts. and take 40cts. will cheat you or your neighbour. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it, and when you want value for your money go to KELLYS. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow unless you cannot possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. Read the above maxims at least once a week.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

THE LADIES' COLUMN.

WOMEN AS CHEMISTS.—On the subject of female chemists and druggists the San Francisco Call thinks that in the general engagement of woman's sphere of employment the dispensing of drugs suggests itself as a pursuit admirably adapted to the sex's capabilities. "The practice of pharmacy requires little in the way of physical strength, and certainly woman's capacity for receiving the necessary preliminary instructions is quite as great as the average drug clerk, while her superior delicacy of touch and dexterity of hand would be of great advantage in the nice duties of the position. As to the comparative probability of her substituting morphine where quinine is prescribed, it would be difficult to predict, but as a precautionary measure it might be well to admit to positions only such applicants as a certain degree of age and attractiveness precludes from probable disturbance of the affections." The sly hint as to "attractiveness" is not bad.

IMPORTED BONNETS.—The latest bonnets imported show brilliancy of color, much gold and gilt, straw lace and other fancy braids, and a profusion of wonderfully natural flowers delicately perfumed. Most of the bonnets are of the small close-fitting princess or capote shape, with wide strings that tie far at the left side. A pretty shape from Mme. Virot's in a cactus lace straw of pale yellow shade, trimmed with puffings of primrose-colored satin surah, edged with gold lace. High on one side is an immense bunch of violets showing all the delicate shades of heliotrope. The inside is faced with fancy-colored velvet with a heading of straw lace which edges the brim. Another bonnet, more pronounced in style, is made of pale yellow crape, with wide strings of the same. The brim is of pale yellow satin surah, and the puffed crown of crape is surrounded by gold lace with large cardinal poppies and shaded messes intermingled. A lovely gypsey bonnet made of white china crape is trimmed with a delicate net-work of Roman pearls over the crown, which is wreathed with cascades of cream-tinted Spanish blonde lace veiling, tiny bouquets of blush roses set here and there. The brim inside is finished with pleatings of the Spanish blonde lace.

WOMAN'S WORK.—I have known women who never in their lives possessed sufficient bodily strength to lift a pail full of water, or to close their fingers firmly about a mop and wring it dry; yet who, if they might be released from this heavy work and the toiling and straining in their cases inseparable from it, could occupy themselves busily and profitably all day with work suited to their capacity. But the toiling and straining must go on. If the housekeeper cannot carry the pail full of water, she carries it half full, and goes twice instead of once; if she cannot wring the mop with one vigorous twist, a succession of weak squeezes are made to answer. And so steadily on, day after day, and year after year, until the inevitable collapse evertakes her; then, it may be, the husband at last discovers that it would have been "money in his pocket" if he had granted release from hard labor before outraged nature took it—and revenge at the same time.

I hope I am not misunderstood. I should be the last to ask that women be set free from all duties and responsibilities, petted, dressed, and kept like useless dolls. Every woman's life should be filled with work of interest and value to herself and others. I only stipulate that this work should be suited to her strength physical and mental, and, as far as possible, to her individual bias and propensessions, and that man, while preaching "woman's sphere" and the "shelter and elevating influences of home," should not in that house heap upon her weak shoulders burdens too great to be borne.

Many a sweet woman will tell you it is a pleasure to her to minister to those she loves. Yet it does not follow that her husband has any moral right to demand that she should, all the days of their married life, serve him as his valet. Even if men feel that they cannot so infringe upon their proper dignity as to lend a helping hand about "woman's work," what a boon it would be to tired wives and daughters if they would but wait upon themselves, (or is that 'woman's work' too? it seems usually made so;) if, instead of saying every week, or, may be, two or three times a week: "Wife, where are my clean clothes?" a man would go himself to the drawer where they are always kept, and lay them out without waiting for her to do it, and if, when the umbrella, the lap-robe or some extra garment is wanted from the store-room upstairs, he would fetch it himself, instead of waiting while wife or daughter scurries up and down in breathless haste, lest the return may be greeted with a, "Well, I didn't suppose you'd got to wait to make an umbrella," or similar pleasantry. It may be after he had gone up and down on such errands some dozens of times he might fancy it a good idea to build a store-room below stairs.

GROWING HOUSE PLANTS IN MOSS.

In some of the Swiss villages, nearly all the inhabitants are engaged in watch-making. They work in large rooms, which, being abundantly lighted, and well warmed, allow the workmen to cultivate plants, that, on account of the uncertainty and rigor of the climate, can not be grown in the open air. The President of the local horticultural societies in Switzerland gives, in the "Revue Horticole," an account of the great success with which plants are cultivated in moss in these watch factories. One great advantage in the use of moss is the readiness with which plants may be grouped in large vases and boxes. In France a "fertil ized moss" is sold, but ordinary moss, with occasional application of liquid fertilizers, will answer as well. Ordinary sphagnum, or pert moss, such as is used by florists in packing, may be employed, but the writer prefers the moss which grows in sheets upon rocks, and around the trunks of trees at their base. Wire baskets lined with this moss are used, as are jadiniers of metal glazed pottery, etc., taking care to provide sufficient drainage. The liquid fertilizer used on these house plants, should be without unpleasant odor; weak guano water, solutions of nitrate of soda, or sulphate of ammonia, may be employed, and very fine flour of bone may be mixed with the moss.

Senator Skead.

OTTAWA, July 5.—Senator Skead died to-day at noon. He was 67 years of age.

The deceased Senator was born near Moresby Hall in Cumberland, Eng., and was educated there. After coming to this country he was long and intimately connected with the lumbering and manufacturing interests. He was President of the Ottawa Board of Trade, of the City of Ottawa Agricultural Society, and of the Ottawa Liberal Conservative Association. He was also President of the Dominion Board of Trade, a director of the Ottawa Association of Lumber Manufacturers, of the Madawaska River Improvement Company, and of the Canchnawaga Ship Canal Company. At different times also he was vice-president of the Canada Central Railway Company, and of the Montreal and Ottawa City Junction Railway. He was elected President of the Liberal Conservative Convention which met in Toronto, 23rd of Sept., 1874. In 1876 he was appointed a a Judge of the Timber Department of the U S. Centennial. He unsuccessfully contested Carleton for the Ontario Assembly at the General Election in 1867. He was called to the Senate by Royal Proclamation in May 1867. He resigned in 1881 and was re-appointed on the 24th of December, 1881.

LADIES' JOURNAL

Bible Competition No. 7.

Closing September 11th.

The Leading Rewards are Lot 50 x 150 at Toronto Junction, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Gold and Silver Watches, Silver Tea Sets, &c.

The proprietor of the Ladies Journal now announces a magnificent list of rewards for correct answers to Bible questions. It is surprising how little is known of the Bible. The questions are not so difficult this time as last, and we should be glad if there was a hearty response so as to encourage the proprietor of the Journal to persevere in his good work. It was announced in the June issue of the Ladies' Journal that the competition which closed last month would be the last for the present, but it has been decided to try one more.

All money must be sent by post office or express. No information will be given to any one more than is stated here. So send on answers, and don't waste time writing. Do not send postage stamps unless six cents is added for the discount. Remit by postoffice order, scrip or small coin.

THE BIBLE QUESTIONS:

1.—Is Diamond referred to in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

2.—Is Emerald made mention of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

3.—Is Sapphire spoken of in the Bible? If so, state first reference.

These all refer to the precious stones.

Now, any one having a knowledge of the Scriptures ought to be able promptly to answer these questions with a little study, and so secure some one of those rewards. Bear in mind every one competing must send FIFTY CENTS with their answers for which the Ladies' Journal will be sent one year to any address. If you answer each of the questions correctly and your answers are in time you are sure to secure one of these costly rewards.

But you can, of course, send in any time between now and the 11th of September, and your letter will take its place at the publication office in the order it arrives there. All letters are carefully numbered as they arrive, and there can be no mistake. If your answers are correct, and they reach there in time, you will surely get some reward in addition to the Ladies' Journal, which alone is big value for the half dollar. If you don't get anything but the Journal you will be well pleased with your investment, as it consists of 20 pages of fashions illustrated, short and serial stories, poetry, newest music, household hints, etc., etc.; in fact, just the paper to suit every lady.

By subscribing in a club with your neighbors you will secure some considerable advantage—that is, there must be at least thirty of a club, and all who send correct answers to the Bible questions may have their choice of a handsome ring, heavily gold-plated ladies' gold brooch, which retails at about one dollar and a half, or a triple-plated butter knife. Either of these you may wish will be sent postage paid. You will thus secure to a certainty one or other of these two presents, and in addition will have as good an opportunity of gaining some one of the other large rewards in lists given above just as well as though you had sent in singly. This is simply an inducement to get up clubs. We are sure our readers could not do better than to try their skill in hunting up these questions and competing for these rewards. Everything will be carried out exactly as promised.

Prizes in last competition went all over Canada and to many parts of the United States.

Address, Editor LADIES' JOURNAL, Toronto, Canada.

THE painful romance the lost Charlie Ross is kept alive from time to time by reported returns of the missing boy. The other morning a lad, thirteen years of age, called at the residence of Mr. Ross, in Germantown, Pa., and told a story, which bore the appearance of truth, and has led many people to believe him to be the missing son. ## LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Cheaper than Ever.

Silks, Woolens, Cottons 15 per cent cheaper than elsewhere at H. Levi & Son, the Red Store.

Rowing.

The first contest for the cups given by Messrs. Geo Stevenson and A. Moffatt will be rowed on Monday evening next. Entries will be received by Mr. Stevenson up to noon on Thursday.

Confirmation.

The Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto will administer the rite of confirmation in St. John's Church, Peterborough, this evening at eight o'clock. On Wednesday evening he will confirm the candidates at St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, at half-past seven o'clock.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours, counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate winds; fine, slightly warmer weather.

Improvements.

Among the many recent improvements noticed in Peterborough, may be mentioned the renovating, painting and refurnishing of Mr. Halpin's Hotel on Hunter street. This hotel is centrally located, pleasant and convenient, and is one of the most quiet and orderly hotels in town. Every attention is paid to the wants and comfort of guests, and it will be found more home-like than hotels usually are.

Masonic Delegates.

Messrs. C. D. Macdonald, E. H. D. Hall and Rev. V. Clementi left town on the 4.30 train last evening, and Mr. R. H. Green left on this morning's train to attend the Grand Preceptory and Grand Chapter in Toronto, which meets to-day. Messrs. B. Shortly and Walter Paterson and Dr. Fraser also leave to-day to attend the Masonic Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter which meets on Wednesday in Toronto.

The Entrance Examinations.

There were 92 candidates at the examinations for entrance into the Collegiate Institute, held last week. Of these 52 were female and 40 were male. From the Central School there were 55; Convent de Notre Dame, 9; Smith, 12; Cavan, 4; Otonabee, 2; North Monaghan, 2; South Monaghan, 3; Douro, 1; Dummer, 1, and Ennismore, 3. It will be fully a month before the examination of the papers will be concluded.

A. C. A.

To those who intend to attend the camp of the A.C.A. at the Thousand Islands (and we hope they will be numerous) it will be satisfactory to learn that Mr. White, with his usual liberality, has arranged to give through tickets from Peterborough to Gananoque and back, good from August 1st to August 16th at a single fare. As was the case last year, canoes and equipments will be carried free. Members of the A. C. A. should therefore remit their renewal subscription to Secretary Neide, Schuylerville, N. Y., and obtain their certificates.

A Strawberry Festival.

The choir of the Murray Street Bible Christian Church, which is now closed, were invited to attend a strawberry festival given in their honor at the residence of Mr. Brownscombe on Monday evening. The choir gave a number of songs and choruses, and the recitations of Miss Rose Clarke were greatly admired. Games were played on the lawn by the light of the moon, and altogether a very pleasant evening was enjoyed. Before the party separated, Mr. Chowen, leader, tendered the thanks of the choir to Mr. Brownscombe for his kindness and thoughtfulness.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Motion Adopted Regarding Butchers' Slaughter Houses.

A meeting of the Board of Health was held on Monday evening.

PRESENT,—Mr. A. McNeil, Chairman, and Messrs. Allen, Stapleton, Rutherford, Green, Hartley and Paterson.

Several butchers were also present.

THE BUTCHERS WITHDRAW.

The CHAIRMAN explained what had taken place at the informal meeting on Thursday night last. He asked whether it would be necessary to hear the butchers again?

The members were of the opinion that it was not necessary, and the butchers withdrew.

A communication was read, containing a complaint, and was referred to the Sanitary Inspectors.

WOULD THEY ENFORCE THE LAW?

The CHAIRMAN said this meeting was called because there was not a quorum at the last meeting to take action on the butchers' views regarding slaughter houses. The question was, would they enforce clause 8?

Mr. ALLEN said that he did not see how they could do it without including Mr. Matthews' pork packing house.

Mr. PATERSON said that so long as the butchers keep the slaughter houses clean he did not think it necessary to enforce it.

The CHAIRMAN said that the clause was imperative.

After considerable desultory discussion,

Mr. ALLEN moved that the butchers of the Town of Peterborough be allowed to slaughter in their own slaughter houses, to be inspected by the Sanitary Inspectors, and at any time if found to be a nuisance they have power to remove them immediately.

The CHAIRMAN said he would not put the resolution, as it was contrary to the provisions of the law.

Mr. ALLEN,—Then why did you call this meeting at all? Or why ask the butchers to attend?

The CHAIRMAN said that the butchers were invited to attend so as to hear their opinions on the best means of carrying out the law.

Mr. RUTHERFORD said that if they had the power to discriminate, Mr. Allen's motion would be in order, but he understood that the law was imperative.

Mr. ALLEN maintained that if his motion was not in order, they had to enforce clause eight. They could not let it lie.

Mr. PATERSON seconded Mr. Allen's motion. He said that they should deal lightly with the Act this year, as he felt sure that there would be changes made in the law next session.

Mr. ALLEN amended his motion, at the suggestion of the Chairman, to read as follows:—"That the Sanitary Inspectors be instructed to rigidly inspect the slaughter houses, and if at any time they find them in any way a nuisance, they be instructed to enforce rule eight in the by-law."

The motion was adopted.

THE POLICE CELLS.

Mr. RUTHERFORD, in answer to the Chairman, said that nothing had been done yet in regard to the lock-up.

HOGS.

Inspector ADAMS, in answer to a question, said that the law was being enforced regarding hogs.

A GENERAL TALK.

Dr. CLARK, Medical Health Officer, gave the Board the benefit of information he had obtained in Toronto regarding the manner in which the Act was enforced in that city.

After discussing several matters in a conversational manner, the Board adjourned.

Ladies

Y.M.C.A. Bible Class.

The Rev. Mr. Munro will conduct the class for Bible study in the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. The subject will be the "Life of Jacob." All young men are invited.

Gone Up.

Jack Sharpe, alias "Chuckens," was taken up to the Bastile on Monday night, for ten days' visit. He was fined $2 at the Police Court some ten days ago, and as he did not raise the necessary in the meantime, he had to take the alternative. He will be badly missed by the police, who have accommodated him with lodgings almost every night since the beginning of the present year.

Railway Notes.

The Monetary Times of July 4th says:—

"A correspondent at Bancroft, P. O., in the rear of Hastings County, dwells with some warmth upon the need of railway communication with the townships of Snowdon, Monmouth, Glamorgan, Cardiff and Faraday, and outlines a scheme to make these tributary to this city by means of a short railroad, proposed to be built north eastward from Irondale, and to be called the Irondale, Bancroft & Ottawa Railway. "A charter is procured," he tells us, "and $3,200 per mile is promised by the Dominion Government when twenty miles out of the forty-four proposed shall have been built. The Victoria Railway already reaches Snowdon, an extension has been made to Irondale, and if a grant of land can be had from the Ontario Government of equal value to the money grant now conditionally made there is a prospect that New York and Ontario private capital will provide the rest."

A Good Appointment.

The Independent Reform Winnipeg Sun has the following remarks with reference to Mr. H. H. Smith, which show how judicious was his choice for the difficult functions which he is discharging so well:—

"Mr. Pearce having removed to another sphere, Mr. Smith, of Peterborough, reigns in his stead and according to all accounts is a most excellent officer. He has the virtue—the common sense to know that the settler is entitled to consideration. Mr. Pearce acted upon the principle that the regulations of the Interior Department were to be inflexibly carried out in every instance, and he certainly did his best to that end. Mr. Smith has come here with the intention apparently of treating the settler as though he were a taxpayer and possessed of some rights under the constitution, and since his arrival a better and healthier feeling has arisen. All that the settler asks is justice; if he asks for more it should be peremptorily denied. The machinery of the Land Boards appears, however, to be non-elastic. No Government that ever existed could devise laws to cover every imaginable case, and large powers should be vested in Mr. Walsh and Mr. Smith."

BASE BALL.

The Silver Stars and Peterboroughs—The Stars Win the Match.

A base ball match was played on the Ashburnham cricket ground on Monday afternoon by teams representing the Silver Stars and the Peterborough Clubs. The players assembled at the Little Windsor hotel, and, headed by the City Band, marched over to the grounds. There was a fair attendance of spectators, including a number of ladies, and quite an interest was taken in the game. The teams were composed as follows:

PETERBOROUGHS—W. Watson, (Captain), H. Dunn, C. Rutherford, W. McAuliffe, E. Rogers, W. Pidgeon, F. Billings, F. Larone and W. Melsh.

SILVER STARS—W. Dayman, (captain), W. Cushen, J. Callaghan, J. E. Hawkins, A. Sceney, T. Sanderson, J. J. Lynch, A. F. Reid and W. Lannin.

The Peterborough's uniform was grey throughout, and the Stars were dressed in grey trousers and white shirts, with a star worked on the shirt in bright colours. The Peterboroughs went first to the bat. The play at once became lively and they went out for a 0. The Stars then went in and scored 6. The second innings resulted in not increasing the Peterborough's score, while the Stars added 5 runs to the 6 previously made. The Peterboroughs made a determined effort to retrieve their position, and in the third innings they scored 4 and put their opponents out for 0. From that to the end the playing was more even, but the Stars held their advantage and won the match by 9 runs and an innings. The following was the score by the innings:—

Peterboroughs—0, 0, 4, 3, 3, 0, 4, 1, 2—17.
Silver Stars—6, 5, 0, 1, 4, 4, 0, 6.....26.

The decisions of the umpire, Mr. Jas. Coughlin, gave general satisfaction. The match was a very pleasant one, and at its conclusion the Peterboroughs gave three cheers for the Stars, and the cheers were returned, when both clubs joined in cheers for the umpire. They then marched back to the town. As a result of the match the Stars claim the championship of the town.

Pedestrianism.

Articles of agreement for a race between A. Williamson, formerly of Omemee, now of Midland, and Hamly, of Port Hope, were signed on Monday evening. The distance is half a mile, and the race will be run in the Peterborough Driving Park on the 6th of September. The stakes are $150 a side, and a forfeit has been posted with Mr. E. Brown, the stake holder. The race is "play or pay."

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

FROM the high reputation of Dr. Tassie and the strong recommendations that have been received in his favour from gentlemen who should be excellent judges, among others from the Rev. D. J. Macdonnell of St. Andrews Church, Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough, we feel convinced that the Board of Education has made a very judicious choice in selecting that gentleman for principal of our Collegiate Institute. A good staff is essential to the prosperity of the Institute and we hope the Board will be equally careful in the remaining appointments.

Harvest Gloves.

Fair, VanEvery & Co. have received a large consignment of Harvest Gloves, which they will offer at wholesale prices to clear them.

A Fine Beverage.

Piano Forte Tuning.

Max. D. Major, Piano Forte Tuner, with Octavius, Newcombe & Co., Toronto, is in town. Orders left at J. Sailsbury & Co.'s Book Store will be promptly attended to.

New Rack Lifter.

We have been requested to publish the following letter:—

Mr. Peter J. Walker, Otonabee:

DEAR SIR,—I have great pleasure in stating that the rack lifter recently placed in the barn on the Bever Mead Farm by you comes up fully to your representations, and I have no doubt when known it will soon find its way into the greater number of barns in the county. From the short experience I have had, I believe it only requires to be known to make it come into general use.

T. G. HAZLITT.

Fruit Jars.

Every person putting up fruit should give the the jars the first attention; without a perfect sealing jar, it is useless going to the expense and trouble of canning fruit, China Hall is the only store in Peterborough selling the improved perfect fitting "Crown Jar" in firsts. Every jar warranted. It costs no more to have the best as the enormous quantities we handle enables us to sell our jars as low as any house in the trade and give a better jar, Stone Jars and Jelly Cans all sizes at CHINA HALL.

Peterborough's Attraction.

Peterborough's greatest attraction, with the electric light, is the "Golden Lion," on George street, where every department is filled to the ceiling with choice new seasonable goods. In millinery—everything new and attractive. In dress and mantle making—the finest fabrics to choose from, and all orders executed on shortest notice, and in most elegant styles. In tailoring—a most complete stock of Scotch tweeds, fine worsteds, &c., to select from. A competent cutter and a good fit guaranteed. Other departments show specialties too numerous to mention, which tend to make Fair, VanEvery & Co. the "grand centre of attraction in Peterborough."—Our Contem.

A Successful Festival.

The strawberry festival on Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, in aid of the building fund of St. Peter's Cathedral, was very successful. The hall was handsomely decorated, and the grounds were beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns. The attendance was large, there being about three hundred persons present. The City Band was in attendance, and vocal music was furnished by the Messrs. Dunn, and Misses McIlmoyle, McFadden, Lynch and Begley. Mr. Hanlihan provided violin music, accompanied on the organ by Miss. Begley. The refreshment tables were well patronized, and the festival was a very enjoyable affair, and the financial assets were very satisfactory. The ladies desire to return their thanks to the City Band for attending and to the Village Council for the use of the Town Hall.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

EXCEPT LEGISLATING FOR IT.

We have no confidence in the truth or honesty of the Canadian Government, which pretends to desire Reciprocity, but which has never done anything to obtain.—Toronto Globe (Ref.).

WHAT OF THE REFORM SCOTT ACT?

Will our contemporary say that they (the Provinces) have not exclusive power to regulate and control the sale of intoxicating liquors?—Belleville Ontario (Reform.).

DESPITE THE GRUMBLERS.

No one can doubt that, despite occasional grumbling from disappointed individuals, the foundations of the Confederation have been laid broad and deep, so that the fabric will last and become strong and powerful as years pass over it.—Montreal Herald (Reform).

THE "GLOBE" CANNOT.

The point in the case lies here, that our government has actually passed and put upon the statute book a reciprocity bill, which waits only the action of our neighbours to become law. What more can we do until the other party makes an offer. Our offer is official and upon record, but from the other side no official offer has come as yet. The Globe might at least pay some regard to notorious facts.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

RESENTING DICTATION.

There is a capital article in Thursday's World touching the political disturbance in West Ontario. We endorse every word of it, and shall reproduce it next week, even if we do lose the government pap, as we were threatened to by an Uxbridge gentleman, if we did not support Mr. Edgar. Our g. p. amounts to the magnificent sum of $1.00 a year, the subscription for the paper. Shall we be able to withstand the loss?—Stouffville Advance (Ref.)

DESPICABLE ATTACKS.

"An old time Liberal" refers to attacks made upon the lands and the credit of the company by the Hon. Edward Blake. There cannot be any doubt of the fact that these attacks have been noticed with regret by the general public. —Montreal Herald (Reform).

TRYING TO CRAWL.

The Globe is trying to crawl out of the small end of the horn in the matter of West Ontario. It had no business to put up James David Edgar, one of its own directors and a heeler of the party leader without consulting the constituency. It was a political job, and the Globe is being told so in unmistakeable language by the local papers of the riding.—Toronto World.

DISGRACED HIMSELF.

Mr. Wheler has disgraced himself in the whole business and it is well that he should know it. The Globe is working for Mr. Edgar and not for the reform party. What the World professes to have done in the case is to have expressed the views of the great majority of the riding.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

MR. BLAKE'S SERVICES.

The people who should welcome Mr. Blake with open arms are the conservatives. The best thing they can ask of him, is to visit the doubtful constituencies. If they don't go conservative after that, they never will.—Sherbrook Gazette.

BLAKE REPRESENTATION.

Reform Doctoring of our Constitution Condemned—No Boroughmongering Wanted.

It is satisfactory to see the numerous and strong protests even from Reform sources against the devices which Messrs. Blake, Mowat and other Reform leaders are adopting to interfere with the constitutional right of the electors to choose their own representatives. The Toronto correspondent of that Reform journal the Montreal Witness, voices public opinion as follows:—

"A few months ago Mr. McMillan, of South Huron, was induced to resign in order to allow Sir Richard Cartwright to be elected member of the House of Commons for South Huron. Though the latter is a strong Reform constituency, there was an almost insuperable repugnance to the arrangement, which was at the last moment all but defeated by a recalcitrant convention. Probably Sir Richard would be more acceptable now that he has established, by his Grand Opera speech, his title to be called a true, if not an advanced, Liberal; but efforts to find constituencies for individuals, however prominent, are sure to be distasteful to the local resident politicians, and such experiments are always risky. So Mr. Blake is finding out just now. The party managers are desirous of having Mr. J. E. Edgar in the House of Commons, of which he was formerly a member. They have found a Government position in this province for Mr. Wheler, of West Ontario, and now they are trying to induce the Reformers of the riding to nominate Mr. Edgar to succeed him That they will do so is probable, but meanwhile the threaten d split is very unpleasant if not dangerous. Mr. Edgar cannot lay claim to Sir Richard Cartwright's eminence, and, therefore, he has not even Sir Richard's strength as a non-resident candidate for whom party expediency requires a position to be made. That he would be useful in Parliament is beyond question, but it is sometimes difficult to make aspiring politicians in a safe "hive" see the propriety of sacrificing them for an outsider without acquired eminence. Mr. Edgar's claims to a seat now are all the greater, because he would have been sure of one in East York at the general election had Mr. Mackenzie not appeared as a rival in the convention. He afterwards fought a losing battle in centre Toronto, and for this this, as well as his repeated efforts to win Monck in the face of a local gerrymander, he is entitled to consideration. There is many a slip, however, between the cup and the lip, and at this writing it is by no means certain that even with the influence of the leaders he will secure the nomination in West Ontario."

POLICE COURT.

THE COW BY-LAW.

WEDNESDAY, July 9.—Wm. Roberts, pound keeper, charged Robt. Weir with having caused his cow to be taken out of the pound and not paying the charge, 50 cents. The complainant did not appear, and the case was dismissed with costs.

Bodega.

Fine Spanish wines, Ports and Sherries drawn from the wood, at William Chamberlain's Restaurant.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

VALUABLE IN INDIGESTION.

Mr. Daniel T. Nelson, Chicago, says: "I find it a pleasant and valuable remedy in indigestion, particularly in overworked men."

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The crowd in the city is immense. Possibly even greater than during the Republican convention. Up to four o'clock this afternoon, when an adjournment was made till to-morrow, no business of general interest was transacted. Caucuses were held; there were many animated discussions, and some Committees reported, but all is still speculation as to who will receive the nomination. At present it stands Governor Cleveland against the field, much the same position as President Arthur stood in. The field is strong enough to defeat Cleveland, but at present it cannot concentrate upon any one candidate. The names of Ben. Butler, R. J. Flower and J. T. Bayard are prominently mentioned, with the odds in favour of Butler.

FIRE FROM ELECTRIC WIRES.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Last night an electric light current caused damage to the fire department wires. The springs on the testing instrument in the central office of the department were burned and the insulation was destroyed. The bell magnets were burnt out in the residences of the president and vice-president, the medical officer of the department and at the repair shops and also in the quarters of engine company No. 18, and in the house of the president the current jumped from the telephone circuit to that of the gang and ground wire, forming an arc, setting fire to the baseboards, floor and carpets. Further damage was prevented by the president cutting the wires away form the windows.

THE REFORM LEADER REBUKED.

Mr. Blake the titular leader of the Reform party, is not only injuring Canada, but is damaging the prospects of his own party by his attacks upon the credit of the Dominion, and indeed upon everything Canadian, so long as the people of Canada are Conservative and reject him as their political adviser. Many Reformers see that this policy is worse than folly, and their remonstrances are well put in the following extract from an editorial in that Reform journal, the Montreal Herald. Our contemporary says:—

Even Mr. Blake must see that however necessary, just or reasonable his assaults on the Government because of their relations with the Company may be, the time has come when only injury can result to the Liberal party in Canada through being indentified with attacks calculated to destroy the credit of the Company and the value of the property of thousands of innocent shareholders whose only crime is that they have expended their money in a purely Canadian enterprise. The Herald, as a journal that has rendered some service to the Liberal party in the past and has the power and the desire to render possibly greater services in the future, would strongly urge upon all concerned the unwisdom of a course which, by injuring both public and private interests, is calculated to withdraw from the party an amount of public sympathy which it should be careful not to lose.

NON-PRODUCERS

We observe that some Conservative journals are criticizing some remarks made at Strathroy by the Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education for Ontario. Mr. Ross said:—

"It was to be regretted, however, that so many farmers' sons were leaving the country for the cities and towns, and there was need for an alteration in the system of education by which this tendency might be corrected."

Now we do not admire Mr. Ross' politics, nor his inveterate habit of seeking byways and shady courses when more straightforward and conscientious men would prefer the straight path and honest ways, but we do not dispute his ability. Mr. Ross has had an experience of educational matters in this Province that should enable him to be a judge in such questions, and we would not care to dispute his accuracy in this particular. Whether he is right or wrong in attributing this to our educational system, the fact remains that there is a tendency in this country for an undue proportion of the population, not only to flock to the towns and cities, but also to adopt non-productive rather than productive occupations. It is not only that farmers' sons do this, for, as the critics of Mr. Ross say, that would be counteracted by the townspeople and their sons who take to farming.

The fact is that a country cannot prosper unless it is productive, and if there is an undue proportion of non-producers, the powers of production must thereby be limited. There are certain things that are necessary or expedient to be done, the doing of which by those who devote themselves to them, frees the producers from occupying their time with them, and thus indirectly aids production. For instance, goods besides being grown, manufactured or mined, must be distributed, so carriers, merchants, clerks, etc., are necessary. Peace must be preserved, laws must be administered, health must be attended to, news must be collected and disseminated, education must be carried on, and other wants satisfied by the professional classes. If there are not too many of these non-producers to supply the requirements of the producers they virtually assist production. But none who consider the matter will dispute that in Canada the professions are overstocked, that there are more merchants than is advisable, more clerks, and other non-producers. It seems as though there were a tendency to escape from productive occupations, from mechanical trades, as well as from farming. If Mr. Ross is right in attributing this, at least in part, to our educational system, he will be doing good service if he suggests a remedy.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A REPORT AND A MINORITY REPORT FROM THE APPOINTMENTS COMMITTEE.

Dr. Tassie Appointed Principal of the Collegiate Institute—The June Visitors Make Suggestions—The Estimates.

A meeting of the Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening.

PRESENT—Messrs. Stevenson (chairman), Stratton, Sawers, Kendry, Burnham, Sproule, Denne, Weir, Errett, Dumble, Millar, Wrighton, Cox and Rutherford.

The minutes of the last meeting, held on May 13th, were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Miss Cooper, offering her services as a teacher of drawing.—Committee on Appointments.

From A. J. Eaton, enquiring whether there was a vacancy in the staff of the Collegiate Institute.—Committee on Appointments.

From F. J. Lynch, applying for the position of classical master at a salary of $800.—Committee on Appointments.

From Mr. Barron, asking whether the appointment of a Principal had been made.—Received.

From the trustees of S.S. No. 11, Douro, enclosing the half-yearly account for pupils from the town, amounting to $16.50.—Finance Committee.

An account from the REVIEW Printing Company for $2.60 was also referred to the Finance Committee.

A statement of the attendance at the South Ward School for May, was read, as follows: On register, 223; average attendance, 171. It was explained that the full report for the school was not ready because the Principal and Superintendent had been busy with the examinations.

VISITING COMMITTEE.

Mr. DUMBLE read the report of the Visiting Committee for June, stating that they had visited some of the rooms in the public schools, and found them well conducted. It recommended that the seats in the rooms be graded according to the size of the pupils, and the north-east room be fitted up for a teacher to relieve Miss Keele's room.

Mr. WRIGHTON said that the Property Committee were negotiating for seats.

The report was referred to the Property Committee.

THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. DUMBLE read the following report of the Committee on Appointments:—

The Committee on Appointments beg to report that in pursuance with the instructions received from the Board they advertised in the Globe and Mail for a principal for the Collegiate Institute, deeming it expedient first to select a principal in order that in filling up the staff of teachers it might be done with the approval of whoever might be selected as principal.

Eighteen applications were received. These were carefully considered, and two persons whose applications were such as to commend them to the Committee were especially enquired about, by private correspondence and otherwise, and after consideration they were invited to make a personal application, on a promise that, if not selected their expenses would be paid.

The two gentlemen came to Peterborough and interviewed the members of the Committee, and at the subsequent meeting of the Committee the choice rested upon Mr. Odlum, now Principal of the High School in Pembroke.

The Committee recommend that Mr. Odlum be appointed principal at a salary of twelve hundred dollars a year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

A MINORITY REPORT.

Mr. ERRETT read the following minority report of the Committee on Appointments:—

To the Members of the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN,—The undersigned members of the Committee on Appointmenrs beg leave to report as follows, viz.:—

That we are unable to agree with the majority on the choice of a principal for the Collegiate Institute.

That we are desirous of making the Institute thoroughly efficient, thereby enabling it to return full value to the ratepayers for the money expended in maintaining it. To accomplish that end we think the Board should engage the services of the best man they can procure for the salary they propose to pay.

We therefore recommend that Mr. Tassie, Esq., LL.D., late Principal of the Galt Collegiate Institute, be engaged at the same salary paid your late principal.

We have also to report that we have made considerable enquiry as to Dr. Tassie's success elsewhere, and as to his fitness for the position, and we are able to report that he has in the past been a highly successful principal—one of the most successful in Ontario. That he has a continental reputation as a schoar, a perfect disciplinarian and teacher, and we believe from information received, that if he is appointed he will build up the Institute, and put it on a footing it has not occupied for years.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. W. ERRETT, HENRY DENNE,
W. H. WRIGHTON, MEEVILLE MILLAR,
GEO. B. SPROULE.

Mr. ERRETT moved that the minority report be adopted instead of the last section of the report of the committee.

Mr. RUTHERFORD said that the movers of the reports evidently were afraid to defend their reports. There was something very strange about this Dr. Tassie business, as members had said that a man of the doctor's age was too old. One complaint against one of the present teachers in the Institute was that he was too old, and if that were true of this teacher it was equally true of Dr. Tassie. He thought the adoption of the minority report would be an extraordinary step to take, and he would sooner see the former principal re-engaged. The applicants were brought here on exhibition and Mr. Odlum took the prize.

Mr. ERRETT said that was to be decided yet.

Mr. RUTHERFORD said that he based his remark on the report of the committee. The board should think seriously before adopting the minority report.

Mr. MILLAR said that this was the first situation Dr. Tassie had applied for since he left Galt.

Dr. BURNHAM said that he was acquainted with Dr. Tassie, and he would make a good, energetic teacher.

Mr. DENNE said that he might have said that Dr. Tassie was too old, but when he saw that gentleman he formed a different opinion.

Mr. DUMBLE said that he had been charged with being afraid to support his reports, but a report of that kind needed no support. They all felt that a change was necessary, and they desired that a good, energetic man be appointed Principal, one who would make it his life work to build up the school. When Dr. Tassie's application was first read, the general opinion of the members of the Committee was that he was too old. Dr. Tassie had left the Galt Institute, where he had been Principal, because he could not act in harmony with the Board. Mr. Odlum had the highest testimonials. He did not think it advisable to discuss the men at the Board; These matters were thoroughly considered in the Committee. There was an insinuation in the minority report, that the majority did not favor what was in the best interest of the school, and he thought it unbecoming. Gentlemen who were not in the Committee could not have given the matter the same consideration as the members of the Committee.

Mr. ERRETT said that a majority of the Committee had signed the minority report.

Mr. DUMBLE said that the majority of the members of the Committee who were present at the meeting favored Mr. Odlum.

Dr. BURNHAM said that Mr. Odlum was a graduate of Victoria University of 1881, and without honors.

Mr. ERRETT said that Dr. Tassie left Galt on account of personal matters. He had since made a successful living in Toronto conducting a young gentlemen's school, in the face of all the opposition there. As to Dr. Tassie's age, since he had seen him he made up his mind that he was possessed of more mental and bodily vigor than any man who had been Principal of this school. Dr. Tassie was in his 65th year.

Mr. WRIGHTON.—Why, Sir John Macdonald is 75 years of age, and he is the smartest man in the country yet. (Laughter.)

Mr. ERRETT said that five members of the Committee had voted for Mr. Odlum, and the same number had signed the minority report.

Mr. DUMBLE said that Mr. Odlum was an honor graduate of the University. He named positions that Mr. Odlum had filled.

Dr. BURNHAM still held that he was right in what he had said.

MR. COX said that he was pleased with Dr. Tassie's appearance, yet no man on the Board would think of appointing a man of his age to manage an important department of his own business.

The CHAIRMAN explaining his own position said that he had invariably supported the reports of Committees.

A vote was then taken, and Mr. Errett's amendment was declared carried on the following division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Sawers, Kendry, Sproule, Burnham, Wrighton, Errett, Denne and Millar.—8.

NAYS.—Messrs. Stratton, Rutherford, Cox, Wear and Dumble.—5.

TAKING IN THE WHOLE BOARD.

Mr. SPROULE moved, seconded by Mr. DENNE,—That the names of Messrs. Kendry, Sawers and Burnham be added to the committee on appointments.—Carried.

THE ESTIMATES.

Mr. ERRETT moved, seconded by Mr. DENNE,—That a special meeting of the Board be held on Tuesday, July 15th, for the purpose of passing the estimates for the year, so as to place them in the hands of the council without loss of time.—Carried.

Mr. STRATTON suggested that the chairman of the Committee on Appointments consult with Dr. Tassie as to filling up the staff of teachers for the Institute.

The Board then adjourned.

CHAPTER XXII.

The letter which Regina wrote that night, was earnest, almost passionate, in its appeal that she might be permitted to join her mother; yet no hint of the bete noire of the Square darkened its contents,—for the writer felt that only face to face, eye to eye, could she ask her mother that fearful question, upon which her future peace depended.

Unable to compose herself, tossing restlessly on her bed,—with hot throbbing temples, and a sore heart, Regina wearily listened for the silvery strokes of the clock, and when it announced half-past three,—she began to long for daylight.

Suddenly, although warned by not even the faintest sound, she became aware that she was not alone; that a human being was breathing the same atmosphere. Starting into a sitting posture, she exclaimed:

"Who is there?"

"Hush! I am no burglar. Don't make a noise."

Simultaneously she heard the stroke of a match, and a small wax taper was lighted and held high over Olga's head, showing her tall form enveloped in a Cherry-coloured dressing-gown and shawl. Stepping cautiously across the floor she lighted one of the gas burners, placed the taper on the bureau, and came to the bedside.

"Make room for me. I am cold,—my feet are like ice."

"What is the mattter? Has anything happened?"

"Nothing particularly new or strange. Something happens every hour you know; people are born, bartered,—die and are buried;—lives get blackened and hearts bleed,—and are trampled by human hoofs, until they are crushed beyond recognition."

She was sitting with the bedclothes drawn closely over her, and Regina could scarcely recognise in the pale, almost haggard face beside her, the radiant laughing woman who had seemed so dazzling a few hours before, as she hurried away in her festive robes.

Olga, you talk like a heathen."

"Of course. To be sincere, unselfish,—honest and womanly,—is nowadays inevitably heathenish.

"Had you a pleasant evening at Mrs. Tarrant's?" asked Regina, anxious to change the topic.

"Wonderfully brilliant, and quiet a topaz success. I sparkled, blazed, and people complimented profusely,—(crivicizing sotto voce,) and envied openly; and when I bowed myself out at last, I felt like Sir Peter Teazle on quitting Lady Sneerwell's: 'I leave my character behind me.'

I asked Erle Palma to-night if he would loosen his martinet rein upon you, and permit you to make your debut in society as my bridesmaid? How those maddingly white teeth of his glittered, as he smiled approvingly at the proposition? Now you comprehend what brings me here at this unseasonable hour? Armed with your noble guardian's sanction, I crave the honor of your services as bridesmaid at my approaching nuptials.

"No. I will not be your bridesmaid. I could never co-operate in the unallowed scheme of wedding a man whom you despise. Oh, Olga! Do not degrade yourself by such a mercenary traffic."

"My dear uncontaminated innocent, don't you see that society, and mamma, and Erle Palma have all conspired to make an Isaac of me? Ah! The pitying tenderness of maternal love!"

She spoke with intolerable bitterness, and Regina put one arm around her.

"Olga she loves you too well to doom you to lifelong misery. You always talk so mockingly,—and say so many queer things you do not mean,—that she does not recognize your true sentiments. Show her your heart, your real feelings, and she will never consent to see you marry that man."

"Do you believe that I successfully mask my heart? Not from mamma, not from Erle Palma. They know all its tortures, all its wild desperate struggles, and they are confident that after awhile I shall wear out my own opposition, and sullenly succumb to their wishes. It seems to me that a whole legion of demons lie in wait outside of your door, to seize my shivering desolate soul."

She shuddered, and pressed her fingers over her glittering eyes.

"Regina you are a silly young thing, as ignorant of the ways of the world, as an unfledged Java sparrow; but your heart is pure and true, and your affection is no adroitly set steel-trap, to spring unawares, and catch and cut me. Will it be safe for me to confide in you? Can I trust you?"

"I think so."

"Will you promise to keep secret whatever I tell you?

"Does it concern only yourself?"

"Only myself, and one other person whom you do not even know. If I venture to tell you anything, you must give me your solemn promise to betray me to no human being. I want your sympathy at least, for I feel desperate."

"You may trust me. I will never betray you."

"Not to mamma, not to your guardian? You promise?"

Her cold hand seized her companion's and wistfully her hollow eyes searched the girl's face.

"I promise."

"Would you help me to escape from the misery of this fine marriage? Are you brave enough to meet your guardian's black frown, and freezing censure?"

"I hope I am brave enough to do right; and you certainly would not expect or desire me to do anything wrong."

Olga threw her arms around Regina, and leaned her head on her shoulder. She seemed for a time shaken by some storm of sorrow, that threatened to bear away all her habitual restraint, and Regina silently stroked her glossy red hair, waiting to hear some painful revelation.

"I think I never should have ventured to divulge my misery to you, if you had not seen me yesterday, and abstained from all allusion to the matter, when you saw that I boldly ignored it. Do you suspect the nature of my errand to East—— Street?"

"I thought it possible that you were engaged in some charitable mission; at least I hoped so."

"Charitable! Then you considered the feigned sickness a 'pious fraud,' and did not condemn me?"

"When I was seventeen, I went one June to spend some weeks with my grandmother Neville, who was an invalid, and resided on the Hudson, near a very picturesque spot, which artists were in the habit of frequenting with their sketch-books. Allowed a degree of liberty which mamma never accorded me at home, I availed myself of the lax regimen of my grandmother, and roamed at will the beautiful country adjacent. In one of these ill-fated excursions I encountered a young artist,—who was spending a few days in the neighborhood. I was a simple-hearted school-girl, untutored in worldly wisdom, and had always spent my vacations with grandmother who was afflicted with no aristrocratic whims and vagaries;—who thought it not wholly unpardonable to be poor,—and was so old-fashioned as to judge people from their merits,—not by the amount of their income tax.

"Belmont Eggleston, was then about twenty-five, very handsome, very talented, full of chivalric enthusiasm, and as refined and tender in sensibility as a woman. We met accidentally at a farm house, where a sudden shower drove us for shelter, and from that hour neither could forget the other. How deliriously happy I was! what a glory seems even now, to linger about every tree and rock that we visited together! He told me he was very poor, and was encumbered with the care of an infirm mother and sister, and of a young brother who displayed great plastic skill, and gave promise of becoming renowned in sculpture, while Belmont was devoted to painting. He frankly explained his poverty, detailed his plans,—expatiated with beautiful poetic fervor upon the hopes that gilded his future and asked my sympathy and affection. One star-lit night, standing on the bank of the river, with the perfume of jasmines stealing over us,—I put my hand in his, and pledged my heart, my life for his. Nearly eight years have passed since then, but no shadow of regret has ever crossed my mind for the solemn promise I gave; and despite all I have suffered,—were it in my power to cancel the past,—I would not! Bitter waves have broken over me, but the memory of my lover, his devotion,—is sweeter—oh! sweeter than my hopes of heaven! God forgive me if it be sinful idolatry. It is the one golden link that held me back, that saves me now from selling myself to Satan. In the midst of that rose-crowned June and July, in the height of my innocent happiness, mamma fell upon us, as a hawk swoops upon a dovecot, dividing a cooing pair. Disguising nothing, I freely told her all, and Belmont nobly pleaded for permission to prove his worthiness. Grandmother was a powerful ally, and perhaps the result might have been different, and mamma would have ultimately been won over, had not Erle Palma's counsel been sought. Then and there, they sternly prohibited even my acquaintance with one, to whom I had promised all that woman can give of affection, faith and deathless constancy.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEATHER NOTES.—June followed much in the same strain as May with dry hot weather. For a number of days during the month the thermometer kept rattling up about the nineties, but on Sunday, the 22nd, at three o'clock p. m. it rose to 95 degrees in the shade, being the hottest day so far yet in the season; the lowest temperature being on the morning of the 13th, and four succeeding days, being only 45 degrees. On the mornings of the 15th, 16th and 17th we had white frost. The mean temperature for the month at sun rise and sun set being 65 degrees. Four days we had thunder storms, the severest of which was on the afternoon of 19th, falling over one inch of water and considerable hail. Rain fell on eight days to the depth of one inch and 84-100 of an inch. However, looking back on the month of June farmers ought to feel thankful for the many showers received thereby greatly improving the appearance of all kinds of crops.

METEORS.—On Thursday evening last a little before sundown two large balls of fire apparently falling in the west, and when at an angle of 45 degrees they suddenly burst, scattering their glittering pieces in all directions. Some time after the explosion two reports were heard, which reverberated through heaven's mighty vault dying away in the distance. All who witnessed the phenomen are satisfied the reports were caused by the bursting of the ball.

The Cyclists Touring Club continue to increase in strength. During May 1,316 new members joined, and in June 1,230. This makes the total membership 13,744.

In Scotland on May 31, M. Sinclair, of the Midlothian Bicycle Club, and D. H. Huie, of the Edinburgh University Cycling Club, made 30 miles on a tandem tricycle in 1 hour and 48 mins. 40 sec., or an average of 3 min. 37 sec. per mile. This is ahead of all tricycle records proper.

Don't.

Don't judge a man by the clothes he wears; God made one and the tailor the other. Don't judge him by his family, for Cain belonged to a good family. Don't judge a man by his failure in life, for many a man fails because he is too honest to succeed. Don't judge a man by the house he lives in, for lizard and rat often inhabit the grander structure. When a man dies, they who survive him ask what property he has left behind; the angle who bends over the dying man asks what good deeds he has sent before him.

Saved from a Horrible Death

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores begun to discharge freely, and rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.

T. S. CANNON,
Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible blood poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not being able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighing one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Blood Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

A New Principle.

The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does noes not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the pars, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, yet sceptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others.

OUR CHEESE FAIR BOOMING.

Increasing in Interest—More Factories, More Cheese, and a Better Quality.

The third of the series of fortnightly cheese fairs was held at the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon, and was by far the most important yet held. The attendance was larger than on any similar occasion and the competition among the buyers more spirited.

A noticeable feature was the presence of a number of representatives of far eastern factories, who formerly sold at other fairs, but the great success of the Peterborough fairs has opened the eyes of our friends, and they have henceforth resolved to try us, and the indications are at present that others will follow suit. Good prices and fair dealing tell in the long run, and that is just where we stand in.

As before, Messrs. Taylor and Drummond conducted the meeting in a perfectly satisfactory manner to all.

The Liverpool quotation at the time of the sale was 47 shillings.

A local dealer showed a fine sample of cheese salt, which was pronounced to be excellent.

Among the buyers present were Messrs. J. R. Brower, Belleville; John Flavelle, Lindsay; W. H. Wrighton and John Garvey, Peterborough.

The following factories were represented, the figures being the number of boxes on hand. The letters "c" and "w" denote "coloured" and "white" cheese respectively:—

PETERBOROUGH.

SOUTHERN.

| Perrytown | 175 w |

The Peterborough and Lindsay sections ship from the county towns, the southern at Garden Hill, and the eastern at Campbellford.

All cheese was sold subject to inspection at the shipping point. Mr. Flavelle purchased the Lindsay cheese at 8⅞ for coloured, and 7⅞ for white, while Mr. Wrighton secured the coloured make from Peterborough at 8 and five-sixteenths, and an offer of 7⅞ for the white is to be considered. The other districts did not sell.

The buyers again impressed on the factories the great advantage of colouring their cheese well, as in the foreign markets there is no sale for the foreign or "straw coloured" article.

CONFIRMATION.

A Large Number of Candidates Confirmed by the Bishop of Toronto.

On Tuesday evening the Lord Bishop of Toronto administered the apostolic rite of confirmation, at St. John's Church Peterborough.

His Lordship and the Rector having entered the church, preceded by the surpliced choir singing a processional hymn, the evening prayers were read by the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, the Rector and Rural Dean.

The Bishop then addressed the candidates for confirmation in an impressive manner. He explained the two aspects under which the apostolic rite might be regarded. Outwardly they were confirmed by the Bishop, being thus admitted into full membership in the Church of Christ, with all its privileges and duties. This could not be repeated, for they were confirmed once for all as members of the church. But there was a deeper spiritual meaning in this sacred rite for they were confirmed by the great Head of the Church, by God himself, being received as the children of God. They received in confirmation the grace of the Holy Spirit. The lesson, that had just been read, told of the use of this rite by the apostles with the gift of the Holy Spirit following the laying on of hands. They might expect the same gift now in answer to prayerful reception of this sacred rite, as had accompanied it in the apostolic days. This spiritual blessing was not like the outward right once for all, for they may constantly seek a renewal of the grace of the Holy Spirit. They must ask for it daily in their private devotions, and must seek it by the appointed ordinances and means of grace, especially by the Holy Communion of the Body and Blood of Christ, of which they were privileged to partake after confirmation. But they must remember that christian life in this world was only a preparation for the future life in God's immediate presence. Then would take place the final confirmation in their actual possession of the blessings promised to them as the children of God.

The Bishop then laid his hands upon the heads of the candidates invoking for them God's heavenly grace, and the gift of the Holy Spirit.

After the offertory and the singing of a hymn, the Bishop concluded the service with prayer and the benediction, and he retired with the Rector preceded by the choir singing a recessional hymn.

Forty six candidates received the rite of confirmation. There was a large congregation who seemed greatly impressed with the solemn ceremony and with the hearty worship, greatly enhanced as is usual at St. John's by the musical portion of the service. The Communion Table was beautifully decorated with flowers.

A Novel Way of Advertising.

A curious scene was witnessed the other day in a fashionable quarter in Paris. A fashionably dressed young man walked into a well-known cafe; then, having managed to attract some attention, he sauntered up and down the garden, finally seating himself at a small table, to him came a person who, from his conversation proved to be a tailor, and who accused him in warm words of being ungrateful, stating that he had dressed him on credit for five years. The young fellow fired up, and declared himself insulted. A crowd gathered, and eager ears listened to the high words. Finally, to convince his quondam tailor that another house was cheaper and better, the late client pulled out the bill for the garments he wore. The name, price, address, etc., were read aloud, and the open-mouth crowd drank it in. The enterprising tailor who got up this little drama found his profit. We do not resort to any such novel feature in advertising, but content ourselves with recording the fact without fear of contradiction, that the place to secure the best value in Clothing and Gents' Furnishings is at Andrew McNeil's George street.

THE concentrated power and curative virtues of Ayer's Sarsaparilla render it the most reliable and economical medicine that can be used. ## Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1882.

A MORAL VICTORY.

As the "Reform reaction" did not operate in Cape Breton, the Reform journals are falling back upon the position that they gained a great "moral victory" because Mr. McDougall did not have as big a majority over Mr. McKay as he might have had. This "moral victory" had for one of its elements, that Mr. McKay warmly supported the duty on coal, against which his party leaders and journalists are fulminating so hotly. Any means moral or immoral to gain a vote is the Reform policy and then only a "moral victory" is gained after all.

FOR SALE.

THE proceedings before the Royal Commission as they drag along, certainly disclose a very peculiar system of money dealings on all sides. The very inception of the charges seems to have been a black mailing operation, in which Mr. Mercier the Reform leader, with his usual craving for "money or scalps" is implicated. Mr. Mallette, a partner of Mr. Charlebois in the contract in question, testifies that Mr. Mercier's law partner, Mr. Beausoleil, sent for him and offered to settle the matter on receiving the sum of $3,500, but that in the event of a refusal Mr. Mercier would bring charges in the House. Mr. Mercier fought hard to prevent this little episode in his history from being exposed.

REVIEWS.

A PERILOUS SECRET.—We have received from the publishers, Dawson Bros., of Montreal, a neat and well printed edition of Charles Read's powerfully written and thrilling novel, "A Perilous Secret."

Democratic Convention.

CHICAGO, July 9.—It is thought now that the Convention will not get through before Friday. The Times says Cleveland's strength has reached its limit, and the opposition is centering on Bayard. The Tribune gives the following estimate of the first ballot, having canvassed the delegates; Butler, 29; Field, 2; McDonald, 72; Thurman, 76; Bayard, 135; Randall, 80; Hoadly, 22; Carlisle, 2; Cleveland, 385; Hendricks, 1; Uncertain, 1; Absentees, 14. Several committees and sub committees met to, day and discussed and presented a series of resolutions on the conduct of business, but nothing definite towards nominating a candidate has yet been done. There is a wide divergence in view between the members of the sub committee on the tariff question. Almost every shade of opinion from free trade to protection is represented. The work of formulating a platform will probably be a long one, and the opinion is expressed that two, possibly three platforms will be presented to the full committee. The names of all the candidates in the field are now before the convention, except that of General Butler, and his will probably be placed to-morrow. Messrs. Grady and Cochrane to-day stated the grounds upon which a portion of the New York delegates opposed the nomination of Governor Cleveland. The talk around the hotels to-night is to the effect that the position taken by the Tammany to-day is beginning to have its effect and Sherman stock has improved. At any rate the ex-Senator from Ohio is the lion of the hour.

The Cholera in France.

TOULON, July 8.—Dr. Koch, head of the German cholera commission, thinks the cholera is not inhaled but swallowed with water fruit and vegetables. The microbes can be destroyed by cooking food well and by boiling the drinking water. Soiled clothes, Dr. Koch believes, can cause infection.

The total deaths here are 154.—There were ten last night, a sister of charity being among the victims.

MARSEILLES, July 8.—Four deaths in twelve hours to-day.

PARIS, July 8.—There are a number of cases of cholera at Viterbo, Valencia, Barcelona and Leghorn.

Blue Polka Dot Shirts in all sizes, Collars separate and attached at Habiliment Hall, George street.

PORT PERRY.

Dire Distress Caused by the Recent Disastrous Fire.

TORONTO, July 8.—Mr. N. F. Paterson, Q.C. of Port Perry, arrived in the city for the purpose of soliciting aid for his fellow-townsmen who have suffered by the recent disastrous fire. He intends to apply to the Mayor and to the Local Government. Over 300 heads of families have been thrown out of employment and the greater portion of the inhabitants are without shelter. Wooden sheds are now being erected for their accommodation. The total loss is $345,000 on which there is insurance of about $155,000. Last year the same place had a $116,000 fire. At a meeting held yesterday, Henry Gordon, Reeve of the village, N. F. Paterson, Q.C., W. J. McMurtry, Manager of the Ontario Bank, Messrs. W. J. Trounce, E. Major C. Dawes, Caleb Crandall, and A. H. Hurd were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions to aid the fire sufferers. Aid can be forwarded to either Mr. Paterson, secretary of the committee, of Mr. McMurtry, the treasurer.

THE ONTARIO AND QUEBEC.

Four Additional Trains Between Montreal and Toronto.

OTTAWA, July 9.—A new time table will come into effect on Monday, 21st, for the section between Montreal and Toronto, via Ottawa. The new arrangement will give eight trains instead of four. The time calculated for the run between Montreal and Toronto is twelve hours, and the trains will be equipped with the best rolling stock the company can procure.

Cassels, Simpson & Co.

MONTREAL, July 8.—The assets of the firm of Cassels, Simpson & Co, were sold this morning and bought at the small sum of $7,000.

Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs reported the resolution asking the President to negotiate for the renewal of the Canadian reciprocity treaty.

C.P.R. Receipts.

The receipts from June 21st to 30th are $157,000, which is a decrease of $37,000 compared with the same period last year. The St. Jean Baptiste celebration does not seem to have done the company any good.

Centralization of the Grand Trunk.

It is likely, said a railway man recently, that the offices of the Great Western division at Hamilton will soon be removed to Toronto, and the whole of the Grand Trunk system in the west be worked principally from this city.—World.

Military.

Major-General Middleton, the new Commander of the Forces, will probably arrive in the country on the 15th inst.

Col. Kensington of the Royal Militia College has been offered, and accepted, an important position at Woolwich, England, and will leave for that place shortly.

The Lachine Fire.

The actual damage in dollars and cents in the Lachine fire is not so great, but the worst feature of the case is that nearly all of the burnt-out heads of families were labourers, not insured, and who had barely time to escape with their lives. They lose everything, and will be dependent upon the charity of their more fortunate neighbours for some time.

Gilchrist Scholarships.

ST. JOHN, July 9.—Word was received by Dr. Jack, President of the New Brunswick University, from the Gilchrist trustees, to the effect that they, in consequence of the urgent representations of the faculty of the University and that of the Dalhousie College have agreed to continue the scholarships for the Maratime Provinces but only once in every three years.

Americans at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 7.—it is reported that, in consequence of the fear of cholera, a large number of Americans who intended spending the summer in Europe are turning their faces towards the St. Lawrence. Hotel men report a considerable increase of travel up to date over last year, and with the British association meeting and the exhibition they expect a gala year.

C.P.R. Dividend.

OTTAWA, July 8.—The announcement that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will pay a dividend of five per cent on its capital stock has caused surprise in political circles. As a large portion of the work was issued so members and directors of the company at twenty-five, a dividend of five per cent. on the value of the stock really means twenty-five per cent interest upon the money invested.—Globe.

Mr. Yarker's Successor.

There is a deal of discussion as to whe is to be the new manager of the bank of Montreal in Toronto. Among other names are Mr. Mr. Munro, manager of the Chicago branch; Mr. Hebden, assistant manager in Chicago; and it is also stated that Mr. McNider, inspector and assistant general manager, who is now in charge is willing to take the Toronto agency permanently.—World.

Excitable French Military Students.

NEW YORK, July 8.—A Paris special dated the 4th July says:—"The excitement over the cholera epidemic was greatly enhanced to-day by the announcement that the military students at the school of St. Cyr, about twelve miles from this city, had revolted and hauled down the tri-colour of the Republic and hoisted the white colours of the Bourbon regime in its stead. The services of the gend'armes were required to restore peace. The feeling against the government is daily becoming general that had it not been for its action in the Tonquin affair, cholera would not have been introduced into Toulon and Marseilles. In the latter place placards were posted in all parts of the city calling on the people to rise up and hang M. Jules Ferry, and stating that it was owing to his political policy that the scourge was brought to the shores of France.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

VALUABLE IN INDIGESTION.

Mr. Daniel T. Nelson, Chicago, says: "I find it a pleasant and valuable remedy in indigestion, particularly in overworked men."

A TIMELY REMONSTRANCE.

The unpatriotic course adopted by Mr. Blake in assailing our great national railway, decrying Canada, and persistently undervaluing our public lands, is exciting the disgust even of his own party. As an instance of this feeling a leading Reform journal, the Montreal Herald, contains a letter from "An Old Time Liberal," which is very much to the point. It is so long that we have not space to republish it in full, but we give the concluding portion as follows :—

"Holding strongly the opinion—to which I have not failed to give utterance on all proper occasions—that this is a public work of the highest importance and magnitude, involving interests not only of the present but of the future—not of the 4½ millions of people of to-day but of the millions who are to succeed us, and that the Parliament and people of Canada have staked everything upon the success of this policy, I can not help feeling that the leaders of the Liberal party in Canada are in duty bound to stand by the country which is making such sacrifices in the cause of internal development and which has assumed vast financial engagements in the expectation of recouping itself by the sale and settlement of the lands of the Northwest. Holding such opinions, and knowing how heartily Mr. Mackenzie is in sympathy with them, and how Sir Richard Cartwright has proved his faith in the Canadian Northwest by his land purchases in that quarter, and how anxious the great majority of Liberals are to see the old policy of their party carried out to successful fruition, I cannot but regret that Mr. Blake, in some of his public utterances, has gone, I conceive, beyond what was required of him as a party leader in his opposition to this truly national work. Mr. Blake has a right to challenge the terms of the Pacific Railway contract—to see that the company are faithfully executing their terms—to see that the public money is expended, not—to create a false impression in regard to the territory to which we are inviting European emigrants—to affect the credit and the standing of a company of gentlemen engaged in a mammoth undertaking of great public utility—and to destroy the chances of the Canadian Pacifice Railway Company carrying out its engagements with the people of Canada, by impairing its resources both for the construction and maintenance of the road the time has come for the expression of deep regret and sorrow that the Liberal leader has travelled so far afield for party weapons and that his name and reputation are associates with the "bearish" operations which have for their object the discrediting in England and the United States of Canada's fertile North-West provinces and territories. There is surely enough in the administration of the Government by Sir John Macdonald and his associated to furnish material for opposition criticism and attack; if not, the administration of Conservative Government is better than it used to be. The ardent politician should certainly be able to find such material without searching very energetically; I can recall a good many things which strike me as affording abundant capital for those who desire to assail the Government, without attacking the credit of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in the money market—without decrying the lands and the territory to which we are inviting European emigrants—without, in short, placing ourselves in opposition to the well understood wishes and hopes of the people of Canada. I regret Mr. Blake's couse in this regard all the more because his should be a truly Liberal and progressive policy on this as on all other questions, one worthy of the great Liberal party and our great Canadian country. Let us have from him a policy of hope—of encouragement—of belief in our country and its future—a policy helpful, not harmful, to the capitalist, wherever he may come from to invest his means in Canadian enterprises—a policy that promotes, not one that thwarts, the great enterprises and schemes of internal development on which the future of our country rests—a policy around which the young and hopeful Liberals of the Dominion may rally, believing that they are aiding in promoting the material and political interests of their country, and helping to create a genuine Canadian nationality. I would respectfully but firmly urge Mr. Blake to reconsider his course in the connexion I have pointed out, and instead of lending his abilities to frustrate the construction and minimize the resources of the great national railway, and along with this policy of obstruction doing infinite injury to the reputation and credit of the country, give his powerful influence towards aiding in establishing the credit of Canada and confidence in our resources at a higher point than they have yet attained.

Yours truly,
AN OLD TIME LIBERAL.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

REFORM SLANDERERS LASHED.

We are assured by our esteemed contemporary the Hamilton Spectator that the Whip Company of that city has not failed, as reported, and therefore the Advertiser's little pleasantry about a lack of snap should be wiped off the record. Whoever started the malicious report should be lashed.—London Advertiser (Reform.)

MR. MOWAT'S GERRYMANDERING.

It (the World) first observed Mr. Mowat as the author of a gerrymandering bill, designed to enable a minority of the electors of Ontario to govern the province. He passed it; and under its infamous provisions has held power ever since, though it is notorious that a large majority of the electors of Ontario have repeatedly condemned him.—Halifax Herald.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD

All in all he is the most prominent man to-day in the country's history, and some such recognition by the people of the services he has rendered the country while he is yet in office would be nothing more than a fitting tribute to his devotion to the country. As an independent paper, The World will give what assistance it can toward carrying out the demonstration, and we hope that not only conservatives, but all fair minded journals will take a similar position.—Toronto World (Indep. Ref.)

NO POLICY.

The facts is that the Grits have no policy on the tariff question. The widest diversity of views prevails among them on the subject. They agree only in denouncing the policy of the present administration, and are completely at sea on the question of what they would substitute for it. We need no further proof of the hopeless want of any general agreement on the question than the inconsistency between the inda of a modified, incidental-protection tariff occasionally put forward by some of the leaders and the foolish free-trade talk which forms the staple of the tariff editorials in the Grit press.—Toronto News (Indep.)

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

A Boat Capsizes, Drowning Three Children.

DETROIT, July 8.—A terrible disaster occurred on the river, near Sandwich Springs, on Sunday evening, in which three persons were drowned, and one had a thrilling experience, clinging to a small boat for twenty hours before being rescued. News of the accident did not reach the city until last night. On Sunday evening a 12-year old girl, Mary Maney, went over to the springs in company with another girl named Millie Beech, aged 13. After arriving there they took a walk, and made the acquaintance of two boys aged 17 and 18. The boys invited them to take a ride in a small boat. They accepted the invitation, and after they had been on the water a short time three of the party went down to death. The boys pulling the oars evidently did not notice the approach of a steamer. The small boat caught in the heavy swells and was capsized. Millie Beech sank to rise no more. One of the boys sank soon after, and the other attempted to catch hold of the small boat but could not reach it and drowned. Miss Maney, after struggling in the water some time succeeded in reaching the boat, which was rapidly floating down the stream, and crawled on the overturned boat. Her experience was most remarkable. During the long night which followed she made a heroic struggle for life. There was no one within reach who could render any assistance, and she was too far from shore to enable her cries for help to be heard. She balanced herself on the bottom with her feet hanging over one side and her arms on the other. In this position she lay two hours, when a heavy wave washed her off. The boat was tossed about in the water, and she was washed off, but she managed to reach it again, and again climbed on the bottom. About midnight steamers' swells again washed her off and although nearly exhausted she succeeded in catching hold of a rope attached to the boat, to which she clung until rescued. The boat drifted to weeds in front of the residence of Joseph Duroches, a farmer living at Petite Cote, where it became fastened. The girl cried feebly for help, which attracted the attention of Duroches at work about the premises about two o'clock. When he heard the cry from the water, he first thought it came from his children, who were in the habit of playing on the river bank, he paid but little attention. Another cry was soon after heard, when he made an investigation. On going to the river he found the girl still clinging to the rope, and set out to rescue her. She was very weak, and had to be supported to the house where she was cared for. After she recovered sufficiently to be able to speak, she told the farmer her terrible experience, and what happened the previous night. She said she did not know the boys with whom she and her friend went out boating, but was positive they were drowned. The girl was quite comfortable last night, and returned home this morning. Up to a late hour last night none of the three bodies had been recovered. The boat was nearly in mid-stream when capsized. A singular feature of the disaster is that it was not witnessed by anyone, and nobody knew anything of it until after the girl was rescued. She says she tried to hail a passing steamer during the night, but was not noticed.

THE STRIKE IN TORONTO.

The Compositors and the Trades' and Labour Council.

At least a dozen printers reached Toronto on Tuesday night from outside points, and the Globe managed to secure three or four of them. Three or four came down from Hamilton. The Mail only had half a dozen of men at work on Tuesday night, while the Globe had in the neighborhood of fifteen.

There was a rumor that the "pickets" were were going to be arrested under the intimidation act. The men, however, continue very orderly and there apparently seems little or no reason to resort to such a measure. No arrests were made.

The Trades' and Labor Council passed the following resolution :—

That this Council having heard the clear and detailed statement of the action taken by the Typographical Union in the attempt on the part of the employing printers to reduce the wages of their employees, therefore be it Resolved, that this Council endorses the action of the Typographical Union, and pledges itself to aid them in every honorable way.

The resolution was carried unanimously by a standing vote. The delegates are to bring the matter officially before their respective bodies at once with a view of rendering prompt financial aid to the Typographical Union.—World.

WINNIPEG, July 7.—Another unsuccessful attempt to wreck a Canada Pacific railway train on the Pembina branch was made on Friday night at the same place as on the previous evening. The object of the perpetrators is unknown, unless it was robbery.

Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person, look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live, (misfortune excepted) within your income. Do business only with men that have one price, any man that will ask you 50cts. and take 40cts. will cheat you or your neighbour. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich. Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it, and when you want value for your money go to KELLYS. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow unless you cannot possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Cox, McWilliams, Urquhart and Moore, Councillors. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That whereas Mr. R. Q. Dench having made representations before this Council that Messrs. Several parties appeared before the Council and spoke in regard to the discharging of fire-arms within the limit of the corporation, more especially on the south side of the river, principally by parties destroying robins and other small birds. The Council promised to take action at its regular meeting. Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Moore,—That in accordance with the provisions of the Public Health Act, of Ontario, this Council do appoint the Reeve, Clerk, and Messrs. John Clarin, W. J. Wallance and Sam. Henderson as a board of health for the village of Lakefield, and that the corporate seal be attached to this motion to give it the effect of a By-law. Moved by Councillor Cox, seconded by Councillor McWilliams,—that this Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve. Carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.—It will be noticed in our report of the village council, held last week, that they appointed a Board of Health for the municipality which will hold its first meeting in the Council Chamber next Monday, the 14th inst., at 7. p.m., for the purpose of organizing and the appointment of a health inspector. We trust that they will select some person who will not shirk his duty, but serve without fear or favor, and that our citizens will do all in their power to assist both the inspector and the Board in carrying out the provisions of the act.

FINE STOCK.—Last fall Mr. R. C. Strickland, while in Toronto at the provincial exhibition, purchased a two year old thoroughbred heifer, Rose Bourborn. Mr. Strickland has also a fine yearling bull, "Tweed Side," from the famous Russell stock farm, Richmond Hill. He has promised also to have it weighed to show some of our farmers what it is to get improved stock, a point which is too much neglected for their own good.

FIRE PROTECTION.—At the request of a number of the village ratepayers who have become alarmed at the want of fire protection posessed by the Municipality, and the results of the fire at Port Perry fresh before them, the Reeve has called a public meeting of the ratepayers on Friday evening the 11th at 8 o'clock p.m. to take into consideration the ways and means of affording the desired protection. All should attend as the subject is of great importance,

MYRTLE.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.—A large and representative meeting of the employees of the West Peterborough Division of the Ontario & Quebec Railway was held at Myrtle, 45 miles west of Peterborough, on the evening of June 27th, for the purpose of presenting Mr. B. Gibson, Manager, with an address and testimonial previous to his resigning his position. Myrtle being the headquarters of a greater portion of the employees, it was chosen as a fit and central place to hold the meeting. On this section during the last four months there have been seven engines with their train hands and about five hundred men employed. When it became known that Mr. Gibson meditated severing his connection with the road, the train men and others formed a committee to present Mr. Gibson with an address and testimonial, Mr. A. W. Perley, driver, engine 294, was appointed Chairman, and Mr. M. Collins, Secretary. Money came in so rapidly that the list had to be closed in a few days. Through the courtesy of Mr. Hugh Ryan, the men were permitted to run a special from Peterborough, taking the Pontypool and Burketon men to Myrtle.

At about 9 o'clock the engine arrived with the contingent from the east. When Mr. Gibson arrived he was received with cheers. The Chairman gave a short account of the committee's work, and called on Mr. Collins to read the address, which was as follows :—
